PUDDLES IN LARKSPUR — Chester Arnold of the Larkspur city public works crew, attempts to clear leaves clogging a catch basin on Magnolia Avenue, while passing cars douse him with spray. A few cities' street drains backed up and three areas of Marin were blacked out briefly, but the storm did little damage yesterday in Marin and Southern Sonoma counties.

Heavy Rain But Damage Slight

After three days of intermittent heavy rain, Marin and Southern Sonoma counties today were still relatively unscathed by storm damage. Public works and utility firm spokesmen said they were "surprised" but pleased by the lack of problems. The rains were expected to taper off by tomorrow.

The story was far different in San Francisco, on the Peninsula and in the East Bay, where three persons' deaths yesterday were blamed on the storm.

Public works and utility crews were still battling the effects of flash floods that closed streets and knocked out electricity and telephone service around the bay yesterday. More than 2.5 inches of rain fell in four hours in some areas south of the Golden Gate.

Robert Williams, Pacific Gas and Electrical Co. , electrical superintendent said three areas suffered blackouts in Marin yesterday afternoon. Some 3,700 customers in Tiburon and Belvedere were affected for about an hour when a transformer connector failed, not necessarily due to the storm.

Tree branches falling across lines blacked out 570 homes in the Forest Knolls-Lagunitas area for 45 minutes, and 45 homes in the Bolinas area for about an hour.

Pacific Telephone Co. officials reported no troubles in Marin.

Even the vintners suffered little if any damage to their grape crops.

Herbert M. Rowland of Ignacio said he'd harvested all the

Abrams Is Confirmed By Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Gen. Creighton W. Abrams won Senate confirmation today to be Army chief of staff after a six-month controversy over whether he had knowledge of unauthorized U.S. air raids over North Vietnam last winter.

The vote was 84 to 2. The lone votes against Abrams were cast by Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and William Proxmire, D-Wis.

Abrams will assume command of an Army headed into a new era —made up entirely of volunteers for the first time since 1940.

But it was not how this rather gruff old soldier will carry out his new assignment but his role as top commander in Vietnam that delayed his confirmation.

Abrams swore that he was unaware that Gen. John D. Lavelle, his deputy who commanded all air units in the war zone, ordered a series of bombing attacks which were forbidden by civilian-imposed rules of war in effect at the time. These allowed only "protective reaction" strikes, defined as responses to enemy fire or the imminent threat of such fire.

Abrams, born in 1914, has been in the Army for 36 years, including service in both World War II and Korea.

Some senators, including Sens. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, and Proxmire, served notice they would continue to press the Pentagon for a complete investigation of the series of raids from November' to March. Mrs. Smith had said Wednesday she felt Abrams was guilty of "nonfeasance" of duty if he was unaware of what was happening within his command, but she nevertheless voted for confirmation.

Lavelle was relieved as commander of the 7th Air Force after the raids came to public attention and it was disclosed that officers under his command deliberately falsified reports to make the bombing appear legitimate.

Kissinger Report On Talks Tonight

Kissinger refused to comment to newsmen when he arrived in a U.S Embassy limousine at the Orly airport VIP lounge. The White House said he had concluded his top secret talks and would report to President Nixon tonight

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said there were no further meetings between Kissinger and the two top North Vietnamese diplomats although Kissinger spent the night in Paris. He had been meeting with Le Duc Tho, a member of North Vietnam's ruling Politburo, and Xuan Thuy, the chief negotiator at the nonsecret Paris talks.

Kissinger will report promptly to Nixon tonight and further brief Nixon and Secretary of State William P. Rogers at breakfast Friday, White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said. He added that Nixon had received "ongoing" reports from Kissinger while the private negotiations were under way.

While Kissinger wound up his affairs before returning, the Paris peace talks held their 163rd session—and without apparent progress. The Communist peace negotiators charged that President Nixon was escalating the war while ignoring the peace talks. But the statements in the session were believed to have little to do with Kissinger's separate talks.

The flurry of excitement Wednesday over reports that U.S. planes had bombed the French legation and Algerian facilities in the heart of Hanoi appeared to have subsided although there have been a series of sharp Communist denunications of the reported attack and a protest by the French Government.

Nixon Hit For Bug 'Secrecy'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Facing four empty chairs, Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., charged today President Nixon had "pulled down an iron curtain of secrecy" and refused to allow aides to testify at a House hearing about alleged Republican spying on Democrats.

Patman had asked Clark MacGregor, Nixon's campaign chairman; the finance chairman of the President's reelection effort, Maurice Stans; former attorney general John N. Mitchell, and a White House aide, John Dean, to testify at a session of the House Banking Committee which he heads. All refused.

Only one Republican was present as Patman called the hearing to order on the Watergate bugging case. A quorum was missing, so Patman was blocked from seeking to subpoena the four missing men.

Patman positioned four chairs, with MacGregor's, Stans', Mitchell's and Dean's names on large placards, in the center of the committee room and called out the names one by one.

"If any of these people are here, let them speak up," Patman said.

When there was no response —as he knew there would not be —Patman asserted that Nixon was "responsible for those four empty chairs".

"President Nixon is responsible for this secrecy —for the elimination of the people's right to know," he said.

"President Nixon has pulled down an iron curtain of secrecy to keep the American people from knowing the facts. It is the kind of secrecy —rigidly enforced —which no one dreamed would be possible in a democracy."

Patman subsequently adjourned the meeting.

The only Republican member of the committee on hand was Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., who apparently came only to read a statement accusing Patman of not allowing Republicans a chance to be heard in previous hearings and not keeping Republicans informed of the progress of his investigation of the Watergate incident.

Frenzel said that when he had asked Patman for information during previous committee hearings, "you benignly smiled my request into oblivion."

The ranking Republican William B. Widnall, R-N.J., said Wednesday the meeting was illegal because Patman had not given the required one-week notice to members, and he and other GOP members would not attend. While the Nixon campaign officials were declining to testify, some Republican members of Congress joined Democrats in asking for fuller disclosure of facts.

Rep. John G. Schmitz said, "These charges are far too serious to be dismissed with a bland 'no comment' or a brief uncircumstantial denial ..." Schmitz, who is serving out a term as a California Republican, is the American Party's candidate for President.

The reports alleging widespread espionage were published in the Washington Post and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch this week.

ARMY ENGINEERS WOO ECOLOGISTS

Corps Wants Support For Big Marin, Sonoma Sewage Spray Field Project

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — A strong pitch to conservation groups for support of a mammoth project that could turn vast areas in West Marin and Sonoma into sewage spray fields was made last night by the Army Corps of Engineers.

The conservationists, traditionally leery of the corps for its history of ignoring environmental consequences of its projects, remained skeptical despite two and a half hours of argument by corps officials.

The officials earnestly assured the audience of about 25 persons that public views on the project to reclaim sewage wastewater would be an important consideration in the report by the corps on the proposal.

Phillip E. Lammi, chief of the corps environmental branch at the San Francisco district office, conceded conservation groups should have been consulted sooner. The corps began its $800,000 study last year, and its report is due in December.

Of traditionally strained relations of the corps with such groups, Lammi said, "I'm not going to comment on the past."

The project, the largest water reclamation system in the world if undertaken, would need 255,000 acres of land to absorb the region's projected wastewater flow of 1.5 billion gallons a day by the year 2000.

Reclamation would save water that otherwise would be thrown away after only one-time use, prevent pollution of rivers and bays that otherwise would receive treated sewage, cut cost of sewage treatment and bolster the agriculture economy by irrigating dry areas for crops, engineers said.

They extolled the virtues of such a system so thoroughly that little time was left for comment or questioning by the audience. A second "workshop" meeting was scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Nov. 15, again in the corps offices at 100 McAllister Street.

A preliminary environmental impact statement on the project will be completed by about Nov. 3, Lammi said.

While Marin and Sonoma are among several areas earmarked for possible use in the system, the audience came largely from Marin, including representatives of the Marin Conservation League, Marin Alternative, League of Women Voters of Southern Marin, Marin County Grand Jury and Marin Coast Chamber of Commerce.

Also present were representatives of California Tomorrow, Committee for Green Foothills, California Farm Bureau Federation, Sierra Club and San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission.

A film was shown about an apparently highly successful test of such a system on a 60-acre site at Pennsylvania State University over the past decade. The key to the system is that plant roots and soil bacteria remove virtually all impurities from wastewater as it percolates through the soil to return to the water table.

Conventional sewage treatment cannot remove enough of the phosphates and nitrogen to prevent excess growth of algae when sewage wastewater is discharged into lakes, rivers and bays, the film pointed out. The algae, in turn, consume oxygen

Rec Area Plan Goes To Senate

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The House voted unanimously last night to create a 34,000-acre Golden Gate National Recreational Area stretching from Point Reyes National Seashore to the San Francisco Presidio.

Final approval of the plan in the Senate was expected before Congress adjourns tomorrow or Saturday.

Last night's action came after the House Armed Services Committee and Interior Committee reached a compromise reducing the amount of land to be taken from the Presidio and several Marin and San Francisco forts for inclusion in the recreation area.

The bill authorized spending, but did not appropriate, a total of $118.6 million for the recreation area, including $60.6 million for land acquisition and $58 million for developing recreational facilities. It was co-authored by Representatives William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, and Phillip Burton, D-Fifth District.

President Nixon had supported the recreation area plan in a statement Feb. 8, saying the proposal would provide much-needed "breathing space and recreational opportunities." The White House originally favored a 24,000-acre plan without including Olema Valley.

The compromise trimmed the amount of park land in the Presidio from 494 to 145 acres and the amount of park lands in Fort Mason and Fort Barry by half — but approved spending an additional $1 million to acquire 305 acres of Tamalpais Valley's undeveloped uplands not included in the original bill.

The new recreation area boundaries closely matched the provisions of a Senate bill already introduced by California's two senators.

The revised House version called for the recreation area to include Angel Island State Park, Marin Headlands State Park, Stinson Beach State Park, Forts Barry and Cronkhite, the western half of Fort Baker and Horseshoe Cove, Mount Tamalpais State Park, Muir Woods National Monu-

Magician Right On Target On Headline

Displaying modern-day wizardy, magician Don Bice yesterday made good a promise to predict an Independent-Journal headline.

On Monday, Bice sealed in a small tin chest his prediction of a page one I-J headline he said would appear the next day. He placed the tin chest in a larger chest, put that chest in a box, wrapped and taped the container shut and presented the package to I-J officials.

The sealed box was kept under guard at the I-J until its opening at 3:30 p.m. yesterday in the Bell Savings and Loan Association's San Rafael branch office.

A befuddled I-J reporter watched as an assistant unwrapped the package. The reporter opened the first chest. Then the second. Inside was a small scrap of paper, reading, "Senate Anti-Busing Forces Fail in Cloture Try."

The I-J's main headline on Tuesday had been "Senate Busing Foes Fail in Cloture Try."

How did he do it? Bice, eyes dancing, declined an explanation.

His prediction had come true without a puff of smoke or even a magic word.

Marin Shakespeare Group Loses Home

Marin Shakespeare Festival has been refused permission to hold its 1973 season at Dominican College's Forest Meadows outdoor theater, festival president James Frush has reported.

Frush said Sister Samuel, O.P. of Dominican College, has informed the board the college's music department will be using the theater.

The festival will not seek a site for the 1973 season, and is considering using Marin Veterans Memorial Auditorium, according to board secretary Donna Dodson.

She said directors have been asked to look for a permanent site on which a permanent theater can be built, and to contact developers who might wish to include a theater in their land planning.

Mrs. Dodson said the board has also announced four performances of "The Wizard of Oz" in conjunction with the Youth In Arts program. The musical — which ran to many sell-out productions in this summer's season — will be presented on Oct. 25 and 26 at the Civic Center auditorium at 10:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. The cast will be unchanged, she said.

Festival directors will serve a dinner cooked by fellow director Judge Ira Brown of the San Francisco Superior Court at 6 p.m. On Oct. 29 at the Marin Civic Ballet School, 100 Elm Street, San Rafael, after dedication ceremonies of the school.

Impact Of BART Will Be Studied

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The economic and sociological impact of the Bay Area Rapid Transit system will be scrutinized in an $11 million in-depth study, says the Metropolitan Transportation Commission.

In announcing the five-year study yesterday, John C. Beckett, a director of the commission from Santa Clara County, said subjects to be covered would include such environmental topics as community appearance, noise levels, air pollution and public attitudes toward transportation.

Land use, economic impact and the distribution of social benefits and costs are among other effects to be examined by the study, Beckett said.

Big Welcome For Nixon In Atlanta

ATLANTA (UPI)—President Nixon, making what probably will be his only pre-election trip to the South, received a cheering, tickertape welcome today from hundreds of thousands who lined his motorcade route along Atlanta's famed Peachtree Street.

Upon his arrival the President reiterated his promise of no new taxes, provided congress approves "my tax-proof ceiling on spending."

With his wife, Pat, at his side the President rode from the airport to downtown Atlanta in an open limousine, waving and smiling to the thousands who lined the route.

Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said police Capt. M.A. Hornsby estimated the crowd at 700,000, and said Battalion Fire Chief M.A. Cooper set the figure at 500,000. Both estimates appeared to newsmen to be on the liberal side, but in any event it was the warmest welcome the President has received in his re-election campaign.

Nixon halted his motorcade along Peachtree Street, got out of the car and waded into the crowd pumping hands.

"Hey Richard, give 'em hell," one middle age man shouted. "Keep bumping 'em, We're on God's side."

At one point the President picked up a little girl, who appeared to be about four years old and was dressed in a blue sequined majorette costume, and placed her atop his automobile so photographers could take pictures of her.

"This is the biggest one (crowd) we've had," Nixon enthused, "very warm, very friendly, as Atlanta crowds always are."

Gangster Dies

CHICAGO (UPI) — Paul (The Waiter) Ricca, who muscled his way from taking orders in West Side Chicago beaneries to lead the mob organized by Al Capone, died in a Chicago hospital yesterday of a heart attack. He was 74.

Ricca was a thin, white-haired diabetic who maintained at deportation hearings and crime investigations that he amassed his fortune by playing the horses.

Frank (The Enforcer) Nitti, Capone's top lieutenant, took a liking to the young waiter and introduced tim to the gang hierarchy. When Capone was convicted of income tax evasion, Ricca was ready to share the responsibility with Nitti of leading the gang.

Nitti and Ricca were convicted in 1944 of extorting $2 million from the movie industry. Nitti committed suicide, making Ricca the heir apparent to the Capone empire.

Unrest In Belfast

BELFAST (UPI) — A gunman early today wounded a British soldier, attackers kidnaped a policeman and crowds of Protestants roamed the streets of Belfast, burning down two bars and a factory, an army spokesman said.

In the south, east and downtown areas of the city torn by Roman Catholic-Protestant strife, the smoldering wreckage of cars, buses and Catholic-owned property littered the streets.

Godfathers Envious

PALERMO, Sicily (UPI) — The Godfathers of Sicily met the Godfather of Hollywood and went home slightly envious.

They rattled down from the hills in rumbling old cars. They came with wives and children and spent the equivalent of $2.50 a head for tickets.

"The Godfather" opened in Palermo last night and actor Marlon Brando gave them something to talk about in a city notorious for its own Mafia godfathers.

"Marlon Brando is the envy of all the real godfathers on the island," said a man who knows all the present and past godfathers on the parched land of Sicily.

Robert Ciuno, editor of the newspapr Giornale di Sicilia and who has interviewed most of the men who made Sicily infamous, said: "Our Mafiosi now are greaseballs, small time and have not sense of tradition left."

Music Hall Closed

NEW YORK (UPI) — For the first time since opening its bronze doors 40 years ago, Radio City Music Hall — home of the famed Rockettes — was closed today because of a labor dispute with musicians.

The theater closed last night after the final showing of the Bob Hope film "Cancel My Reservation." Although there were reports the theater would close for good, at least as one of the last centers of live stage entertainment, a theater spokesman said, "I can't see that happening."

The theater said it had offered members of the orchestra a salary raise from $250 to $265 a week overtime. The musicians rejected the offer last night.

Dead At 81

MIAMI (UPI) — Salvatore Falcone, a Miami grocer who the government said was a top participant at the Mafia "summit meeting" in Apalachin, N.Y., in 1957, is dead at the age of 81.

Falcone died Monday, but a local funeral home has refused to divulge any information about his death or the funeral arrangements.

Falcone was described by Mafia informer Joseph Valachi as the man to see in the mob in Utica, N.Y. Valachi fingered Falcone during testimony in 1963 before the Senate Crime Investigating Committee.

Helmets Unsafe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the motorcycle accident death rate rising sharply, the government announced today that almost 90 per cent of the motorcycle helmets tested failed industry safety standards.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) said it conducted 74 tests of 54 different helmets using the safety standards set by the industry's American National Standards Institute. Only eight of the helmets complied with the standards, the safety agency said.

Motorcycle sales in the United States totaled more than 3.3 million in 1971 compared to 1$3 million in 1965. The death toll for the same period rose from 1,515 to 2,300, NHTSA said.

A Firm Stand

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (UPI) — The American Church Union, largest independent Episcopal lay and clerical organization in the nation, adopted a statement yesterday opposing the ordination of women.

Mrs. Philip Hoar of Glendale, Calif., chairwoman of the Anglican Women's Caucus, said, "The attempt to make women into priests is an insult t/the feminine role implicit in creation."

She said the attempt "contributes to the confusion of sexual identity and the breakdown of family life throughout the world."

The statement was adopted during a three-day annual council meeting of the 10,000 member ACU.

Flour Price Hike After Grain Deal

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Citing the recent Russian wheat sale as partial cause, the Price Commission has authorized General Mills to increase the price of its flour sold in supermarkets.

The price increase is 6.55 per cent in the western states and 11.08 per cent in the eastern states.

Other flour makers are expected to request similar price hikes.

General Mills said its costs had gone up due to the higher wheat prices stemming from the Soviet wheat deal and because of added costs for labor, manufacturing and freight.

Cong Push Blamed For GI's Death

SAIGON (UPI)—The new Communist campaign around Saigon claimed its first American life today when a U.S. Army soldier was killed and another wounded in a highway ambush outside the capital, military spokesmen said.

Heavy fighting continued north of Saigon for the sixth day, field reports said. Government troops pushed Viet Cong units out of two hamlets along Highway 13 but were unable to dislodge the Communists from a third.

In other war developments:

Military sources said Communist troops stormed a border ranger outpost Wednesday in the Central Highlands and killed 67 of its mountain tribesman defenders.

A U. S. Navy spokesman, commenting on French and North Vietnames allegations that American warplanes Wednesday bombed the French and Algerian missions in downtown Hanoi, said today that U.S. jets flew their normal daily raids over the North but added: "We have nothing to indicate that any of the bombs were off target." He said he was not sure if any of the planes passed over central Hanoi en route to or from the targets.

U.S. military spokesmen said the damage to the missions may have been caused by errant Communist surface-to-air missiles that fell back to earth. But Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird conceded the missions could have been accidentally bombed and a U.S. command spokesman said the matter "is being looked at very strongly."

The U.S. Command said 21 Americans were killed and 39 wounded in combat last week—the highest weekly U.S. casualty toll in a year. Spokesmen said the U.S. battlefield losses roughly paralleled the week ending Oct. 2, 1971.

Military spokesmen said 21 U.S. B52 bombers dumped 630 tons of explosives on North Vietnam targets in the 24 hours ending at noon today and command communiques showed more than 50 of the big planes unloaded more than 1,500 tons of bombs on suspected Communist troop concentrations in four provinces around Saigon. The closest strike to the capital was 22 miles north of the city, the U.S. Command said.

BOMBING RUN — A South Vietnamese Skyraider makes a bombing run over the hamlet of Huong Phung, 17 miles north of Saigon. Below smoke pours from destroyed buildings. The area is a current target of a new Communist drive. (UPI Telephoto)

Thieu Pledges Fight To End To Halt Coalition

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu said today he would "fight to the end" to prevent the Communists from imposing a coalition government on South Vietnam.

"Those in South Vietnam who want to promote a coalition with the Communists should raise their hands. I am sure the population and the soldiers will not let them live for more than five minutes," Thieu told 25,000 high school and university students.

The crowd at the Republican Stadium in Saigon was the largest ever addressed by Thieu, spokesmen said. The Youth Day ceremonies included a parade by students selected to defend their schools in case of a Communist attack on the capital.

"Recently the colonialists, the Viet Cong henchmen, (the French government) proposed a three-part government," said Thieu. "Once again I say there will not be any three part government that will survive."

"My life is cheap, but my responsibility does not permit me to resign if peace is not restored with guarantees," Thieu said. "That means if the Communist invaders still want to impose a coalition government and impose a Communist ideology, then I will fight to the end."

It was the second time in three weeks that Thieu sharply criticized the French government for backing the Communist coalition government plan.

IRS Will Help The Little Guy

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —An ordinary citizen should not have to hire anyone to make out his income tax form for him, so next year the Internal Revenue Service is going to help taxpayers more itself, IRS Commissioner Johnnie M. Walters said Wednesday.

"We haven't bee providing enough service for taxpayers so next year we'll provide more," he said.

During the tax season, he said, IRS offices will be open at night and on Saturdays, each district will have a toll-free number that taxpayers can call to get free advice, and every office will have a computer terminal tied into a data bank that will allow it to call up the taxpayer's returns from previous years to answer questions.

"We don't believe the average American taxpayer should have to pay to have his individual return done," Walters said.

He said these new services will be for private citizens, not businesses.

He spoke to the Institute on Federal Taxation sponsored by the University of Southern California.

The IRS is trying to as diligently as it can to simplify tax forms and thus reduce the need for professional tax preparers, he said, "But as long as we have complex tax laws the tax return forms will have some complexities."

In a survey of 3,200 tax prepares, "over half" made out returns in a manner "unacceptable" to the IRS, Walters said, and the scrutiny given the industry will continue next year.

New computer-assisted audits are enabling the IRS to take a closer look at corporate returns, he said. "We are substantially along the way with a pilot program of industrywide audits...The computer saves us immense amounts of time and is allowing us to make some progress toward faster audits."

San Rafael Patrolmen Dismissed

Two San Rafael patrolmen have been fired for "dishonesty and failure of good behavior," Police Chief Joseph J. Brusatori announced today.

Bursatori said the charges stem in part from an incident in which officers Gary A. Gee and James W. Jackson signed credit sheets claiming they had attended police-community relations classes from which in fact they had not.

A third officer, Theodore C. Lindquist, involved only in the class incident, has been suspended without pay for 13 days, the chief said.

Gee a two-year veteran of the force, is also charged with violation of police department rules and regulations and willful disobedience.

Brusatori, calling the charges "very serious," said the two officers were fired Friday after a week-long investigation sparked by a tipster within the department.

Brusatori said both men have appealed their dismissal to the city's board of review, which will hear the case within a month.

He said a fourth officer, Arthur E. Myers, has been suspended for a month without pay for insubordination stemming from another, unrelated incident.

Busing Policy Dies In Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A tough, House-passed bill to curb busing of school children died in the Senate today, victim of opposition of northern liberals.

The Senate refused for the third straight day to impose restrictions on debate and the bill was then laid aside, clearing away a major bottleneck toward adjournment of Congress this weekend.

Dixie forces hoping to push the antibusing measure through prior to adjournment failed by nine votes to win the necessary two-thirds majority to choke off debate —just as they fell short on two previous tries to keep northerners from using the Senate filibuster rule to talk the bill to death.

They then lost again when Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield won 59-26 approval of a motion to shelve the bill.

Antibusing forces, spearheaded by deep South senators and backed by President Nixon mustered majorities both Tuesday and Wednesday to impose the Senate's rarely used gag rule. But each day they were 10 votes shy of the needed two-thirds margin required by the rules to invoke cloture.

Pro busing forces were weighing the possibility of more parliamentary skirmishing to keep the bill alive, but they realized they had been beaten and weren't expected to try the Senate's patience much longer.

"If we were close, I'd be going all out to scrape up the votes," one antibusing leader said. "But everybody wants to go home and we may start losing the votes we have if we push it too far."

Both sides believed the bill would pass if it ever came to a vote —bouyed by the support of senators from some northern and border states where busing has become a hot issue.

The measure would forbid busing as a device to desegregate schools except as a last resort, and then only as far as the second nearest school to a student's home.

It would also permit local school districts now under court desegregation orders to seek to have their cases reopened and decided afresh according to the terms of the bill.

Backers contended this would respond effectively to the "overwhelming majority" of parents of both races who polls show want busing ended. But foes argued it would wipe out the desegregation gains of the last two decades and renew racial hostilities.

Stealing a page from southerners who used the filibuster tactic successfully in the past to block civil rights laws, northern liberals set out to talk the bill to death when it was brought before the Senate last Friday.

Novato Adds To Impact Report Criteria List

The Novato City Council last night added four criteria to the 12 adopted Tuesday for exemption of development projects from requirement of environmental impact reports.

The council also exempted 10 projects under way or in the late stage of planning.

It set a special meeting for 8 p.m. Oct. 26 to decide whether 26 others require impact reports as a result of the recent state Supreme Court ruling that any development with more than trivial significance furnish such a report prior to approval.

The council voted 4-1 with Councilman George C. Quesada dissenting, to exempt the following categories of projects from requirement of an environmental impact report:

1. All structures approved by appropriate city agencies and departments and already granted building permits.

2. All permitted structures on which construction has started.

3. Any project which the city attorney says has acquired vested rights as defined in the courts.

4. All projects approved by the city and awaiting only the issuance of grading, encroachment and/or building permits prior to last night.

The city council unanimously decreed that any project the planning director is uncrtain about can be referred to the council by the planning director for its decision as to the need for an impact report.

The Novato City Council also:

APARTMENTS — Asked City Atty. Clark M. Palmer to investigate and decide whether International Concrete Systems Consultants Inc. had a vested right in constructing 32 apartments on the south side of Rowland Boulevard between Leatwood Drive and South Novato Boulevard. If he finds that the firm has the vested rights in the filling and grading already done, then it may proceed. If not, it must file environmental impact information with the city staff which must write the report.

DIABLO TRIANGLE — Referred back to the planning commission plans for two four-story apartment houses, one of 57 units and one of 83 units proposed for the Diablo Triangle, east of Diablo Avenue south of Warner Creek, for international Concrete Systems Consultants Inc.

BROWN ACT — Heard a report from Palmer that he did not feel it necessary to inform the press 24 hours ahead of any special meeting with the city council on an attorney-client basis. Mayor F. Wayne Sartain said that the council would like to comply with the Brown Act so courtesy notices would be sent to the press.

CLOSED — Went into closed session at 12:30 a.m. to accept the resignation of James Gordon from the planning commission as he has been transfered to Sacramento. The council asked that all persons interested in serving on the commiseion apply at the city hall. Interviews with applicants will start at 9 a.m., Oct. 28.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned at 12:45 a.m. until 8 p.m. Oct. 24.

ment, and a 23-mile strip of all privately-owned undeveloped land in West Marin from the Golden Gate to Olema, excluding Olema, Bolinas, Stinson Beach and Muir Beach.

Recreation area lands in San Francisco would include Aquatic Park, Marina Green and Yacht Harbor, Lincoln Park, Land's End, Seal Rocks, Sutro Heights Park, Ocean Beach, Fort Funston, Maritime State Historical Park, Baker's Beach State Park, Phelan Beach State Park, Seal Rocks State Park, a 62-acre portion of the Presidio coastlands, Fort Point National Historic Site and Alcatraz Island.

The bill effectively put an end to the eight-year controversy over the future of Marincello, a 2,138-acre area of the Marin headlands where developer Thomas Frouge and Gulf Oil Co. had proposed to create a new city of 25,000 population. The land is included in the recreation area.

The recreation area bill reached the House floor after 7:30 p.m. yesterday, presented by Rep. Wayne Aspinall, D-Colo., chairman of the Interior Committee. Mailliard and Burton coupled urgings for the bill's passange with tributes to Aspinall, who is retiring at the end of this session after failing to win renomination in the June primary. The House passed the bill by voice vote at 8:05 p.m.

Green Light On Shed Purchase

Nicasio School District trustees last night approved purchase of a new storage shed for playground and gardening equipment at a cost of $350.

Installation of the shed is expected within a week, according to district clerk and vice president Marie S. Rogers.

A scheduled discussion of tax rates and assessed valuation comparisons was not held.

Absentee Ballot Deadline Oct. 31

Marin and Sonoma County voters must file for absentee ballots for the Nov. 7 general election before 5 p.m. Oct. 31, according to elections officials in both counties.

Applications may be made in person or by writing the county clerk's office in Santa Rosa or the elections office in Marin Civic Center. Voters should include a brief explanation of their need for an absentee ballot.

Those not physically able to go to a polling place may also receive absentee ballots.

SPRAY

needed to support aquatic life. The end result is a speedy "death" of the body of water.

The film warned that "clean, fresh water is in danger of running out."

The 10-year test, it said, had proven that such a system can be operated without odors and without sewage residue. The wastewater "can be made as right as rain by percolation through the soil."

No harmful effects have been found in crops, trees or wildlife, according to the film.

The system also can rejuvenate the ability of "dead" soil, such as from areas denuded by strip mining, to grow plants again, it added.

It would take about 130 acres of spray fields to handle wastewater from a town of 10,000 persons, according to the university research.

Lammi acknowledged that catching rainwater so that it does not carry contamination from the spray fields to other areas would "create some problems" that still are under study.

Another corps official, John Winn, said the system, despite its price tag of up to $5.3 billion for the 12 Bay Area and Delta counties, would provide the equivalent of tertiary sewage treatment at less cost than conventional treatment. "Soils are built for it," he said of the reuse system.

He suggested that "tree farming is a strong possibility" on slopes unsuitable for other crops.

Winn said "those in Marin think Yolo County is a great place" to put the system, while people in Yolo think the same of Marin.

Marty Kent Jones cautioned that while the system could be "a dairyman's dream or a lumberman's dream, it may not be my dream." She said she preferred to see West Marin's "golden hills" remain as they are.

Winn, however, offered visions of using the system to create waterfalls, marshes and ponds clean enough to swim in.

He stressed that it will be up to the state to consider building such a system, and that the corps would not be involved in its construction.

RAIN

grapes from his young, six-acre vineyard before the storm. Sonoma County grape growers either completed their harvests before the rain, or had no more than 10 per cent of the crop left to pick, the Wine Institute reported in San Francisco.

Flooding of manholes and underground vaults in San Francisco, Pacifica and elsewhere on the Peninsula yesterday knocked out telephones in the financial district and intermittently blacked out the Municipal Railway and homes in the Westlake area.

Warehouses full of poverty war foodstuffs were damaged when Colma Creek flooded over its banks, and thousands of commuters were late to work yesterday due to high waters that closed the Bayshore Freeway, the Posey Tube in Oakland and other thoroughfares.

One elderly San Franciscan drowned when surging waters knocked him down and trapped him under a parked car; two persons were killed in East Bay traffic accidents blamed on the storm.

North of the Golden Gate, the rainfall measurements for the past 24 hours varied widely. Novato reported 1.17 inch of rain at the 8 a.m. reading, bringing the three-day total to 2.65 inches. Petaluma listed .89 inch; Bolinas 1.92; Tamalpais Valley 1.10; Mill Valley, .89; Sausalito, .52; Belvedere .41, and San Rafael at midmorning had a total of one inch since yesterday noon.

Federal forecasters predicted a 40 per cent chance of rain tonight, and 30 per cent chance for tomorrow.

Vacant Building Will Be Burned

One of the vacant buildings at the Hilarita Housing Project will be burned to the ground tomorrow and Saturday by Tiburon firemen practicing their fire fighting techniques.

The fire department has scheduled controlled blazes starting at 6 p.m. tomorrow nd again at 5 p.m. Saturday.

The firemen will kindle the barracks-like structure — which was originally designed for naval net depot workers during World War II — then practice their initial attack procedures, hosing techniques and forced entries. The barracks will be doused with diesel fuel and ignited time after time, according to fire department Lt. John Grbac.

arrived in Atlanta for what probably will be his only pre-election trip to the South, Nixon urged speedy Senate approval of his $250-billion lid on government spending this year.

"It should be emphasized that my tax-proof ceiling on spending would not be a pinch-penny approach to government," Nixon said. "A quarter of a trillion dollars is a lot of dollars, a sum that would permit continued generous federal financing of all worth programs—such as Atlanta's rapid transit system."

Nixon said Saturday he would permit no tax increase in the full four years of the second term he is seeking if Congress enacts no "budget busting" spending increases over his veto.

ENGINEERING SCHOOL

New Formula Works For All Concerned

By KENNETH G. GEHRET
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WORCESTER, Mass. — No required courses — no failing grades — no rigid time requirement for a degree.

Is this an avant-garde liberal-arts college? No, an engineering-science center, Worcester Polytechnic Institute (WPI).

Until the WPI Plan was adopted last year, Worcester Polytech was one of a dozen or so fine engineering schools that operate separately from universities. There wasn't a great deal of difference between WPI and the rest. Apart from location and possible personal ties, a student interested in the field might well have made his choice by saying eenie, meenie, minie, mo.

But no longer. WPI now offers a distinctive difference.

Freshmen entering the college last fall could select the traditional program or the WPI plan. Eighty per cent chose the latter. This meant greater freedom to develop, with adviser assistance, an individually tailored program; self-paced study; more emphasis on the humanities; and, this year and later, learning principally through tutorials and projects, off campus as well as on.

To offer concentrated study of fewer subjects at a time, the calendar is divided into seven-week terms. Another feature is cooperation with business, industry and government for on-site internships.

For graduation, credit hours are now meaningless. Demonstrated competency, through projects and examinations, is the key to a degree. And while most students will probably spend four years at WPI, as in the past, they have the option of going through in three or up to five, according to ability and work load desired.

On the way they will receive course grades of "acceptable," "acceptable with distinction," or "not acceptable." The last is not equated with failure and will not be entered on a student's transcript. Shown there, in addition to one of the two acceptable designations, will be a description of qualifying projects carried out by the student, comments by his faculty supervisor, and an evaluation of his performance.

By the fall of 1974, the entire student body will be on the new plan.

George W. Hazzard, president, explains the drastic shift as WPI this way: "We seek to educate people, not just train or inform them. Education is not measured solely by facts learned and data stored. In our view an educated person is able to cope with changes in his environment. He is able to learn by himself, to think for himself, to analyze and deal with problems in a realistic and feasible manner. He recognizes pis personal capabilities and limitations, and he is aware of the rewards and possible disappointments involved if he makes a maximum effort.

"Finally, he is sensitive to people, to personal interactions, and he is able to communicate with the society around him."

This last point is not a tacked-on postscript. WPI has expanded its humanities offerings. If the student majors in engineering or the sciences, he is normally expected to take a minor in the humanities. Or he may major in the humanities, with a minor in engineering or science.

The purpose of the WPI Plan, according to Dr. Hazzard, is "to foster the education of technical humanists who will be able to deal with contemporary needs."

This empahsis at Worcester Polytech is seen in more than the strengthening of the humanities; it is evident too within the engineering courses.

Civil engineering, recently the least popular curriculum in the engineering field, is now second in enrollment at WPI. The reason is that this program now extends beyond bridge-building and the related traditional focus to embrace environmental problems and urban planning.

In the past two years, engineering schools have experineced an overall drop of 40 per cent in freshman enrollment, Dr. Hazzard says. He sees two principal reasons for this:

"First, student disenchantment with the effects of technology. Technology is not solving the problems of society. Many are going into sociology instead.

"Second, unemployment in aerospace and related industries. The economic incentive is missing."

Despite the slump in engineering enrollment nationally, WPI has held its own. It has as large a student body as it wants and can accommodate, about 2,000. This includes a growing number of women, who were admitted for the first time four years ago. About 100 are on campus this fall.

Dr. Hazzard views the college's new philosophy of education as a factor in drawing students.

"What we're trying to do has attracted technically oriented people who want to contribute, applying their learning to human problems," he comments. "The opportunity to tailor a program to their own needs is another strong incentive, students tell us."

The WPI Plan was developed over a two-year period through a self-evaluation of the institution by administrator-faculty-student study and discussion. A clean break with the past was recommended and accepted. The college was getting into financial trouble, but this was not the motivating factor in the self-study, Dr. Hazzard claims.

The effect, however, does show up in the accounting ledgers.

Three years ago WPI sustained a $400,000 deficit for the year on a $10 million budget. The following year the shortage dropped to $60,000. And this past year the college was in the black.

Several factors are responsible for the turnaround. But Dr. Hazzard is convinced that new emphasis at WPI deserves a large share of the credit for improved finances, as well as for a more dynamic and effective program.

Suspect Will Go To Trial

A Marin Municipal Court judge has ruled there is enough evidence to try Timothy Mark O'Brien, 21, of San Rafael, on a felony count of concealing stolen property. The judge bound him over to superior court.

Judge Peter Allen Smith ordered O'Brien to appear in the higher court Oct. 26.

O'Brien was arrested in August in Mill Valley after police thought his car looked like one reportedly involved in a burglary. In the car police allegedly found two pistols stolen in a Sausalito burglary Aug. 3.

O'Brien also is charged with carrying a concealed weapon without a permit, a misdemeanor.

FRIENDLY VISIT — Nurse Margaret Pearmain chats cheerfully with patient Albert Cheetham as she takes care of him in his San Rafael apartment. Mrs. Pearmain is on her daily rounds as a nurse for Marin Home Care Inc., a seven-year-old nonprofit corporation.

MARIN HOME CARE INC.

Daily Rounds Outside Hospital

By MARY LEYDECKER

"Reno for New Year's — that's our goal and we're going to make it," the cheerful nurse said as she deftly changed the dressing on her patient's skin grafts.

For some weeks nurse Margaret Pearmain has been a three times-a-week visitor to the tiny, immaculate San Rafael apparment of Albert Cheetham. So she has learned that Cheetham's greatest desire is to be well enough by New Year's to join "my golfing buddies" in an annual trek to Nevada for the holiday.

Mrs. Pearmain's conversation with the 66-year Cheetham, whose plans to play lots of golf after he retired were marred by a series of operations for shingles, was typical of her day.

As a nurse for Marin Home Care Inc., she dispenses medicines, checks pulses and blood pressures, gives bed baths and listens to patients' hopes and fears as she makes her rounds.

Mrs. Pearmain is one of six registered nurses who along with "home health aides" provide "hospital care in the home" for hundreds of Marin residents each year.

The nonprofit corporation was formed in 1965, according to executive director Patricia Ferjancsik, after a survey showed a crying need in the county for a comprehensive home care service.

Most of the patients are on Medicare, but others' fees are paid for by insurance or the Veterans Administration.

The $14-a-visit charge for nurses is high, she readily admits, but Mrs. Ferjancsik said the fee is among the lowest for such service in the Bay Area, "and we never turn anyone down," she added.

This explains why Home Care runs at a deficit and is currently looking for some outside financing, she said.

Services provided are as varied as the sick people of Marin.

Cheetham, the avid golfer, still needs care three times a week, but he's getting better and eventually won't need any home visits. His cheerful apartment looks only a little like a sickroom — there are medicines on a bedside table and a list of instructions from the doctor posted on his refrigerator.

In addition to his visiting nurse, Cheetham has a "companion who comes in and cooks dinner and eats with me," in an effort to put back the 60 pounds he lost during his illness.

This kind of help at a reasonable cost is the hardest item to find in Marin, Mrs. Ferjancsik said. There are agencies which provide homemakers, but they are expensive. So Home Care calls churches and schools in order to find such persons at a reasonable cost.

"We'd like to add this (homemaking) to our services but we can't find any way in Marin to do it at a reasonable cost," she said.

Nurse Pearmain's next patient, 87-year-old Lela Hill, who has a snug home in a flat over a downtown Mill Valley laundromat, is one of the lucky ones, the nurse said.

"She has the most wonderful roomers who help her out," Mrs. Pearmain said.

Mrs. Hill whose heart condition is stabilized by twice-a-week injections, has two roomers who moved along with her from another Mill Valley flat two years ago.

One takes her pulse each morning, the nurse explained, and they both run errands and help her with housework.

Mrs. Hill, a very perky woman, said with a smile that she now sees the doctor only "when I get the notion."

Other patients seen by Home Care nurses are not so fortunate.

Sometimes they are couples, clinging to life together, struggling with old age, illness and financial problems in a situation that seems hopeless to outsiders.

Others are like a much younger Mill Valley man, Mrs. Ferjancsik said, a cancer victim who prefers to spend the last months of his life in his comfortable home with his wife and children around him.

For him, a health home aide (a trained woman but not a registered nurse) is provided daily along with a nurse, allowing his wife to take care of the children's other household needs.

"We can take care of some pretty sick people," Mrs. Ferjanesik said.

Most of the Home Care nurses, chosen for their maturity among other things, work only mornings because patients prefer to have their visits in the morning. As the work load varies, however, Mrs. Ferjancsik said, nurses' hours can be adjusted.

Mrs. Ferjancsik's main concern now, with the nursing care running smoothly, is to find homemakers at a reasonable cost.

"The cost is so high for people on fixed incomes," she said, adding that low cost housekeeping services would help keep many older persons out of convalescent homes.

Warrant Out In Pot Case

A Marin Superior Court judge has issued a bench warrant for the arrest of a 24-year-old San Diego resident who failed to appear for sentencing on a felony charge of having marijuana and having a loaded gun without a permit, a misdemeanor.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner Tuesday ordered John Edward Christensen arrested and held without bail although public defender Harold J. Truett said Christensen called to say he wasn't coming.

Christensen was arrested by San Rafael police Feb. 16 after he stopped in a no-stopping zone to pick up a hitchhiker, according to police.

20-Year-Old Will Enter Program

A Marin Superior Court judge has ordered Thomas Wade Ayers, 20, of Lagunitas to serve six months in jail for passing bad checks, but told him he can spend the time on a methadone program instead of locked up.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner placed the youth on five years probation Tuesday and ordered him to pay for 22 checks totaling $460 which his bank account didn't have sufficient funds to pay.

Ayers was charged with writing a $346 check at the Music Shoppe in San Rafael on May 20. His probation officer said he bought a color television set and promply sold it for $100 to buy heroin.

The judge also ordered Ayers to undergo biweekly drug testing.

The district attorney recommended that the youth be sent to the California Rehabilitation Center, but Judge Gardiner said the methadone program at Marin Open House would probably be more beneficial.

Report Of Health Care Deficiencies

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A state Senate committee was told yesterday there are serious deficiencies in the health care offered by some of California's 541 hospitals, but the state and the medical profession have done little about it.

Thomas G. Moore Jr., director of a health research association affiliated with the state's major unions, charged that state agencies treat hospitals with "benign neglect" — almost never revoking hospital licenses even if care is shoddy.

He said private agencies such as the California Medical Association and the Joint Commission on Accredition of Hospitals have refused to make their findings public, denying patients the tools to judge which hospitals deliver competent care.

Moore, representing the California Council for Health Plan Alternatives, listed 18 deficiencies found in at least 17 and as many as 44 california hospitals.

The deficiencies included:

—Physicians without California license admitting and operating on patients.

—Physicians with false credentials allowed to perform surgery without any effort made to check the credentials.

—Hospitals which perform exhaustive chemical tests on patients even when the diagnosis indicates no need for tests, resulting in the bilking of insurance and Medi-Cal programs.

—Hospitals which pay "bounties for patients funneled to them by salesmen."

Moore, a top health official under Gov. Edmund G. Brown's administration, called on the legislature to give power to the state to closely scrutinize hospitals.

He said his information was second-hand but that it came from reliable sources, including many doctors, patients, insurance companies and hospital employes.

Dr. Lois Lillick, deputy director of the state Public Health Department, agreed that "many violations" do occur in hospitals but that the state was doing little to insure quality health care.

Asked if she would enter a hospital for treatment on the basis of her department's granting of license to the hospital, she replied, "No."

She said her department was understaffed and mainly reviewed the "physicial facilities" of a hospital before giving a state license, not the quality of care.

Under new state regulations, hospitals treating welfare patients can only be paid if they are approved b the CMA and the JCAH.

However, the two medical associations have no power to close a hospital if it does not meet its professional standards. Nor can the public find out which hospitals fail to meet the CMA standards and why, Moore charged.

Sen. Anthony C. Beilenson, D-Beverly Hills, chairman of Senate Health and Welfare Committee, said he would favor legislation giving the state more power to regulate hospitals and more qualified staff members to enforce the regulations.

Headline Switch

Due to an error, headlines on page 40 of yesterday's Independent-Journal were transposed on two articles, one concerning a ceiling on federal spending and the other on abortion debate in a Texas court.

Ortho Mattress Company

from Super Dreams to Super Values

Ortho started in Los Angeles many years ago with a single retail outlet. Today Ortho employs many hndreds of people, operates a retail chain of nearly 50 stores throughout the nation, and manufactures their own mattresses, box springs, convertible sofas, corner groups and adjustable beds in their own factories. Because Ortho sells direct to the public from their own factories — through their own stores, with no middlemen, they are able to produce a high-quality product at substantial savings. This savings they pass on to their customers in the form of far lower costs on their complete line of every way to sleep. Millions of happy Ortho customers confirm that this is a great way to run a business.

The Originators of the Ortho-Pak

First it was the King, then the Queen, and finally Ortho's famous Round Bed started a demand for special-sized bedding. Ortho, the specialists, met this demand. They didn't sell this custom-sized bedding. They included it — as a special bonus, in their low price. Ortho, the originators, created their famous Ortho-Pak, an extra bonus with every King or Queen they sell. The Ortho-Pak includes: Fieldcrest No-Iron King or Queen-size Top Sheet • Fieldcrest No-Iron King or Queen-Fitted Bottom Sheet • 2 Fieldcrest No-Iron King or Queen-size Pillow Cases • with 2 King or Queen-size Bolster Pillows • King or Queen-size Mattress Pad • King or Queen-size Metal Frame on Easy-Roll casters.

and the Double Bonus

The innovators of the Ortho-Pak then went even further. They offered valuable extras with every bed set they sold. Now Ortho's customers receive accessories with every size bed set. Included at Ortho's famous low price. Small wonder so many people today sleep on Ortho mattresses. Ortho called this new bonus the Double Bonus, because they included not just one item, but two! Here's what the Double Bonus includes: With every King or Queen, in addition to the Ortho-Pak, Ortho customers receive a handsome padded vinyl headboard and an elegant quilted bedspread. Those who buy an Ortho Twin or Full size bed set get a headboard and a metal frame on Easy-Roll Casters. Round Bed buyers are given a full-fashioned top sheet and a fitted bottom sheet.

Four-Letter Words Elevated

LONDON (UPI)—A dictionary often quoted as the authority on the Queen's English has included for the first time Anglo-Saxon four-letter words.

It posed a problem for the Oxford English Dictionary's publicist, Elizabeth Knight, who could not bring herself to utter one of the more explicit expletives included in the first volume of a supplement to the dictionary published today.

"Among the new words appear ancient words once considered too gross and vulgar to be given countenance in the decent environment of a dictionary," said an advance press release on the 1,356-page volume (A to G).

Asked what some of the words were (the press release didn't say), Miss Knight carefully spelled one out.

"You do hesitate to say it," she said.

She said the dictionary defines the word as a "transitive verb: to copulate," and traces its earliest recorded written use to a 16th Century Scottish poet named Dunbar who included a variation of the expletive in his prose.

The release said the word is among a "wide range of other colloqial and coarse expressions referring to sexual and excretory functions" in the supplement.

Miss Knight said the supplement's main purpose was to update the Oxford Dictionary, first published in 1884 and widely quoted in British law courts as the authority on the language. But she said it was not necessarily to sanction the use of four-letter words.

"The editors don't presume to judge," she said. "They recorded what appears in writing whereas the Victorian editors were inclined to act as censors."

For the drug culture, the first volume includes such words as "grass: marijuana." It works up a thirst with "Coca Cola", "bender", and "booze", salutes a bygone age of "bebop" and "boogie woogie", recalls the "doughboy" of World War I fame and marvels at it all with "gee whiz."

To help define "finger," the volume records for posterity this quote from Prince Philip, Queen Elizabeth's husband, who was urging fellow Britons to greater economic endeavor: "It is about time we pulled our fingers out."

The press release describes the volume (others covering the remainder of the alphabet will be published later) as a "happy hunting ground for browsers."

But not, Miss Knight said, one for four-letter-word addicts.

'It's an expensive book ($37.50, Oxford University Press) and nobody is going to get a cheap thrill out of reading definitions of words they've heard many times," she said.

Inmates End 22-Hour Rebellion

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Fifty prisoners at the District of Columbia Jail ended a 22-hour rebellion early today by releasing 11 hostages in return for some reforms and a pledge of no reprisals.

During the uprising, Kenneth L. Hardy, director of the city's jails, suffered an apparent heart attack in a court house where the prisoners who seized him had taken him. Before collapsing, Hardy signed a statement in which he said, "There will be no reprisals of any kind."

There were two injuries. One hostage was cut on the head when he was taken prisoner and one inmate was cut on the arm by glass. The prisoners broke windows in a brief flurry of vandalism early in the uprising.

One of the released guards told newsmen, "They treated us well. They treated us like men. They gave us food and cigarettes."

Rep. Shirley Chisholm, DN.Y., who acted as an intermediary between the rebellious prisoners and officials, said, "They were prepared to die. They don't have much faith in people any more."

"We will do it over again and again until somebody dies and they will say we were serious," William Brown, convicted of armed robbery, had told the judge who ordered one immediate reform and allowed public defenders to listen to the inmates' grievances.

One of the main grievances was the length of time prisoners had to spend in the jail between the time of their arrest and trial. Mrs. Chisholm said some of them had been there 16 months without trial.

Fifty inmates overcame guards shortly after midnight Tuesday and took over Cell Block One of the ancient jail 19 blocks from the Capitol. When Hardy came to talk to the rebels he too was grabbed and told, "You're a prisoner." Some of the men, holding a pistol to Hardy's head, threatened to kill him if they were not allowed to walk out of the jail immediately. "We don't want to be locked up. We want to be in open space, man," an inmate shouted.

Hardy, however, appeared at the negotiating table on the same side with the prisoners. Six of the prisoners, with Hardy in tow, were taken before U.S. District Judge William B. Bryant.

In the hearing room, Hardy collapsed and was taken to a nearby hospital where officials said he was in satisfactory condition after an apparent heart attack.

Aid In Tule Fog Driving Announced

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Motorists braving the dreaded Tule fog along California 99 in the Central Valley may get help this year from electronic alerting devices.

The California Department of Public Works said yesterday that three types of devices would be installed on an experimental basis.

Tule fog is different from the rolling coastal type fog. Highway officials say — just barely tongue in cheek — that Tule fog is so thick and sudden "it comes out of the ground."

When it does, chain-reaction accidents sometimes pile up 20 to 100 or more vehicles.

The California Highway Patrol has in recent years put "Operation Fogbound" into play from Stockton south past Fresno. All traffic is stopped on the edge of the fog, and patrol cars escort it through at a constant speed.

Last year, said the Department of Public Works, there were 377 per cent more fog hours on the road than previously. During one spell of it, 57 vehicles piled up, five of them burning.

In 1969, 270 vehicles were involved in fog-caused accidents leaving eight persons dead and 79 badly injured. In 1968, 297 motorists were involved, with three dead and 93 serious injuries.

James A. Moe, state public works director, said one of the warning devices will be set up this year at the Lathrop Road interchange. It is a "transmissometer" developed by Lear-Siegler, Inc., of Denver, and it is designed to detect and measure the reduction in visibility.

Another in the Manteca area, made by the Soladyne Co. of San Diego, consists of a laser beam that can measure fog density in one-mile segments up to three miles on either side.

Moe said both can activate fog warning signs, to be installed near French Camp Road and Moffat Boulevard.

A suitable site is being sought for the third sensor, developed by Aero-Vironment, Inc., of Pasadena, Moe said.

Last year, a machine to "tunnel through" the fog was sent to the scene, the CHP reported. It was a truck which issued a fine spray, the droplets of which were electrically charged positively or negatively — the opposite of the charge of the droplets of the fog. But by the time it reached its destination, the Tule fog was over for the season.

Shoplifter Walks Off With Goods

A shoplifter collected $35 worth of men's clothes at Penney's in San Rafael yesterday and — when suspicious employees wrapped up the merchandise and demanded payment — calmly picked up the bag and walked out the door.

"It was awfully strange," said assistant manager Jim Christensen.

"He was being observed by several people because he looked a little shifty. Finally one of the girls got him over to the register, and a couple others started bagging the merchandise. When asked to pay for it, he just picked up the bag and walked out the door," he said.

Police were called immediately, but the suspect, described by witnesses as about 6 feet tall and about 28 years old, got away on foot.

Long, Long Train

NEW YORK (UPI)—The merger that created Burlington Northern gave the new railroad 113,000 freight cars—enough to make a train that would stretch the 1,000 miles from New York City to Davenport, Iowa. Capacity of the fleet is 7 million tons.

Parents: Stick To Dogs, Cats For Your Children

DENVER (UPI) — Parents looking for a pet for their youngsters should stick to dogs and cats. Such "status symbol pets" as boa constrictors, chimpanzees and skunks are just too dangerous, health officials said Wednesday.

"If I had my way, I would make it unethical for a veterinarian to de-scent a skunk," said Dr. Richard Parker, chief veterinarian with the National Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta, Ga.

Parker told delegates to the 96th annual meeting of the American Humane Association that people who have skunks de-scented for pets are taking a dangerous risk.

A skunk owner should be just as concerned about the origin of the pet as about the smell, he said. Parker said many skunks offered for sale may be the offspring of mothers infected by rabies and the disease may have been passed on to the young.

"With an exception here and there, rabies kills everything it infects," he said.

Dr. Martin Baum of the Colorado Health Department sid the sale of skunks is forbidden in his state. He said his department is working to ban importation and distribution of "so-called subhuman primates" or monkeys.

Monkeys endanger human health because they can carry tuberculosis, "Monkey B" virus, the food poisoning virus salmonella and rabies, he said.

The first case of chimpanzee rabies reported in the United States was found in Georgia.

"These animals are coming into the country, being sold in pet stores and are going into homes where children particularly are being exposed to them," he said.

"The people that buy them don't realize exactly what they are buying for themselves and their youngsters, and this is the reason that we have such profound concern about them."

Barbier Due Heart Surgery

San Rafael Councilman Harry A. Barbier will undergo open heart surgery in Presbyterian Hospital in San Francisco next Thursday.

The 50-year-old Barbier said doctors recommended the operation to correct a defective valve he has had since birth.

Barbier, in good spirits, said he expected to be released from the hospital within 10 days after surgery. He will be admitted to the facility on Monday.

FIGHTING CHANCE

Five-year-old Christy Malley of Rockford, Ill., who was born with "half a heart" — a rudimentary right ventricle which normally pumps impure blood to the lungs for purification — has been given a good chance for a normal life following a new operation recently in Chicago. A surgical-medical team at Cook County Hospital supplied the missing half by creating a pump out of a heart chamber to receive blood.

No Military Aid Bill This Session

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress will not pass a bill for military aid to foreign nations this year but probably will give the program enough money to survive until next year when the new Congress convenes.

Senate and House conferees broke off negotiations on the issue Wednesday. Their action ended all chances of enacting a military aid bill before Congress adjourns.

Negotiators deadlocked hopelessly on two Senate-passed provisions to require the administration to submit executive agreements to the Senate as treaties. One involved a pact with Portugal on military bases in the Azores, while the other amendment would have required all future agreements on overseas bases to be submitted as treaties.

Gold 'Free Market' Spurs 12 Miners

DEADWOOD, Calif. (UPI)—A crew of 12 men, spurred by the $65 an ounce "free market" price of gold, is working near this Northern California ghost town to reopen the historic Brown Bear mine.

The mine, which has about 20 miles of tunnels, produced $35 million in gold in its heyday. The town, built in 1899, was abandoned as gold veins gave out.

Tighter Belt Seen On Expenses, Travel

A new very strict expense and travel policy will be presented to the Tamalpais High School District board Monday night by trustee Jerrold M. Ladar.

The policy was reportedly drafted and put on the agenda for the 8 p.m. meeting in the Redwood High School faculty lounge after trustees saw a list of conferences district employees wanted to attend this year.

The Tamalpais High School District spent more than $100,000 on substitute teachers in the 1971-72 school year, although only $26,000 had been budgeted, said Ladar. Much of the expense was incurred by rescheduling classes for faculty activities away from the schools.

Ladar's draft policy, modeled on the federal government's, was presented to the district's management council Tuesday afternoon, where it met an angry reception.

The management council, composed of administrators, teachers and students, felt the proposed policy was "much too restrictive" said a member.

It requires advance permission from department chairmen, the superintendent and the board of trustees before employees go to outside activities.

It also requires a statement on the educational benefits accruing from anyone's attendance.

Ladar said he has included a requirement that applications to go to conferences or seminars or workshops in school hours must include the cost of employing a substitute. A need for more than two people to go to any one event must also be demonstrated.

Monday's board meeting was to have been devoted to discussion on the schools' foreign language program, but Ladar and board chairman Robert W. Corlett insisted the expense policy be considered.

At last Monday's board meeting trustees talked about a proposed policy but took no action, instructing district staff to keep working on it.

Ladar told the Independent-Journal that he and Corlett felt "we have to take action promptly, and we are just going to have to monitor every conference."

Lyndon Steals Show From Bird

STONEWALL, Tex. (UPI)—Former President Lyndon B. Johnson tried to help his wife Lady Bird Wednesday at her highway beautification awards program, but ended up stealing the show.

Mrs. Johnson had arranged for a narrated color slide showing of Texas highway beautification projects, but when the show started the sound system failed to work. "Liz, you'd better get back thre," the ruddy-faced former president said to Liz Carpenter, Mrs. Johnson's former press secretary. As Mrs. Carpenter tinkered with the microphone, Johnson called out, "Louder, louder!"

Water District Acts On Environmental Guidelines

Like hundreds of public agencies across the state, the Marin Municipal Water District board yesterday adopted interim guidelines to determine which projects require environmental impact studies before they can be acted upon.

The board agreed projects that are already under way and that will consume less than six acre-feet of water annually will generally be considered of trivial impact upon the environment.

New projects which consume less than one acre foot of water will also be considered trivial, the board decided.

The average single-family house consumes about half n acre-foot of water annually, according to a water district spokesman.

At the other end of the spectrum, the board agreed that projects which will consume more than 30 acre-feet of water a year would routinely be required to submit impact studies.

As a result of a recent state Supreme Court ruling, environmental impact studies are required for both private and public construction projects which are likely to have more than trivial effect on the environment.

If a project requires an impact study, the board decided, it will usually be prepared by a private consultant who is hired by the water district and paid by the prospective developer.

After establishing its rough guidelines and admitting it had left "a large grey area" between those projects it holds clearly trivial and those it holds obviously significant, the board immediately tested its new poicy.

In four quick decisions, it ruled that four different developments already under way are of trivial impact and do not need impact statements. In the first three cases, the votes were 3-2, with directors Jack R. Felson and Dr. Ronald T. Stafford unsuccessfully asking for impact studies.

After each of the projects were deemed trivial, the board moved ahead and granted them pipeline extensions. On each of the first three developments, Felson and Stafford also opposed the extensions.

The four developments are:

1. The proposed executive office buildings adjacent to Howard Johnson's in Sausalito.
2. The 56 townhouse units in the Shelter Ridge Phase 3 development in Mill Valley.
3. The 56-unit Greenwood Cove condominiums in Strawberry.
4. A proposed bus maintenance facility for the Golden Gate Bridge District, south of Highway 37 in East San Rafael.

Stafford agreed that the bus maintenance facility had a trivial impact on the environment because the transportation district intends to reduce its current consumption of water at the new facility by reclaiming the water it uses to wash its buses.

After allowing the first four developments to proceed without impact statements, the board ran into the controversial Madera Del Presidio development in Corte Madera, which also was seeking a pipeline extension.

The proposed development, which has been vigorously opposed by many residents in Corte Madera, will consume about 35 acre feet of water annually, according to the water district engineers.

Felson said he could not imagine how such a development could be considered trivial. By a unanimous ote, his colleagues agreed and required the developers to submit an impact study before it could rule on the pipeline application.

Leland H. Jordan, attorney for the developers as well as city attorney in Sausalito and Mill Valley, said his client realized the need for an impact statement on Madera Del Presidio.

He told the board that Cal-West Communities Inc. had spent about $400,000 since its tentative map was approved by the town of Corte Madera.

"It is absolutely essential to move ahead as rapidly as possible on this project," said Jordan.

The board instructed its staff to submit recommendations by its next meeting on the methods of hiring a private consultant to prepare the impact study.

3 Arrested In Drug Smuggling

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Customs agents said Tuesday they arrested three persons in Oakland and charged them with possessing illegal drugs with a street value of more than $400,000.

Agents said a portable cabinet bar consigned to Donna Rae Silsbee, 25, arrived Oct. 2 on a Trans World Airlines flight from New Delhi, India, and inspectors found 40 pounds of hashish and 40 pounds of smoking opium hidden inside.

Miss Silsbee and Keith E. Allende, 31, and Serito Trujillo Montoya, 36, picked up the bar in a rented truck and were taken into custody as they were taking the drugs from the cabinet.

Meter Connetion Fee Report Backed

Directors of the Marin Municipal Water District yesterday approved in principle a report which recommends the district charge its new customers a water meter connection fee, ranging from $200 to $350 per living unit.

The new connection fees would be established, according to the report, to require new customers to "buy into" the existing water system.

The fees were suggested by a rate committeee composed of directors John MacPhail Jr. and Eugene Miller.

The pair recommended that new single-family houses be charged $350 for water meter installations. Duplexes, three-unit and four-unit apartments would be charged $250 per living unit while other apartment buildings would be charged $200 per unit.

The board instructed its attorney to draft the necessary ordinance to enact the recommendations. A public hearing will be scheduled.

The Marin Water District board also:

WORKSHOP — Authorized $100 to send two of its employees to a two-day water treatment workshop in San Francisco.

FIRE ALARMS — Authorized $180 to purchase a plectron radio receiver for the district's Corte Madera corporation yard to receive calls for assistance from the 17 fire departments within the water district.

REGIONAL PARK — Unanimously endorsed the ballot measure which would create a county-wide regional park district in Marin, after agreeing the new district's activties would greatly affect the water district.

SAN GERONIMO — Agreed to pay San Geronimo Valley Properties $40,000 for 3.78 acres of land to expand the San Geronimo filter plant. The figure was a compromise between the district's appraisal of $34,700 and the firm's original asking price of $45,000.

BIKE PATH — Accepted a memorandum of understanding between the district and Marin County which provides that a bicycle path will be constructed between the Civic Center and Point Reyes National Seashore with county funds and some water district staff assistance.

VARIANCES — Denied variance requests for pipeline extensions to Frank T. Roach, of 267 Princeton Avenue inMill Valley and to Marietta Greenhalgh of Hill Avenue in Woodacre.

PIPELINE EXTENSIONS — Approved pipeline extensions requested by Timothy Gray of Panoramic Highway in Mill Valley and the Tamalpais Fire Protection District for a main line along Wellesley Avenue in Tamalpais Valley.

Asians Expelled In Uganda Must Leave All Behind

By FREDERICK HUNTER
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NAIROBI, Kenya — The platform of the Nairobi railway station is crowded with people. Passengers gaze forlgrnly from the windows of their sealed train at the crowd on the platform.

Most passengers look tired. They have been on the train 28 hours. They have been searched twice and have traveled only 350 miles. They must remain on the train another 16 hours before transferring directly to the ship which will take them away from East Africa, most of them forever.

For the most part, the passengers are Indian citizens. Some are longtime residents of Uganda — shopkeepers, salesmen, owners of small businesses. Others are contract workes: schoolteachers and construction laborers.

Some, however, are Ugandans — Asians born in Kampala, Jinja, Soroti, or some other commercial center — who are leaving their native land with Indian husbands or fathers.

All are expellees from Uganda. Many are bitter. "The train is very trouble," says one, a former Kampala resident who speaks little English. "At Kampala railway station," says a young father, "we went at seven. Each and everything they are checking. Whichever they likes, they takes."

"At Tororo," he continues, speaking of the border crossing, "soldiers nakeded one lady here. Completely. All clothes off before us in the train. They didn't find anything."

"At Tororo they searched us completely," says a young construction foreman who has worked for eight years on contracts in East Africa. They remove us our clothes, all of us in here. They took our money. Uganda currency, five and ten shilling notes."

As they speak, Kenyan Asians move close to listen.

There are questions about compensation for property. A small-businessman answers. "My sawmill is worth 2.5 million shilings (about $350,000), and they did not give me one bob. They took our money, our travelers checks, everything." He has little expectation of receiving eventual compensation through the property registry procedures established by the Uganda government.

"We locked our house just like that," he explains. "I left my brand-new car."

The same man confirms rumors of rich men and young women being kidnaped by Ugandan soldiers.

"We had neighbors," he states. "They took their girls, one of 13 years, one of 16 years, about a week ago. They didn't come back. We went in police station and we saw the two girls in custody there. They didn't come back."

Asked about conditions in Kampala, the expellees report widespread fear of venturing out alone. "After seven in the evening," says one, "you won't see in the streets. White men are in more trouble than Asians."

Declares another, "You go from here to there. Soldiers ask you. 'Where are your identity certificates?' And if they catch you, 2,000 shillings in your pocket, then you are gone. They take somewhere, they shoot you."

The expellees also report shortages in Kampala of basic commodities such as coffee, salt and gasoline. If true, these reports suggest that economic dislocations, widely predicted, already have begun to occur.

Study Opens On Bicycle Trail Plan

The Cotati Parks and Recreation Commission last night launched a bicycle trail master plan study in hope of qualifying for state funds.

Commission chairman Lorraine Leivas said the commission will study the most feasible streets for trails and connect with proposed paths to Rohnert Park and Sonoma State College. She said the city might then be eligible for matching funds from the state Division of Highway.

The commission suggested that trails could first be planned for streets already wide enough to accommodate them. They said the city council might also consider requiring trails where feasible in new subdivisions.

In other business, the commission agreed an appraisal should be prepared on the value of land now used as the city corporation yard and the former site of the sewage disposal plant. Mrs. Leivas said it might be worthwhile to sell the land in order to get funds to buy small parcels for neighborhood parks.

Throat Operation Reported On Chiang

HONG KONG (UPI)—A Hong Kong English language newspaper said today Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of Taiwan had undergone a throat operation.

The Star, quoting "a reliable report," said that Chiang "is recuperating in a Taipei hospital after a minor operation on his throat before the Double Tenth celebrations."

Bus Robbery Suspect Nabbed

SEATTLE (UPI) — Bobby Smith, the last remaining suspect at large in the robbery of a Greyhound bus last week at Everett, Wash., was captured Wednesday night.

Bail was set at $25,000 for Smith, who was taken at gunpoint on charges of kidnap and robbery.

Smith crawled out the rear window of his residence and ran into a nearby wooded area, where he was captured by a team of Seattle police and Snohomish County sheriffs.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate has confirmed the nomination of public opinion pollster George H. Gallup as a member of the U.S. Advisory Commission on Information.

Gallup replaces columnist William F. Buckley on the panel. Also confirmed routinely Wednesday by the Senate were Edward W. Mulcahy as ambassador to Chad and William R. Crawford as ambassador to Yemen.

Water Board Casts Eye Northward For Supply

Faced with a dwindling water supply at home, Marin Municipal Water District directors looked northward yesterday and decided to buy at least 1,000 acre-feet of water a year from Sonoma County Water Agency.

The water will be piped from Russian River to Marin County through the proposed North Marin intertie, which is still at least a year from reality.

The district board approved in principle an agreement for the water purchase with the Sonoma agency and North Marin County Water Distrift, which also will participate in the intertie project.

Under the agreement, Marin Municipal Water agrees to buy a minimum of 1,000 and a maximum of 4,000 acre feet of water annualty. The district will purchase more than 1,000 acre-feet only in years of acute-water shortage.

The directors agreed to pay $76 per acre-foot, or $76,000 a year for its minimum purchase of 1,000 acre feet.

The Sonoma agency, capable of meeting its own water needs during peak summer months, has a surplus of water during offpeak spring, winter and fall months.

Marin Municipal Water will normally buy its water during the fall months to bolster its reservoirs in case there is low rainfall the following winter.

Director Ronald T. Stafford, an opponent of the North Marin intertie, cast the only vote against the purchase agreement.

"I am against a project which ties us to Russian River for our future water supplies and which could bring in more than 4,000 acre-feet of water without a vote of the people," he said.

Having opposed the intertie, Stafford said he could support the purchase of water to be carried through the intertie.

AGNEW, WALLACE CONFER

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew made a 50-minute closed-door visit yesterday to Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace in Montgomery. Agnew later addressed a crowd of 8,000 persons in Mobile and assailed Democrat George S. McGovern, wondering if he had "ever assessed the merits of our involvement" in Vietnam. Agnew was to campaign today in New Mexico. (UPI Telephoto)

Jet Hijacker Is Out Of Danger

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI)—An airline hijacker shot after threatening to blow up a Lufthansa jetliner carrying 58 passengers was pronounced out of danger today by police.

"The hijacker is no longer in critical condition and we are still investigating his background," a Frankfurt police pokesman said.

Friedrich Schuetz, a 30-year-old West German described as a soldier of fortune by police, took over a Lufthansa Boeing 727 flying from Lisbon to Frankfurt late Wednesday and threatened to blow up the plane with all 58 passengers aboard.

Two Frankfurt detectives shot and wounded Schuetz when he disembarked from the plane at Frankfurt.

Lieutenant Bars For Policeman

Fairfax Police Chief Charles A. Grasso yesterday announced the promotion of Sgt. Andy John Grimes Jr. to the rank of lieutenant.

The Fairfax force has lacked a lieutenant since Grasso was named police chief by the city council last Wednesday.

The 40-year-old Grimes, a 9 year veteran of the force, was lauded as a "responsible and dedicated officer" by Grasso.

Grimes has also served as a policeman in Sausalito and San Anselmo.

Demo Money Bind Eases

BOSTON (UPI) — Less than four weeks before the election, Sen. George S. McGovern's financial situation is "super tight" but the Democratic presidential candidate may wind up the campaign in the black.

Last week, McGovern revealed that his money problems were at the "critical" point and that his campaign needed "money, quick money" to purchase television and radio time.

Now, the situation seems to have eased a little although one top aide called it "super tight" and McGovern himself is still spending great amounts of time on the telephone soliciting help and even more time on a dizzying round of fund-raising dinners and receptions wherever he stops.

Asked what difference it would make if he did not have money worries, McGovern said "it would be easier.

"I have to spend some of my time on the phone raising money," he added. "A candidate should be free to campaign."

There are two indications, however, that the tight money situation has eased and his aides are confident that McGovern will have sufficient funds to campaign right until election day.

The hopeful signs:

—A 30-minute biography, shown on nation-wide television two Sundays ago, has brought in $500,000.

—Direct mail soliciation of funds from small contributors brought in $1.3 million last week—the biggest amount yet— and the prognosis is for even bigger returns in the next two weeks.

It is the direct mail order campaign, which McGovern calls the most successful in American political history, that might create a surplus at the campaign's end.

McGovern flatly predicts "we are not going to have a deficit at the end of the campaign." His financial advisors tend to agree.

Because the Democrats piled up huge debts in 1968—many still unpaid—McGovern cannot get any credit and his campaign is mostly a pay-as-you-go operation.

And the expectation now is that between $1 million and $1.5 million will come in during the final week or 10 days of the campaign when it will be too late to contract for television time.

The media, especially television, has been given priority in the spending of the estimated $25 million-$28 million for the McGovern campaign. In addition to media, the campaign must finance travel, store fronts, literature, salaries, and the phone banks that were a key to his string of primary victories.

Although there have been large contributions and loans to the McGovern campaign, a key to financing it has been the direct mail effort, which also bankrolled much of the primary campaign.

Tom Collins and Morris Dees, masterminds of the direct mail solicitations, said they are "bringing in $250,000-$300,000 a day and nothing like this has happened before in American history."

He now forecasts a general election campaign total of $9-.10 million, slightly above the original $8 million estimate.

Art Commission To Exhibit Works

The San Francisco Art Commission will exhibit works it purchased from two Marin County artists as part of the $5,000 award8competition at the recent San Francisco Outdoor Art Festival.

A one-man show featuring printmaker Kenjilo Nanao of Homestead Valley will be exhibited at the California Palace of the Legion of Honor. Larkspur's Larry Fuentes will have a one-man show at the Union Gallery of San Jose State University, both during 1973, according to Harold L. Zellerbach, president of the arts commission.

Series Of Rocket Launchings Set

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union plans a series of rocket launching tests in the Pacific for 17 days beginning Friday and is warning ships and planes to stay clear.

The Tass News Agency said Thursday the tests would be carried out in an area with a radius of 40 nautical miles and with its center having these coordinates: 33 degrees 10 minutes north latitude, 173 degrees 50 minutes east longitude.

Tass said, "for the sake of safety the government of the Soviet Union is asking the governments of other countries which use the sea and air routes in the Pacific to instruct the respective bodies that ships and planes stay away from the above-mentioned area and air space daily from 1200 to 2400 hours."

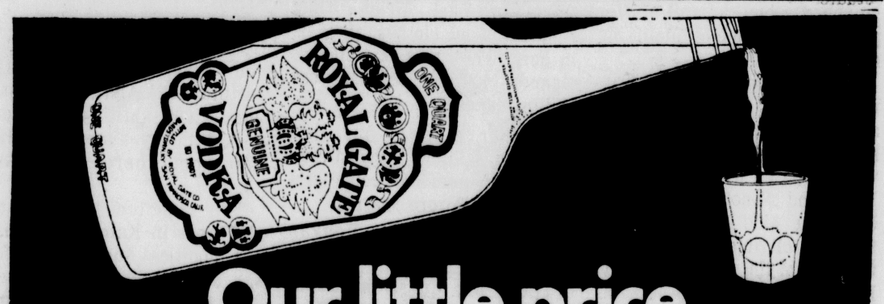
More Free Trips To Be Allowed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—House members have given themselves more free trips home and a fatter stationery allowance, starting next year.

Instead of 26 round trips to the capital from their homes, per two-year session of Congress, they will be reimbursed for up to 38 trips.

Whereas they formerly got $3,500 per year to spend at the House stationery room, they hereafter will get $4,250. If not used in full, the unspent sum can be drawn in cash.

Members who live nearby, and who don't want to keep track of travel expenses, can draw a flat $2,250 for travel, per two-year session. The figure formerly was $1,500.



Our little price encourages big shots.

You can afford to fill it up with Royal Gate Vodka. Costs less than others but its quality matches the most expensive. Compare and see. The only difference is that with Royal Gate you can pour big shots without being a big spender.

Phone Company 'Doing Its Best' In West Marin

By PAT ANGLE

Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co., officials said yesterday the company is doing "the best it can" to provide good phone service to Stinson Beach, but admitted subscribers in the area are plagued with noise on the lines, disconnected calls, lack of dial-tone sometimes and occasional inability to make calls into and out of the community.

The officials said the company is working to correct many of the problems.

Three company managers and an engineer testified before a state Public Utilities Commission hearing officer in Stinson Beach in response to complaints by residents that their telephone service is extremely poor.

The officials rejected proposals by the residents, led by Robert B. Dieter that the company build a new central station in the town and install new equipment, particularly an automatic billing system.

I. W. Lyons, plan extension studies engineer, would not recommend replacing the town's central equipment (now housed in three trailers) until the system is operating to capacity. At present, he said, only about 60 per cent of its capability is being utilized.

Lyons, who does economic planning for the company, said it is estimated peak will be reached in 1979 and at that time the company will build a new office there at a cost of approximately $1.5 million.

In answer to complaints that equipment is exposed to the elements and corrodes as fast as it is repaired, Lyons said the company plans to construct an air-conditioned building, with dehumidifiers, to house the trailers. Construction of the building's foundation has begun, he added.

On Monday, residents said they wanted the utility to provide a contemporary billing system to end the present necessity for an operator to break in on long distance calls to ask the phone number of the caller.

They say this has created a most annoying problem by making it easy for anyone to charge such calls to someone else. Several persons told of difficulties with unauthorized calls on their bills and said it was a frequent and widespread occurrence.

However, Lyons said it would not be economically feasible or practical for the company to install an automatic number identification system until the system is completely revamped with equipment in 1979.

Number-identification equipment, which also would provide for direct dialing of information and repair service (residents must now dial the operator to reach such services), would cost from $89,000 to $115,000, the engineer said.

If installed now, it would have to be scrapped in 1979, he said, because it would not be compatible with the new equipment the company plans to place in Stinson Beach at that time.

In aswer to questions by Dieter, Lyons admitted the automatic equipment the residents are seeking could be removed and installed somewhere else when no longer needed in this area. "Yes, it could be salvaged and reused," he said, but added there may be no other place it would be needed.

Edward R. Dathe, district plant manager, said the company is aware of problems with Stinson Beach service and has taken steps to identify and solve them.

He said a third full-time employee has been hired and a program of rehabilitating existing equipment is under way and should be completed by Dec. 31.

The utility is engaged in several programs to upgrade equipment to improve the noise situation and alleviate the inability to call out, according to Dathe.

H. A. Hayward, district traffic manager, disputed contentions that Stinson Beach residents' problems in making calls outside the community are worse than in other areas. He said studies have shown that "one out of every 100 calls" will not find an available outgoing trunk line," adding: "That's the standard throughout the Bay Area and the nation.

In 1,000 test calls made out of Stinson Beach recently, Hayward said the company encountered "only two failures."

Franklin G. Rudolph, manager of the Mill Valley telephone office, told the residents it is not true, as some have claimed, that the company does not bother to upgrade Stinson Beach's system because the area is not one in which the utility can make a profit. "Profitability has no connection with the level of service," he said.

The officials agreed on one point — that existing equipment, with some modification and improvement, is adequate to provide good service to the community.

Needs $4,100 To Free Husband

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (UPI) —The wife of a Greek Air Force veteran is appealing for help in obtaining $4,100 the Greek government demands before her husband can leave Greece and ejoin his family.

Mrs. Margaret Papadimitrakis, 28, an American citizen and the mother of three children, says she has been informed that if her husband, Polivios, cannot come up with the money in two months he will spend 20 years in prison.

The change in leadership in Greece in 1967 brought changes in rules, among them one prohibiting Greek military men from marrying non-Greeks, Mrs. Papadimitrakis said.

The Greek government is enforcing a rule requiring reimbursement of military training expenses before Papadimitrakis can be released, she said.

Dixie Campaign To Defeat Tax Measure

Dixie School District trustees were told last night by representatives of the citizens finance advisory group that a campaign has been launched opposing passage of the Watson tax initiative on the November ballot.

The citizens group — formed by the board to study the effects of the Watson measure on the district — told the board that 15 meetings have been scheduled for debating the merits of the measure, also known as Proposition 14. Supt. Clifford W. Campbell said he would address Congregation Rodef Sholom on North San Pedro Road at 8 p.m. tomorrow, and that a general debate on the initiative would be held in Olney Hall at College of Marin at noon Sunday. The study group has voted to oppose the measure.

Campbell told trustees the measure would reduce district income by 30 per cent, requiring cutbacks in special programs, staff dismissals and class size enlargements.

The complex proposal basically would reduce property taxes by 40 per cent and shift the burden of financing such programs as welfare and local education to the state. Legislative consultants have estimated the measure would trigger a statewide $1.3 billion increase in other taxes to offset loss of local property taxes.

The Dixie School District board also:

GIFTS — Accepted two violins and aquarium equipment for Oak View School from John Nixon.

TELEVISION — Approved an instructional television services agreement with channel KQED for 1972-73 at a cost of $809.

STUDENT TEACHER — Approved an agreement with Lone Mountain College for one student teacher for 1972-73.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Oct. 25.

Nobel Prize Shared By American

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — The 1972 Nobel Prize for Medicine was awarded today to Dr. Gerald Edelman of the United States and Dr. Rodney Porter of Britain for their studies of antibodies, the built in human mechanism against infection. The prize this year is worth $100,000.

Scientists have concentrated on this study of immunology in hopes of finding some antibody that could kill cancer cells and would lead scientists to solving the problem of the human body's automatic rejection of transplanted organs.

Edelman, 43, is with the Rockefeller University in New York City which he joined in 1960. Porter, 55, has been professor of biochemistry at Britain's Oxford University since 1967.

The awards were announced by the Caroline Institute which said their work had laid "a firm foundation for truly rational research, something that was previously largely lacking in immunology."

"Their discoveries represent clearly a breakthrough that immediately incited a fervent research activity the whole world over, in all fields of immunological science, yielding results of practical value for clinical diagnostics and therapy," the Institute said.

Both Edelman and Porter have been reported as favorites for several years to win the medicine prize.

They had worked to solve the secret of the antibodies, which is the collective name for a group of blood proteins that play an important role in man's defense against infections.

Until 1959 scientists knew little about the nature and functions of these antibodies, despite a century of research.

Earlier this year, Edelman and Porter independently presented the first results of their investigations that will lead to a practically complete clarification of the most essential questions concerning the nature of these substances, the institute said.

Immunology, a research area covering the human body's defense against foreign substances, is of interest for transplantation surgery, medical sources said, involving the problem of the human body's automatic rejection of transplanted organs. Edelman is the 41st American to win the award while Porter is the 17th Briton to win.

Edelman, who is married with three children, won his bachelor of science degree in 1950 at Ursinus college, Collegeville, Pa., and his medical degree at the medical school of the University of Pennsylvania.

Six years later he won his philosophy degree at the Rockefeller Institute, New York, N.Y.

Porte, ho is married and has five children, got his bachelors degree in 1939 at the University of Liverpool. Nine years later he was awarded a doctor of philosophy degree at the University of Cambridge.

Death Penalty May Encourage Killing, 3 Stanford Profs Say

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI)—Three Stanford University professors said Wednesday that, contrary to popular belief, the death penalty does not deter murder—and may even encourage killings by the suicide-prone.

Anthony Amsterdam, a law professor who successfully argued against the death penalty before the U.S. and California Supreme Courts, said every study shows that executions do not deter crime.

"In repeated cases, the death penalty has served as a magnet to commit murder and has been used as a form of suicide," he said. "It may discourage a few potential murderers, but it encourages far more killings."

Two psychiatrists on the medical school faculty, Drs. George Solomon and Donald Lunde, agreed with Amsterdam's conclusions and cited specific cases.

Lunde said the most recent example was Pamela Watkins, a babysitter who killed two small children in San Jose, Calif., after several attempts at suicide.

The psychiatrist said he interviewed the convicted murderess, who told him she resorted to the slayings in desperation so the state would kill her.

"Murder and suicide are very closely related phenomena," said Solomon. He said that execution is not a deterrent to irrational people who commit the most sensational mass murders because they don't think about the ends of their acts, but concentrate solely on the act of killing itself.

The three professors held a news conference to voice their opposition to a proposition on the November ballot, which would restore the death penalty in California.

Hairdresser Sued For Hair Damages

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Robert James Matteson sued the Vidal Sassoon Salon of Beverly Hills for $100,000 Wednesday.

Matteson said he was given a permanent at the hairdressing salon last April which made all his hair fall out and permanently damaged his scalp, causing him "great physical pain, embarrassment and humiliation."

Leader Of Cult Is Convicted Of Bizarre Death

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI)— The leader of a bizzare religious cult was convicted Wednesday of killing a disciple by putting ceremonial knives and a hatchet into his body.

Robert Strong, 57, Rochester, wearing a beard, white robe, white headdress and sandals, showed no emotion when the jury of eight men and four women announced after 75 minutes deliberation that it had found him guilty of second-degree manslaughter.

Strong, leader of a cult called the Sudan Muslim, was charged with killing Kenneth Goings, 25, of Rochester, last winter.

Goings' body was found in a creek near Buffalo Feb. 25. Strong admitted putting knives into Goings' body during a cult ceremony Jan. 28, but said Goings was unharmed because he was in a trance.

Strong, also known as Omar Ali Sherreif, acted as his own attorney. During his summation to the jury, he broke into tears and said he was being persecuted because he was black.

Assistant iublic defender Robert S. Beer, who acted as an adviser to Strong, said the case would be appealed because Monroe County Judge Hyman Maas refused to let the jury consider a verdict of criminally negligent homicide, which carries a lesser penalty.

The manslaughter conviction carries a maximum sentence of 15 years. Criminally negligent homicide has a maximum sentence of four years, Beer said.

'Trash Bash' Events Set On Saturday

Resumption of Novato's fall "trash bash" Saturday will include organizations cleaning up various public areas and a recycling depot at the traditional debris pickup site.

Trash may be taken to Rowland Boulevard, east of South Novato Boulevard, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., said John Perry of the Novato Public Works Department who heads the clean-up. The first day of the annual "bash" was last Saturday.

The San Marin High School Ecology Club will operate a recycling depot at the site during the same hours, taking newspapers, bottles and cans.

The Miwok 4-H group will clean a lot on Highway 101, south of Grant Avenue, and the Civic Center area, while a Girl Scout unit will clean Pioneer Memorial Park. The Horizon 4-H Club will clean San Marin Drive from Simmons Lane to Highway 101. The Novato Rainbow Girls will clean along Rowland and Redwood boulevards. The Camp Fire Girls will clean Alameda Del Prado and Alameda De La Loma.

City, county and state work crews also will be at work on various streets.

Guard Tests To Be Given

An examination for correctional officer positions at San Quentin will be given at the prison Saturday, according to officials.

Appliation forms may be picked up at the personnel office until 4 p.m. Friday.

Men between the ages of 21 and 36 with a high school education or its equivalent and two years of fulltime work experience or military service are eligible.

Artwork Displays

Works by Novato artist Herta Rothschil are on display in a Greenbrae restaurant and a San Rafael gallery. Her oil paintings and watercolors are being shown in the Refectory restaurant, Bon Air shopping center, and ceramic sculptures at the Assemblage Gallery, 819 B Street, San Rafael, through November.

AS CHAIRMAN of the Council of Marin General Hospital Volunteers Mrs. Don P. Murray (standing) runs a brisk council meeting each month. Here she leads the meeting Monday at the hospital for the group that sets policy and oversees the operations of the 1,100 member volunteer organization. (Independent-Journal photos)

HOSPITAL VOLUNTEER

Many Hours Of Service

By BARBARA HOSMER

Ann Murray has been spending three or four days a week in the hospital since July.

She gives out information in the lobby and works on the floor as an in-service volunteer every Friday morning. The rest of the time, as chairman of the Council of Volunteers she presides over the 1,100-member Marin General Hospital Volunteers.

"After all of my experience with the Council of Volunteers I feel I could run one of his banks," she says, referring to her husband, Don P. Murray, senior vice president and a director of the Bank of Marin.

Elected in July, Ann Murray chairs the 21-member council elected to represent the in-service and fund-raising branches which constitute the largest single volunteer organization in Marin.

As chairman, Ann Murray is responsible for a program which last year raised over $56,000 for the hospital and provided some 50,000 hours of service to it. The goal, of course, is to top that this year.

As head of the executive committee, she and its three other members work up the council's agenda and she presides at the monthly meeting and runs it briskly. Each member receives a copy of the agenda beforehand and "I hit the gavel exactly at 10 a.m. —that's to get them there right at 10," she says. "It's over in 90 minutes."

Ann also gives the volunteers' report at each monthly meeting of the hospital board of directors, as the volunteer representative. And she is a member of all other volunteer committees, except nominating.

But Mrs. Murray is the first to point out that the members themselves direct all in-service and branch activities, with guidance by the council's policies and under its overall supervision. Each branch raises its money individually.

Every year all money rased goes to the hospital, for both equipment from "wish list" prepared by hospital administrator Ray Bolinger and for health career scholarships, she said. Each branch votes for what it wishes to buy on the list.

ANN MURRAY has been a Pink Lady at Marin General Hospital for most of 18 years, taking some time off when her four children were young.

Ann admits that her life involves a lot of meetings. She is also a director of the Women's Auxiliary of the San Francisco Yacht Club. And she has been president of the San Rafael Improvement Club and a volunteer in the Junior and Senior Catholic Social Service Auxiliaries and Peter Pan Chapter of the Children's Home Society.

But it's not all volunteer work and no play for Ann Murray. "It's my nature to be impulsive and enthusiastic," she says, and she likes to grab her tennis racquet and dash to tennis sessions and to load her bicycle onto the Murrays' pickup truck and head for West Marin to cycle in the scenic surroundings.

Ann has sailed for years, and the Murrays also enjoy bay sailing aboard their Cal 34.

"I am a compulsive doer, and our volunteer program is so diversified it's a never-ending challenge," she explains.

The past summer Mrs. Murray was serving in the hospital as a Pink Lady one day when Bolinger mentioned to her that the planter boxes beyond the third and fourth floor balconies looked bare.

"It was summer and the council wouldn't be meeting soon," so she went out and bought some flowering plants and soil mix, crawled out there and troweled them in herself. Then she made arrangements for watering with one of the staff and provided a watering can.

The boxes near obstetrics she had thought would be fun to do in pink and blue flowers, "but the nurses there said it was too sentimental and square and suggested bright colors instead," she said with a rueful laugh.

Ann's continuing fascination with hospital work stems from her early interest in becoming a nurse. Born in Santa Cruz, she has lived in Marin since childhood and attended Dominican College. She had begun nurses' training at Mary's Help Hospital in San Francisco, but after three weeks she quit to be married to Don.

"If it were now I would probably have finished the course first," she admits with a shrug. "I couldn't have considered stopping now."

Ann Murray had once worked as a Red Cross volunteer nurses' aide at Ross Hospital for six weeks. And she began as a Marin General Hospital in-service volunteer 18 years ago, a member of only the third group to be oriented at the hospital.

She continued her hospital work on and off during the years her four children were growing up, and more recently found herself as a patient there. That experience gave her a greater perspective on the value of the Pink Ladies to the patients.

"Yes, if I were a nurse I feel I could do more," she says, and is very interested in the Volunteers' scholarship program for health careers, of which she has been a member.

Serving the hospital as a volunteer has become a large part of her life for Mrs. Murray.

The Adolescent Period Is Time For Many Adjustments

I-J Special Report

NEW YORK — Although frequently in conflict with her adolescent children, the mature woman has much in common with them, according to a report by the Information Center on the Mature Woman.

She too is seeking a new identity. She knows her children will soon be leaving home. She is aware her childbearing days are over, and she must find a new role in life to replace the familiar one of mother.

While trying to cope with her identity the mature woman is caught in the upheavals of her adolescent children and the world of adults, pushing toward independence, away from their parents.

"These young persons are as dynamic, idealistic and impressionable as they will ever be, and they need all the support they can get," said Dr. Walter Lehmann, Connecticut specialist in adolescent medicine.

As most parents know, adolescents reject adult advice and resent all restrictions — physical and psychological.

"They think they know everything," Dr. Lehmann explained, "but underneath they are fearful of failure.

Adolescents turn away from their parents and toward their peer group, according to Canadian sociologist James J. Teevan, because they know their contemporaries will more readily accept adult behavior from them.

Despite this, youngsters still want their parents to be aware of their need for acceptance, independence and success and also to understand their anxiety, Dr. Lehmann pointed out.

Suburbs Are Fastest Growing Communities

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Most Americans are suburbanites. And, according to the 1970 census, suburbs are the fastest growing communities in America. For all practical purposes, the growth of most suburbs over the last few decades has been unplanned.

A study of Fairfax County, a fast-growing suburb of Washington, D. C., shows that one of the major forces determining where growth and subdivision will take place is the laying of sewer lines. "Once you lay down that sewer," says the Population Bulletin, "sit back and watch the bulldozers come roaring in."

Advanced Training For Second Graders

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — Second grade children writing, acting in and filming their own television commercials? Inventing and constructing their own musical instruments? These are just two projects devised by Bob Gindick at Ithaca College.

Breast Surgery Methods Blasted

CLEVELAND (UPI) — A prominent surgeon at Cleveland Clinic claims the commonly accepted method of breast surgery in the United States is "absurd and archaic" and has largely been discontinued in other countries.

Dr. George Crile Jr., senior surgery consultant at Cleveland Clinic, said it is unnecessary to remove the entire breast, chest wall muscles and under-arm lymph-nodes of women suffering from cancer.

Crile said he endorses a modified mastectomy, in which the breast and lymph node are removed, but the chest muscles are left intact unless the tumor has affected the nodes.

A False Ring; Just Ignore Threats On Returning Ring

HELEN AND SUE:

I thought I loved this guy. We'd been together almost a year. To celebrate my 21st birthday, he took me to Las Vegas for a little bit of legal gambling.

We used mostly my money, as he was between jobs and he was "borrowing" from me most of the evening. He did that quite a lot but seldom if ever repaid.

Well, he used my money for a keno ticket — and hit. Actually, I chose the numbers, gave him the money, and he took it to the desk; so we agreed that we'd use "our" winnings to pay for the trip —and the rest would go for a $200 diamond ring for me. It wasn't an engagement ring — we weren't planning marriage. I wore it on my right hand.

Three months later we split up. It was pretty bitter. Today I received a letter from him asking for "his ring" back. To clinch it, he enclosed a cheap little "friendship ring" I'd given him. Made a few threats.

Must I give back a ring that my money won? Can he sue or anything? — UNLUCKY AT LOVE

P.S. I guess I'd better be completely honest: I was 10 days from being 21, so I couldn't gamble legally, though no one checked my I.D. card. That's why I let him place the bigger bets while I played the slots. Could he have me prosecuted for this?

UNLUCKY:

Don't worry about prosecution — you didn't place any bet this chintzy guy can prove. "Prosecution?" He may try but he won't get far. The gift "your" winnings bought didn't come with a return clause. — HELEN

U AT L:

Tell you what you do: Send back the cheap little friendship ring with a note, "Please keep this as a remembrance of the good times we had — on my money."

If he bothers you again, present a bill for the approximate amount he borrowed. Like about $200.00? — SUE

DEAR RAP:

I've got a sort of pixie face. I read somewhere that girls with small, turned-up noses and big eyes were apt to fall in love first and think later. In other words, they could be easy pushovers for persuasive guys. Girls with longer noses, the article read, knew a stinker when they met one. True? — A LITTLE WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED:

Don't believe every survey you read. Maybe the "researcher" figured a long nose was better for smelling a rat . Or it could be he just discovered small-nosed girls are easier to kiss — thus get more offers "they can't refuse." — SUE

DEAR WORRIED:

Never heard of this small nose-big eye survey, but be that as it may: pushovers are girls whose "No's" are not as pronounced as their "Ayes." — HELEN

DEAR HELEN:

In a recent column, you used the terms "latent homosexual" and "closet queen."

Please explain what they mean.

Also, would a male with breasts that seem to be getting bigger and female-type, tend to be faggy? — PUZZLED AND ORRIED

DEAR P AND W:

A "latent" homosexual does not actively seek mates of the same sex, but is bent in that direction. A "closet queen" is a secret gay who only comes out with his homosexual friends. One who "comes out" no longer hides his preferences from the straight world.

Boys' breasts often become enlarged when they enter puberty. It's part of growing up and has absolutely nothing to do with "being faggy." Also some males naturally have larger breasts than do others. Stop worrying! — HELEN

PARENT AND CHILD

Seeing Skills Play Important Role, Too

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

About 25 per cent of the words used by 6- and 7-year-old children do not spell the way they sound. Such words as "two," and "their" are what reading teachers call sight words.

That is, children must learn to recognize these words by the way they look and not by the way they sound. It helps beginning readers to improve if parents will work with them to sharpen their seeing skills.

Perhaps you have played the parlor game which consists of someone placing various small items on a tray, showing the tray to the assembled group for 60 seconds or so, and then asking each one to write down all the items he can remember.

A simplified version of this is excellent to play with first- and second-graders to help develop what some educators call sight discrimination.

PLACE ABOUT five simple items on a tray or plate and cover them with a dishtowel. For example, a pencil, a button, a marble, a toy truck and a piece of chalk. Lift the cover for a very short time, maybe 10 seconds.

Then ask your pupil to tell you just one item. When he gets that correct, ask if he saw any others. See how many he can remember in that short time.

Vary the game by letting him arrange a plate full of items for you to recognize. And as he becomes proficient, add more items.

As another exercise, ask your little pupil to draw a picture on a piece of paper. Make sure that it is well colored. When the drawing is complete paste it on a piece of cardboard and cut it up in several joining pieces, like a jigsaw puzzle.

Time him as he puts the picture back into shape. Let him work at this puzzle and others he draws two or three times in a day, attempting to become quicker and quicker.

Either use commercial ones or make cards which contain words and phrases familiar to your pupil. The family name should be included. The name of the town where you live. The street name. All close friends and relatives, pets and favorite foods.

MAKE TWO sets of cards, one set on one color 3 inch by 5 inch card, and the second on another color. Use only five cards at a time. For example the cards which say "house," "bedroom," "porch," "front yard" and "hello."

Put one set of cards in front of you; place the others in front of your pupil. You choose one card and state what it is — "house." Ask your pupil to select the one just like yours nd say what it says. Be sure that he is sitting next to you and not across from you.

As he becomes proficient, add more and more cards. When he knows a word so well that more practice isn't necessary, remove that card from both piles.

As a further variant, place 10 or 20 cards on a table in front of the pupil. You have no matching cards. Instead, you say a sentence which contains only one of the words and see if your pupil can combine his listening skill and his sight skill and pick out the correct card.

If he becomes skilled at this, make up sentences which require that he find several word-cards.

As you drive along in the car, and if you know that a landmark or sign will be coming up along side the road, tell your pupil to watch for it and let you know when it appears.

ASK YOUR first- or second-grader to tell you a new word each day which is a sight word; that is, it doesn't spell the way it sounds. You write it down on a sheet of paper and ask your pupil to draw something on the paper which will help him remember what that word means.

The word "two" is an easy one. The word "their" is harder, but you can help him see that it means possession and the picture might show a group playing with a ball while one child is off to the side.

It will be some years before your pupil will be able to articulate for you just what method he's using to remember sight words. But he will do it naturally if you will present the opportunity, encouragement and motivation.

Use For Eggshells

Here is another use for eggshells. "Raw egg shells dropped into a covered quart jar of water (covered to avoid the odor) make an effective water for house plants. Recalcitrant plants, especially begonias, begin to bloom. After a week or two discard the egg shells and start over again."

The Sit-In Concert invites children to sit beside a musician and to hear the music from the center of the orchestra. At the end of the concert the children are given an instrument demonstration and encouraged to hold and play the various instruments.

This concept in music is provided by the Orchestra Piccola and members of the Marin Youth Orchestra directed by Hugo Rinaldi.

Development Begins In The Cradle

I-J Special Report

SHERMAN OAKS — Physical development begins in the cradle, according to Dr. Howard J. Esseglan, president of the California Chroipractic Association.

"New parents should keep in mind that exercise is an essetial element in ensuring a baby's good health. Although exercise in the baby's early months is natural, there are several points to follow which will assist in the infant's progress," Dr. Esseglan said.

His recommendations to ensure proper physical development are, always offer the child surroundings that are interesting, with freedom to move around and develop his abilities and physical capacity.

As soon as the baby wants to, he should have the opportunity to climb; this satisfies his need to develop muscles necessary for standing and walking. Provide large playthings that can be pushed, pulled and lifted; this will help strengthen the larger muscles in the back, legs and arms.

The chiropractor urged parents to make a planned program of physical fitness an integral part of the child's life. By teaching children physical fitness at an early age they will be fit as adults, he said.

Since physical fitness and spinal integrity are prerequisites for good health, according to Dr. Essegian, he recommended that all youngsters have periodic spinal checkups to ensure proper development.

Fairfax Likes Safety Building

Plans to add an up-to-date public safety building onto the existing town hall received a successful showing before the Fairfax Town Council last night, but councilmen set another session for Nov. 14 to study the dollars and cents.

The council apparently liked the plans by architect Donald K. Olsen, but wanted a detailed breakdown of the cost for the long-stalled effort to update police and fire facilities.

The drive for improved facilities, now almost a decade old, hit its low point in 1968 when voters axed by more than two-to-one a $550,000 bond issue for a new city hall and fire station on Bolinas Road.

The latest proposal to remodel the existing police station and replace most of the fire station will require a bond issue of about $300,000 that may go to voters in April.

The bonds would cost the owner of a $30,000 home $6 a year over a 25-year span if they can be sold at an interest rate of 5.75 per cent, according to city estimates.

Although reserving judgment on the costs, councilmen and about 15 spectators praised Olsen's plans. "You've done wonders with the site," Councilman E. Ross Parkerson said.

And Mayor Albert E. Gately added, "I think we are going to have to face the fact that this is a necessity."

Envisioned by Olsen is a new 5,500-square-foot facility at Bolinas Avenue and Park Street attached to the existing police station by a second story ramp.

Olsen said the construction, including air conditioning, and landscaping will cost $232,000, but additional cash will be needed to buy a house and duplex belonging to Earl L. Ginder at 14 Park Road for parking.

City Administrator Robert E. Crowe said the duplex may be saved for a recreation building.

The only major objections to the project were made by Fire Chief Charles Thornton, Police Chief Charles A. Grasso and Ginder, whose property is sandwiched between town hall and Peri Park.

"I don't like the idea of moving into a trailer," Ginder said. He suggested moving the corporation yard and putting in parking at its present site.

The chiefs were unhappy about a public alley between their facilities. "You are talking about the scenery, I have to be concerned about security," Grasso said.

The work is the second phase of refurbishing the existing town facilities. The council voted in April to move out of the crumbling city facilities "as soon as possible," then two weeks later voted 3-2 to fix up the 46-year-old building.

Firemen In Novato Get Pay Hikes

Novato firemen last night were given a 4 per cent pay and fringe increase by the Novato Fire District board, according to Fire Chief Jack Kidder.

The increase consists of 2 per cent in wages and 2 per cent for a dental plan. It will cost the district approximately $18,000 per year, Kidder said.

The vote was 3-2 with Henry Alvernaz and Richard Price voting against.

The firemen had asked for the dental plan plus 3.5 per cent wage increase, Kidder said.

The board asked for more information from the Novato Firemen Association's request for incentive pay increase programs of 2.5 and 5 per cent based on fire science courses completed by firemen at the College of Marin.

The board ordered a $175 study to compare the state retirement program compared to the one which the district now has with Mutual of New York Insurance Co. This was another of the demands by the association, he said.

It's Cannibalistic

WINNIPEG (AP) — Jean Lambert refuses to eat apples because she says it's "cannibalistic." But the suburban St. Vital housewife has for the past 10 years made them into little dolls. Mrs. Lambert says the apples dry naturally over a period of three to four weeks after being peeled and are formed into faces by gently applying presure daily over the drying period.

Big Water Users In Bolinas Get Break

Directors of the Bolinas Public Utility District agreed last night to reduce water rates for the district's larger users during the winter months when water is more readily available.

Lyman Robinson, district clerk, said the board decided to cut rates on water above 1,000 cubic feet from 75 to 50 cents per 100 cubic feet.

The district's current rate for the first 1,000 cubic feet of water is $10, with larger users paying a certain amount for water used above the minimum.

Robinson said the reduced rate will be in effect during the six winter months, from Oct. 1 to April 1.

The board also set a special meeting for 8 a.m. tomorrow to prepare information on its Nov. 7 bond election for public distribution. The district will offer a $385,000 bond issue to voters to finance a proposed waste disposal system for the area.

Schmitz Wants Wallace Support

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (UPI)—American party presidential candidate John Schmitz said Wednesday he is still hopeful that he will receive the endorsement of Alabama Gov. George Wallace.

Wallace, founder of the party and its first presidential candidate in 1968, said Tuesday he will not endorse a presidential candidate in this year's election.

"Governor Wallace's doctors have not permitted him to engage in political activity,'1 Schmitz said. "However, I do not expect that he would endorse either President Nixon or Senator George McGovern."

When asked if he thought Wallace would endorse his candidacy, Schmitz asked, "Who else would he endorse?"

Muir Entrance Signs Vandalized

Vandals again have attacked entrance signs to Muir Beach State Park, according to a community resident.

Tony R. Pacchelli of Muir Beach Road told the Independent-Journal the most recent incident was Tuesday when a sign support was sawed in half. A similar attack on another sign occurred last week.

Pacchelli, who has reported the vandalism to the state Division of Highways, said he feared the hindrance of emergency vehicles.

Airline To Include Ms. Designation

NEW YORK (AP) — Eastern Airlines says it is including the Ms. designation in reservations computer records for women who prefer the title.

The airline says when a woman passenger phones for reservations she will be asked to give her last name, first initial and then indicate Mrs., Miss, Ms., or when applicable, Dr., Col., or any other recognized designation.

Mrs. Strong To Sonoma Post

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Mabel Strong, assistant Sonoma County tax collector, has been named tax collector-treasurer by the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors.

Mrs. Strong will fulfill the remaining two-year term of Jimmie Anderson, who retired last week.

Mrs. Strong also had submitted her retirement request effective Oct. 31, but accepted the position when approached by board chairman Henry Spomer. She will assume the $18,000 per year job on Nov. 1.

Mrs. Strong began work in the department in 1944 and has been the top assistant since 1957. The term of office expires in January 1974.

Moonwalkers Rehearse Parts

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—The last two Americans scheduled to walk on the moon this decade went through one of their final moonwalk rehearsals in rain showers Wednesday and said they were almost ready for launch.

Apollo 17 commander Eugene A. Cernan and geologist Harrison H. "Jack" Schmitt rehearsed surface activities for six hours. They and command module pilot Ronald E. Evans are scheduled o set out at 9:53 p.m. EST Dec. 6.

"As far as the lunar surface activities are concerned, we're very close to being ready to fly," Schmitt said. "For the most part, we know all our tasks. We've done them many times and I think we're ready to go."

Greenbrae To Boot All Political Signs

The Greenbrae Property Owners' Association board voted last night to order all political signs posted in Greenbrae removed by Sunday.

President Stewart N. Boxer said the action was taken after complaints from Greenbrae homeowners who cited covenants on their house deeds prohibiting "the hanging of signs."

Boxer, who personally had put up 10 signs for his wife, supervisorial candidate Barbara Boxer, said he abstained from voting.

"There was considerable discussion about whether it was a violation of free speech," said Boxer, "but four out of seven directors voted for the removal, feeling the signs are a blight on the community. The rest abstained."

It was announced that Boxer will meet next week with a county traffic control field investigator and California Highway Patrol representatives next week to discuss traffic problems in Greenbrae. He said Greenbrae residents who know of traffic difficulties near their homes should contact him.

The board also announced that the annual Greenbrae Halloween Parade for children will start at 5 p.m. on Oct. 31 at the intersection of Eliseo Drive and Via La Cumbre.

Port Visit To Chile Is Off

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)—A U.S. task force has canceled a scheduled visit to Chile's largest port because of feared anti-American demonstrations, Chilean naval sources said Wednesday.

The sources said Rear Adm. John Shanahan canceled the flotilla's visit to Valparaiso today because of possible demonstrations resulting from the embargo secured by the Kennecott Corp. on payment of a $1.3 million copper shipment bound for France.

U.S. officials confirmed the cancellation but declined to say whether the iniative came from Shanahan or Chilean officials.

Peevey Promises Report On Funds

By DAVID DIETZ

Michael R. Peevey, a candidate for the fourth district seat on the Marin County Board of Supervisors next month, vowed today to release by tomorrow an up-to-date rundown on campaign contributions.

Peevey, top spender among all Marin candidates in April primary races, said on radio KTIM's "Marin Sounding Board" he had made a "mistake in judgment" earlier this year in not divulging campaign donations to a weekly publication which had sought financial statements from all candidates.

The candidate, who had been criticized for secrecy by his opponent, Gary T. Giacomini, told program listeners he would release to Marin newspapers the names of contributors to his campaign, as well as the amounts given, from the primary campaign to the present.

Peevey said he had declined the request of the weekly paper because of the belief it was biased in favor of Giacomini. In compliance with state law, however, Peevey subsequently listed with the county elections office contributions of $17,015 and expenses of $17,679 — highest figures in all local, state and federal races.

Giacomini, who had listed $10,159 in contributions and expenses of $15,341, said today on KTIM he was delighted that Peevey "now sees fit" to account for his contributions.

Peevey and Giacomini, both of whom failed to get a majority vote in the four-way primary campaign, differed on several issues on the radio program today as their Nov. 7 runoff nears.

As to the board of supervisors' recently ordered West Marin crackdown on transient youth living in cars, tents and shanties, Giacomini believed current health and safety codes were sufficient to deal with the problem. Peevey supported the board's adoption of a so-called antihippie ordinance prohibiting living in vehicles not properly equipped with sanitary facilities.

While Giacomini endorsed West Marin's new 60-acre zoning provision as a "crucial holding action" in behalf of dwindling dairies and agriculture, Peevey wondered about the effect on aging ranchers no longer able to continue with their profession and wanting to sell their land.

However, both agreed other steps, such as the so-called banking of land and density transfers, were needed in the long run to insure preservation of West Marin's rural character.

While Giacomini, an attorney, and Peevey, an economist, supported the goals of the county-wide master plan to discourage rapid growth and encourage economic diversity, Peevey questioned the impact of 70,000 additional people on the Corte Madera-Larkspur-Southern San Rafael area, a population increase contemplated in the document.

Innovative planning methods, Peevey said, are needed to cope with what he called the "very serious consequences" of such growth.

The program, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be repeated at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

New Classes Set In Corte Madera

Registrations are being taken at Corte Madera Town Hall for November sessions of several new classes according to recreation director Jacqueline A. Branch.

Classes include perschool acrobatics and tumbling; tumbling for 5-to-7-year-olds; judo; youth tennis; bicycle maintenance; belly dancing; oil and acrylic painting, gardening and "the total woman".

Group's Meeting Date Switched

The Marin County Family and Children's Services Advisory Committee has changed its regular monthly meeting to the fourth Tuesday of each month.

Previously, the committee met on the third Tuesday at the Marin County Schools office in Corte Madera, but changed after the county board of education switched its meeting time to that day.

The committee will continue meeting at 8 p.m. at the schools' office's meeting room.

Pancake Feed

The Kentfield Fire Department will cook its annual Pancake Breakfast for the public on Sunday morning at the Kentfield fire station, announced Chief Kenneth Kamp. Ham and eggs, hotcakes and toast, will be served from 6:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

Voters Not Wanted At Tiburon Station

Tiburon Peninsula residents will no longer be able to go to the Tiburon Fire Station to register to vote because the fire department doesn't want them.

The Tiburon Fire Protection District last night decided its firemen will pass their voter registration responsibilities to the cities of Belvedere and Tiburon.

According to board secretary Wellman H. Topham the flow of registrants "has interfered with our operations."

The fire district agreed to continue registering voters on weekends while the two city halls are closed.

To date Belvedere has tentatively agreed to assume voter registration responsibilities, but Tiburon has not.

If Tiburon doesn't accept registrants, said Topham, they will be directed to Belvedere City Hall by the fire department.

Information On Fires Is Sought

Because of two recent fires thought to have been set by arsonists and continued vandalism of the Northwoods Bowmen Club on North San Pedro Road, the club is offering $100 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible, said David Nagel, club president.

A fire on Aug. 22 burned the cook house and another on Sept. 19 burned the work shack of the archery club, he said. Since these fires, the club has been vandalized many times, he said.

All information will be kept confidential, he said. It should be sent to the Northwoods Bowmen Club, P. O. Box 4248 Civic Center Branch, San Rafael.

827 Israeli Deaths Since Mideast War

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Since the 1967 Middle East war, 827 Israeli soldiers and civilians have been killed in fighting and Arab guerrilla raids, with 3,141 more wounded, a military spokesman said today.

During the same period, he said, 3,335 guerrillas have been killed and 550 captured.

Alcohol Blame In Policeman Death

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Alcoholic poisoning was given as the cause of death Wednesday of policeman Arthur T. Lord Jr., who claimed he was driven to drink by the tensions of his work.

Coroner Boyd Stephens ruled that Lord's death at the Russian Health Baths two weeks ago was "accidental." Authorities said he had gone to the baths to recuperate after a heavy drinking session and his body was found by his wife.

Lord had been on full disability pay of $1,161 a month after the Retirement Board ruled that his drinking a fifth of whiskey a day was caused by the tensions relating to his job as a policeman.

Witness To Death Didn't Take Stand

A key witness in a Midwest murder trial was in Marin County Jail yesterday instead of on the witness stand because the prosecution was unwilling to pay to escort him to the trial, according to the Kansas City Star.

George Patrick Holderby, 26, a transient who now lives in Marin, was to have testified in Kansas City, Mo., against Phillip E. Cannon, acquitted yesterday of beating a 63-year-old golf pro to death on July 12, 1968, according to the Star.

Holderby was arrested last Thursday on suspicion of petty theft and held in jail for violating probation imposed last December for burglary and heroin possession convictions. He was given 30 days in jail today for failing to report to his probation officer.

Marin's assistant district attorney, Joshua W. Thomas, said he received a call from his Kansas City counterpart last week asking that Holderby, an eyewitness to the killing, be released to fly back to Kansas City on Saturday.

However, Thomas said he insisted on a guard for Holderby and the Kansas City prosecutor replied that his office couldn't afford the expense so Holderby stayed in jail.

The uncalled witness had been using the alias Dennis Michael Quinn until his arrest last week. The real Quinn is a defense attorney in Kansas City, the newspaper story said.

Lucchesi Park Tops Improvements List

The development of Lucchesi Park earned top priority on the list of park improvements at the Petaluma Recreation, Music and Parks Commission meeting last night.

Recreation Director James R. Raymond said the commission set a priority list of six projects and unanimously agreed Lucchesi Park on Maria Drive should receive first attention.

Improvements at Lucchesi initially would include additional baseball diamonds, turf and play and picnic equipment followed in later stages with a lake and senior citizens center.

Placed second on the list was replacement of the Little League diamond at Kenilworth Park. The facility must be moved to accommodate the widening of East Washington Street.

Third on the priority list was developing phase two of Sholenberger River Park to include athletic facilties and a night lighted baseball field.

Other projects on the list included expansion of the swim center to include game areas and picnic facilities; expansion and upgrading of existing parks; and last, development of a new neighborhood park in the area of Grant School.

Raymond said the list would go to the city council in hopes of getting a five-year capital outlay plan approved to fund the projects.

Lights Approved

The Mariner Cove Improvement Association board last night approved replacement of damaged floodlights at the entrances of Prince Royal Passage and Paradise Drive and a new entrance sign for the tot lot.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

RING THE BELLS! This is the Centennial Birthday of English composer Ralph Vaughan Williams. You can hear his great works performed by the world's greatest symphonies, in person or on recordings, or broadcast on radio. Vaughan Williams, who died at the age of 86, still lives in the music he created in the last century and this. Except for a brief time in the 1890s, when he served as a church organist and as a music lecturer at Oxford University, this gifted man devoted most of his life to composing. He accepted a teaching position at the Royal College of Music in 1920 and conducted the London Bach Choir until 1928. But we remember him today for his music, much of it based on Old English folk songs.

FAMOUS BIRTHDAYS TODAY

1. GRAYSON KIRK, American university educator, was born 69 years ago today. He earned a University of Wisconsin doctor's degree, then began a career of teaching and school administration which took him to the presidency of Columbia University. Can you guess how many U.S. and foreign universities awarded him honorary degrees — 5, 15, or 35?

2. GEORGE KEITH FUNSTON, 62 today, served for 11 years as the president of the New York Stock Exchange. Educated at Trinity College and Harvard, he was a U.S. Naval commander in World War II. Would you imagine that he also served at one time as a college president. Yes or No?

3. ELMER SPERRY, born this day in 1860, was an American inventor who pioneered in manufacturing electrical motors, mining tools, and streetcars. He also showed how a gyroscope could stabilize ocean vessels and aircraft. Although he died in 1930, he contributed to what weapon — a death-ray, bomb-sight, or invisible ink?

ANSWERS

1. 35; 2. Yes; 3. bomb-sight.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Ducking Is Simple, But The Time Is Most Important Part

Ducking at bridge may help you keep the dangerous opponent out of the lead. The method is very simple: You play a low card instead of winning the trick, but you must choose the right way to do this simple thing.

REFUSE TRICKS

West opens the six of spades and East plays the queen. You refuse the first and second spade tricks, holding up your ace until East plays his last spade.

You have eight tricks in top cards and your problem is to develop an extra heart or an extra diamond without allowing West, the dangerous opponent, to gain the lead. You plan to duck a trick to East, the safe opponent.

Diamonds are your main hope, but you must reach dummy to lead diamonds through East. If you lead a low diamond from your hand, West will win the trick; and if you lead a high diamond from your hand, East will get rid of his queen of diamonds like a hot potato.

LEAD A HEART

You lead a heart to dummy's king and return a low diamond. If East plays the queen, you are ready to duck — allowing East to win with his queen. Assume that East plays low; you win with the ace of diamonds.

Now you get back to dummy with a club and lead another diamond through East. This time East is obliged to play his queen. You play low from your hand, allowing East to win the trick.

PLAN OF ACTION

The idea is to give up one diamond tirck, but to make sure to give it up to the safe opponent. This puts you in position to take the next diamond with the king, after which your last diamond will be good for your ninth trick.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - K J 9 6 3
♥ - J 10 8
♦ - J 10 5
♣ - 7 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades.

Innocent Plea In Kidnaping

A 19-year-old Novatan arrested Sunday on suspicion of robbing a hitchhiker of $125 pleaded innocent Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court and a preliminary hearing was set for next Tuesday.

Robert Carl Gorski was arrested by San Rafael police after Reginald Bruce Johnson, 24, of San Rafael reported he was picked up in Sausalito, then robbed at knifepoint.

He said he was taken first to his home in San Rafael to pick up most of the money, then taken to San Francisco and released, according to police.

BUT DOES IT WHISTLE?

Chagall Mosaic To Join Picasso Sculpture In Downtown Chicago

By NANCY PHILLIPS
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

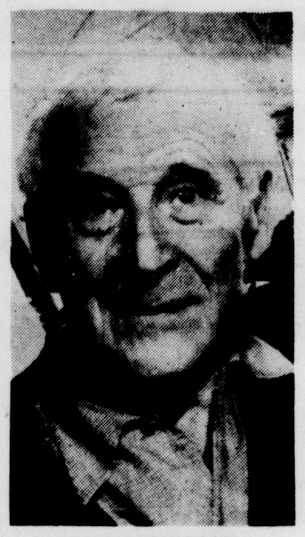
CHICAGO — Marc Chagall has designed a 70-foot mosaic wall to be placed in the plaza beside the 60-story First National Bank of Chicago building here.

It will be just two blocks from Chicago's five-story steel sculpture by Picasso, already a landmark.

"Where else in the world can one find within two blocks of each other major works by the two most famous living artists?" asked former museum curator Katharine Kuh, the bank's art consultant, at a conference announcing the design, which Chagall is giving to the people of Chicago.

It seems natural that the bank should have a work of art where the whole city can see it, since the interior of the building has become a kind of museum for the collection of some 1,500 paintings, sculptures, drawings, and lithographs owned by the bank — and recently described (in Britain's Apollo magazine) as "one of the most impressive single collections of art — judged by any reasonable standard — in mid-America."

Chagall was sought out for the plaza wall design as "the one artist who we knew was supreme in creating the beauty of the hopes and visions of humanity," said William Wood Prince, a director of the bank. He and Mrs. Wood Prince are supplying the cost of translating Chagall's design — not to be revealed until the work is complete — into an irridescent, three-dimensional wall 70 feet long, 14 feet high, and 10 feet thick.



MARC CHAGALL
Giving a gift

The gift is in memory of Frederick Henry Prince of Boston, whose financial and business activities were centered in Chicago where he was once a director of the First National Bank. Wood Prince was his cousin (then Wood), who was adopted by Prince and given his name.

The Chagall mosaic, which is described as part painting, part sculpture, and part architecture, is to be unveiled at the completion of the plaza sometime next fall. Chagall will supervise each step in the realization of the mosaic.

Mrs. Kuh noted that Chagall's paintings are often autobiographical and depict memories. Though he has visited Chicago, neither she nor Wood Prince would tell if the Chicago mosaic will include his reminiscences of the Windy City. That remains for the unveiling, which bank representatives hope the artist will attend.

Mayor Richard J. Daley was present at a dinner to announce the gift and he accepted it on behalf of the people of Chicago. However, the mosaic wall actually is to be given to Art in the Center, Inc., a new support foundation formed of trustees of leading art institutions which will "have the right to exhibit other works of art in the plaza should they so elect," according to Gaylord Freeman, chairman of the bank.

When the bank moved from its old quarters on the site of the new plaza to the granite monolith with its parabolically curved sides in 1969, Mrs. Kuh was asked to select art works for the modern interior. She is now art editor of World magazine, and spent 12 years on the staff of the Art Institute of Chicago, where she was curator of modern painting and sculpture and later of Western painting.

"Art at the First National Bank is not bought as an investment, as decoration to cover bare walls, or as encouragement for the most avant-garde movements," she has said. "Instead we have sought what we consider quality, authenticity, and, in most cases, staying power."

The collection ranges from the contemporary Richard Anuszkiewicz's "Volumes" to the "Portrait of Colonel Hugh Nugent," by Gilbert Stuart.

Mrs. Kuh and Freeman said that they have received "wonderful response" from the 5,000 persons on the staff as well as the bank's customers, who see the art works daily.

"At first there was some making fun of it," said Mrs. Kuh. "Now they have grown to like the collection. And those in branches throughout the world are eager to have art works for their offices when they leave here. The interest in art has grown so that many of the bank workers have asked me to help them buy art for themselves, and on occasions they have joined me on trips to New York. It's an enriching experience for the young people here to have this art around them."

Fugitive Back To Face Counts

SAN JOSE (UPI) —Byron James Rice, wanted for seven years as a suspect in a Mountain View holdup-shooting, was returned here Tuesday from Chicago where he surrendered to the FBI.

Rice, 36, had been on the FBI's "Ten Most Wanted" list since 1966 for the $31,000 robbery of an armored car and the fatal shooting of guard Clarence E. Wylder, 55.

He turned himself in on Oct. 2, saying he was "tired of running."

Rice's brother, Garry, 33, and his uncle, Joseph Tatton, 36, both were convicted of their part in the crime and are serving life prison sentences.

The money was never recovered.

Pollster Claims Vietnam Mining Decisive Factor

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Pollster Daniel Yankelovich says the 1972 presidential election was decided even before the campaign began.

Yankelovich told a public affairs forum at Harvard Business School Tuesday that President Nixon's victory was assured by events after the mining of North Vietnamese harbors.

The mild Soviet reaction let people relax, he said.

"They felt a sense of national pride that the United States can't be pushed around," he said.

Regional Park Proposal Backed

Larkspur Chamber of Commerce members have endorsed measure A, the regional park district proposal, on the Nov. 7 ballot, said President Sue Schaefer. The group earlier heard a presentation by Carol Staley, representing People for Parks and Open Space.

The chamber took no stand Tuesday on Proposition 14, the Watson tax shift initiative, said Mrs. Schaefer, since the group takes stands only on local issues.

But the chamber did hear Dr. William J. Filante, a former supervisor canddate, speak in opposition to the proposal, and realtyman Donald Beacock speak in favor.

Water Chief Insists On State's Right

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California's clean water chief insisted yesterday the state has the authority to require federal compliance with its environmental protection orders, despite federal protests to the contrary.

Chairman W. W. Adams of the Water Resources Control Board made the declaration in response to the federal government's latest announcement that it will not go along with the state's agency's controversial American River and Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta water decisions.

In both cases, the board ordered more water released from upstream dams than the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation would agree to. The release of fresh water was aimed at protecting the ecology against threatened deterioration and pollution.

The U.S. Interior Department last week reasserted its position of "federal supremacy" and said that its Central Valley Project could not be controlled by any terms of conditions set by the state board.

"They've always maintained federal supremacy," Adams said. "In our opinion, the decision will be made by a court."

He said the board considers the Interior Department's stand "untenable" in view of federal environmental protection policies, court rulings in favor of conservation and enactment of the federal Environmental Quality Act.

he Bureau of Reclamation, which operates Folsom Dam on the American River and Shasta Dam on the Sacramento upstream from the Delta region.has maintained the state has no authority to impose conditions on water rights permits it issues which are "inconsistent" with the use of federal project water for irrigation and power.

The board, on the other hand, insists that in granting water rights permits to the federal government for the Central Valley Project that it is empowered to require that the state's water be used "in the public interest," as set forth by the legislature.

"The board is vigorously defending its authority to regulate and place conditions upon all water right permit holders in California," Adams said in his first public statement since the Interior Department repeated its contentions.

Adams noted that lawsuits attacking the American River and Delta decisions have been filed in courts in Auburn and Sacramento.

The board's Delta decision of several months ago was regarded as a victory for conservationists who had feared that without major outflows, salt water would intrude from San Francisco Bay and destroy vegetation and wildlife in the scenic region.

A Lower Density Push Being Made

Novato's Environmental Control Committee has decided the city's master plan should insist on lower density and greater setbacks in creek areas and that the John Kenny 700-acre property in Black Point, where 2,300 housing units have been proposed, should be reserved for agricultural use.

According to Administrative Assistant Rodney Brown, the committee on Monday also expressed concern for Ridge lines and said that scenic designation should be effective from 600 feet elevation.

Bowman Canyon, west of San Marin High School, the committee said, should remain a rural rather than urban corridor, and noted control over county lands such as Bowman Canyon remains difficult despite county referral of such matters to the Novato Planning Commission for advice.

American League Flag On Line For A's, Detroit

By JOHN G. GRIFFIN
UPI Sports Editor

DETROIT (UPI)—The Oakland Athletics, at long last? Or the Detroit Tigers, with a 1968-style "miracle?"

The American League playoffs, seemingly locked up for the A's and now suddenly all tied up, will be decided in the fifth and final game today at 12:30 p.m. EST at Tiger Stadium. After what happened Wednesday, only a brave man would guess which will earn the right to meet the Cincinnati Reds in the World Series.

John "Blue Moon" Odom, who pitched a shutout for the A's in the second game of the playoffs, will be on the mound again against National League castoff Woody Fryman for the fired-up Tigers.

It's a stunning situation for the A's, who took a 3-1 lead into the 10th inning of the fourth game Wednesday and looked like champs —until the Tigers came back with three runs to win, 4-3, in the last of the 10th.

"If we're good ballplayers, that shouldn't bother us," insisted A's captain Sal Bando. "We'll just have to win it today."

But Fryman insisted, "We've got the momentum now."

If the Tigers do indeed have the momentum and win the A. L. flag after being down 2-0, they'll match their feat of 1968 when they trailed 3-1 in games in the World Series and won three straight to beat the St. Louis Cardinals.

"Like 1968 again," agreed Detroit pitcher Mickey Lolich, who held the A's to one run in the first nine innings Wednesday and is one of several Detroit players who were on the '68 squad and call themselves "the over-the-hill gang."

And if the Tigers do emerge the champions, both they and the A's will replay over-and-over in their minds the wild 10th inning of the fourth game.

At that point it was all tied at 1-1, thanks to a third-inning homer by Dick McAuliffe of the Tigers and a seventh-inning homer by Mike Epstein of the A's. And then the A's struck for two runs —a single by pinchhitter Gonzalo Marquez, a double by Matty Alou on which Marquez scored as catcher Bill Freehan couldn't handle the throw, and a single by Ted Kubiak.

But the "over-the-hill gang" refused to admit it was all through.

First McAuliffe singled and so did Kaline and the tying runs were on base with none out. The A's sent for reliever Joe Horlen to face pinch-hitter Gates Brown. A wild pitch moved the two runners up and then Brown walked to put the winning run on the loaded bases. Freehan rapped a grounder to Bando at third — and instead of throwing home, Bando threw to second.

So Sal threw to second where, as fate would have it, Gene Tenace, a catcher impressed to play second after one of Williams' many player switches, was the current resident fielder. Tenace dropped the throw and everybody was safe, score 3-2, and the bases still loaded.

In came lefty Dave Hamilton to pitch to lefthander Norm Cash. Three times Cash fouled off a two-strike pitch and then he walked —forcing in Kaline with the tying run. Bases still loaded, still none out. Williams called his outfield in close, because a long fly would score the winning run anyway.

See A's box score on inside page.

Injured Tam Gridder Has A Crowded Room

It started looking like 5 o'clock traffic around the hospital room of little Greg Ford, a Tamalpais High School junior who tried to play football with the big kids.

Ford, all of 115 pounds, was a defensive back for the Tam junior varsity football team. Last Friday, in a game against Drake High's J.V. team, Ford forgot he was the smallest player on the field and tried to hard to make a tackle. Result was a broken neck.

"The doctors are expecting a 100 per cent recovery," said a relieved Al Ahlsten, Tamalpais Hgh School athletic director. No permanent damage is expected, said Ahlsten.

In addition to all his Tamalpais High School teammates and friends, players from the Drake junior varsity team have been wearing out the rug leading to his room at Marin General. Ford, also an outstanding wrestler, was visited the other day by the wrestling team from Terra Linda High.

WHEN 14-YEAR-OLD Rick Anderson shot a junior course record 70, two under par, at Marin Country Club course in Novato last month, not too many of those on hand peeked into his golf bag. What they would have seen were a driver borrowed from a friend, a 3-wood borrowed from somebody else, and a borrowed 1-iron, in addition to a few of his own clubs. He couldn't find his own 7-iron or sand wedge so did without. And his golf shoes were one size too small. How does that make you feel just after going out and buying that $400 set of matched clubs?

WHILE ON THE SUBJECT of golf, let's talk about Snoopy and his Redwood Classic scheduled for Saturday and Sunday (slush, slush) at Santa Rosa Golf and Country Club. Ray Leach of Novato is going to try to win some of the $15,000 purse, going against some touring pros such as Babe Hiskey, Curtis Sifford, Tom Shaw, Cesar Sanudo, John Lotz, Jim Wiechers, Rod Finseth and last year's winner Vic Loustalot. Among the celebs on hand will be Perry Como, Dick Martin, Burgess Meredith, Fred Waring (without his Pennsylvanians), Martin Landau and of course, Charles Schultz and Snoopy. The tourney is for a good cause, proceeds going to the American Cancer Society.

IF YOU ARE WONDERING about the final statistics of Boston pitcher Bill Lee who used to throw his fast ball for Terra Linda High, here are the numbers: In 84 innings of relief, he gave up675 hits, 32 walks and struck out 43 batters. His win-loss record was 7-4 and his earned run average 3.21.

IN THE I-J NEWS room, there is a business wire and 99 per cent of the copy out of it goes to the business page. But every so often a sports item comes ticking out and winds up on my desk. One such item came yesterday, addressed to the sports desk.

"Please hold late afternoon Tuesday, Oct. 17 open.

"Within the next few days we will provide details and exact time and Los Angeles location for a news briefing to announce the world's frst sanctioned hot air balloon race. One of the competitors will be on hand and a balloon will be inflated and demonstrated."

Wow! I can hardly wait. Secretary! Cancel all my appointments. Oh, that's right. . . I don't have a secretary. Well, anyway, it sounds bigger than the World Serious.

Campaneris In Clubhouse

DETROIT (UPI)—Bert Campaneris will be in the Oakland clubhouse during today's deciding game of the American League championship series, angered A's owner Charlie Finley said today after his request to have his suspended shortstop sit on the bench was spurned by American League President Joe Cronin.

"I know that if I let Campaneris sit out there in the stands with me, I might be subjecting him to fan abuse," said Finley, who orginally was going to have his shortstop sit in his box seat adjacent to the Oakland dugout.

"So I'm not going to ask him to sit there—even though I know he would if I did," Finley said. "He's going to sit in the clubhouse and watch the game on TV."

Finley, who said Detroit manipulated Frank Howard to try to make Oakland mad, also harangued Cronin and Tigers' Manager Billy Martin in a midnight press conference which Campaneris attended.

"We feel Campaneris was hit on the ankle on purpose," Finley said. "We feel he was thrown at. We can't prove it.

"I read a Billy Martin quote about three weeks ago that the A's have speed and the only way you can stop them is to throw at Campaneris' legs. This whole thing goes back to 1968."

The faltering A's held a 2-0 lead in games before their shortstop was suspended by Cronin for throwing his bat Sunday at Tigers, relief pitcher Lerrin LaGrow. Campaneris was suspended for the duration of the playoffs, of which Detroit has won the two most recent games. He was also fined $500.

Manager Dick Williams of the A's, Finley, two of his sons, and traveling secretary Tom Corwin of Oakland petitioned Cronin Wednesday night to let Campaneris sit on the bench.

"He was asleep," Finley said. "And he can sleep. Finally, he came to the door in his nightgown and nightcap and I asked him if we could come in and talk.

"We wanted to ask permission for Mr. Campaneris to sit on our bench. Just to sit on our bench," Finley said. "He said 'no, I cannot allow that.'

"At the beginning of the series, Detroit—through his highness Billy Martin—requested permission to play Howard instead of Bill Freehan. So, the A's agreed to play Frank Howard.

"The next thing we heard—and we agreed even though Howard didn't join Detroit until after the (Aug. 31) deadline—Howard wasn't going to play," Finley said.

"Before this request was made, I said to my manager, Dick Williams, 'We've got to be very careful—on the alert. They're going to try something.'" Finley said.

"The next day, they came back saying Howard isn't going to play but can he sit on the bench? We agreed, then the next thing we heard, Howard was going home.

"Today (Wednesday) they asked us if he could coach," Finley said before adding sarcastically: "The next thing they're going to ask is if Frank Howard can go to the bathroom."

San Marin, San Rafael Gridders Go

Two football teams which suffered disappointing losses last weekend will confront each other tomorrow night in a game which will be "do" for one and, probably, "die" for the other.

San Marin High School visits San Rafael at 8 o'clock in a Marin County Athletic League confrontation which will pit the Mustangs' versatile attack against the Bulldogs' strong Wishbone.

Neither was up to standard last Saturday, as San Marin (3-1) managed just one touchdown in a 16-8 loss to Terra Linda, and San Rafael (2-2) got two in a 32-16 loss to Redwood. Both teams have 1-1 MCAL records, and a second loss could be ruinous to any title ambitions they harbor.

San Rafael will enter the game without the services of

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Wayward Pitch Gives Reds Flag

CINCINNATI (UPI)—A single pitch, one which hit in front of the plate and bounded away, made the difference between what most people consider the two best teams in baseball, and now that they're No. 1, the National League champion Cincinnati Reds aren't particularly choosy who they go against in the World Series—Detroit or Oakland.

"I wouldn't pick either of the teams over in that league," said a happy Reds' Manager Sparky Anderson, when someone asked him whom he'd rather face in the World Series which starts here Saturday. "We'll just play whoever wins."

On Wednesday, the Reds came back rom what looked like a heartbreaking loss, scoring two runs in the bottom of the ninth inning, to win 4-3.

Catcher Johnny Bench, who "just had a feeling," led off the inning with a towering home run into the rightfield seats off Pittsburgh relief ace Dave Giusti.

The pitch that cost the Pirates the game and the National League pennant, however, was served up by Bob Moose, the fourth Pittsburgh hurler, and it came just as it appeared the stocky righthander would work out of a sticky situation he inherited.

Moose relieved Giusti with runners on first and second, nobody out, and a two ball, no strike count on the Reds' Cesar Geronimo.

He got Geronimo to fly deep to right with pinchrunner George Foster moving to third, and then Darrel Chaney popped to shortstop Gene Alley. With a one and one count on pinchhit-

Football: Wildcats In Healdsburg

With one eye on the scouting report and the other on the weather forecast, Marin Catholic High School's football team will take the field at 8 o'clock tomorrow night for a non-league game at Healdsburg High.

"Healdsburg has big interior linemen, and wet weather is bound to help a heavier team," said Marin Catholic coach Bruno Banducci.

The Wildcats (1-4) and Healdsburg (0-4) match four-games losing streaks. Among Healdsburg's losses are a 30-0 pasting by Sn Marin, and a 23-0 defeat last week to Cardinal Newman of Santa Rosa. The Sonomans have scored only 14 points all year.

Winkles Tabbed; Angels Oust Rice

California '9' Manager From College Ranks

Winkles, a pepper pot who wants 110 per cent from his players, replaced Del Rice as manager of the California Angels Wednesday.

General Manager Harry Dalton announced at a news conference that Rice, 50, who made his debut as a big league manager during the past season, could remain with the Angels in another capacity if he wished. Rice was not present.

Winkles made a name for himself as coach of Arizona State where he spent 13 years and had a won-lost record of 524-173 for a great .752 percentage.

Said Dalton:

"Bobby is aggressive and enthusiastic and has a great determination to win. He has sound knowledge of baseball fundamentals and the ability to teach. He has a winning background both as a professional player and as a baseball coach."

Winkles never played baseball in the majors but spent five years in the minors as an infielder in the Chicago White Sox' organization.

A native of Tuckerman, Ark., he was a 1952 graduate of Wesleyan College at Bloomington, Ill., where he starred in basketball and baseball.

BOBBY WINKLES
Angels' Boss

In taking the manager's job, Winkles said he wants the ball players to be in shape when they report for spring training.

"I don't want to waste any time even on the first day," he said. "This is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity ... certainly one too good to pass up. This is the second break Harry Dalton has given me. The first was the opportunity to coach the Angels this past season."

Dalton and Winkles said they will pick the coaching staff within four or five days.

Minnesota Explosion Rips Seals

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI)—For two periods, the California Golden Seals were riding high.

But a four-goal explosion by the Minnesota North Stars in the third period sealed their doom 5-2 and sent the Seals down to their second defeat in two starts of the new National Hockey League season.

Hilliard Graves blasted a 60-foot shot past goalie Gump Worsley to give the Seals their 2-1 lead midway in the second period after California's Reggie Leach and Minnesota's Barry Gibbs traded goals to open the scoring.

With Minnesota trailing 2-1 early in the third period, Billy Goldsworthy stole the puck, skated in on California Gilles Meloche and rapped a slapshot from 20 feet with 15:49 to go to tie the score.

Just 1:09 later, J.P. Parise skated behind the California net and set up Goldsworthy with a pass in front of the crease. Goldsworthy scored the winning goal.

Score by periods:

California	0	2	0	—2
Minnesota	0	1	4	—5

First period—No scoring. Penalties—California 1, Minnesota 0.

Second period—1, California, Leach 2 (Johnston) 1:54; 2, Minnesota, Gibbs 1 (Parise, Hextall) 8:50; 3, California, Graves 1 (Boldirev) 12:59. Penalties—California 1, Minnesota 2.

Third period—4, Minnesota, Goldsworthy 1 (unassisted) 4:11; 5, Minnesota, Goldsworthy 2 (Parise, Mohns) 5:20; 6, Minnesota, Harvey 1 (Parise, Hextall) 11:15; 7, Minnesota, Parise 1 (Goldsworthy, Hextall) 14:02. Penalties—California 2, Minnesota 3.

Goaltenders: California, Meloche; Minnesota, Worsley.

WITH GRID GIANTS

Ex-Niner Orduna's Shot At Old Mates

Orduna, a running back waived at the start of the season by the 49ers, is now a member of the taxi squad of the New York Giants. But he may be activated to fill in for Bobby Duhon, who suffered a charley horse in New York's 4521 win over New Orleans last week.

Giants' Coach Alex Webster says Orduna is making the trip to the West Coast with the team.

Webster says the Giants are "100 per cent improved" from last season. After opening losses to Detroit and Dallas, the Giants have beaten the Eagles and Saints.

Powering the New York offense are Ron Johnson and Charlie Evans, the former USC Trojan, who are one-two in both rushing and pass receiving. In veteran quarterback Norm Snead, the Giants have a classic dropback passer who has completed 67.8 per cent of his passes this season.

Two Cross Country Meets Washed Out

Petaluma and Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park high schools' cross country meets were rained out yesterday.

The Petaluma-Vallejo match was rescheduled for Oct. 25 and the Rancho Cotate-Healdsburg clash was tentatively reset for today.

Football Loop Byes Studied

By LEW CODDINGTON

An idle football field is the devil's workshop, goes an old saying which I just invented. Whether it's true or not will be known Saturday afternoon, or at the latest next Friday afternoon.

Under the current Marin County Athletic League football schedule, in which six opponents are played in seven weeks, each team draws a bye at some point during the season. Usually, the teams schedule a non-league opponnt, but Novato and Tamalpais high schools were unable to come up with games. The Hornets were idle last weekend and the Indians will see no action this weekend.

Will they be invigorated, or stale? Refreshed, or rusty? Only time will tell, to use another "original" saying.

Novato, which concluded a bruising game with Terra Linda before its break, took it easy. "We didn't practice Monday or Friday, we worked out in sweat clothes Tuesday and Wednesday, and we scrimmaged only one day, Thursday," said coach Al Scott. "This Monday, we just worked out in shorts in the gym."

Tam is practicing, but without intensity. "We gave the kids Monday off," said coach Mike Davlin. "We work the rest of the week, but we have a little more fun and games than normal."

Scott's team spent both weeks planning for its distant opponent, but Davlin's did not. "We've only scouted them once, so far, and they may have made changes since then, so we might be preparing for something that doesn't exist."

Davlin's opponent, coincidentally, is Novato next Friday.

"It's difficult to get the kids pumped up after a long layoff," said Scott. "We'd rather not have a bye."

CONFERENCE — The MCAL's post-season grid classic site selection negotiation committee, or whatever it's called, will meet with its North Bay League counterpart Monday night in Petaluma.

They'll discuss the possibility of changing the Nov. 18 game between the MCAL and NBL champions from Santa Rosa to Napa. It's the NBL's idea. The committee, consisting of coaches Scott and Don Lucas of Terra Linda, MCAL commissioner George Corson and San Marin principal Henry J. Moroski, will submit its recommendation to the Board of Managers.

GOAL-GETTER — Mike Kamler, San Rafael water polo star, had an astonishing pair of games last week, scoring 11 goals against Redwood and nine against Tamalpais for a total of 20. Goalie Mike Sisemore, on the othar hand, blocked 63 shots in two outings. Kamler against Sisemore would be an interesting match.

INTEREST — The Class B basketball tournament last weekend at Drake High School drew a crowd estimated at "about 50 or so consistently," and with the turnover, probably a couple of hundred, according to the tournament director, Pete Hayward.

HE SAID IT — Lucas on San Marin quarterback Hoza Wright: "It takes four men to defense him —three to bring him down, and one to hold his throwing arm."

WEIGHTY SUBJECT — The average interior lineman in the MCAL, our fumbling sliderule man has determined, weighs 186 pounds8— less in the fourth quarter on a hot day.

Interestingly, there seems to be a correlation between weight and success. Redwood (197½), San Marin (195) and Novato (192) have the heaviest lines on offense. All three were unbeaten until last weekend, and the Giants and Hornets still are.

On defense, the bulk belongs to Novato (198½), San Marin (196) and Terra Linda (195). They rank, respectively, second, third and first in yardage surrendered.

Pass the potatoes.

Three Major Prep Grid Games Set

Petaluma and Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park high schools play for first place in conference football races, while rivals Tomales;of Marin County and St Vincent of Petaluma meet in a North Central League II opening match.

Petaluma, which hosts Vallejo tomorrow night finds itself in first place in the North Bay League, tied with Ukiah at 2-0 after a 32-7 drubbing of Montgomery in Santa Rosa last week.

Rancho Cotate, which has now won 14 straight, will be facing its most serious challenge to date when the Cougars travel to Santa Rosa tomorrow night to play Piner on Bailey Field at Santa Rosa Junior College, 8 o'clock. The two teams are tied for first place in the Sonoma County League with 2-0 records.

While both the Petaluma and Rancho Cotate games should be defensive affairs, the Tomales-St. Vincent of Petaluma North Central League II clash Saturday night at 8 o'clock at Durst Field in Petaluma should be an offensive duel.

LIKE FATHER, LIKE SON

Cincinnati Reds' outfield batting star Pete Rose took time yesterday in Cincinnati to give batting tips to his son, Pete Jr., 2½. Rose and his Cincinnati teammates clinched the National League pennant and a berth in the baseball World Series opening Saturday in Cincinnati by dumping Pittsburgh, 4-3, yesterday in the fifth and deciding National League playoff game. NHL ROUNDUP

Structure Of Power Upset

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

After a tumultuous summer of invasion and foreign intrigue, the National Hockey League still hasn't come down to ice level.

With the new season only a few days old, it is becoming increasingly apparent that the intrusion of the new World Hockey Association, which lured away some 60 players from the NHL, has upset the power structure of the older league.

The Boston Bruins, for example, who lost only 13 of 78 regular season games last year en route to the Stanley Cup, were beaten Wednesday night for the second time in as many starts as they dropped a 4-3 decision to the Detroit Red Wings.

Detroit, incidentally, which failed to make the playoffs last year, now has a perfect 2-0 record as do the Buffalo Sabres, who were sixth in the East Division last season. Buffalo whipped the Los Angeles Kings, 7-3, Wednesday night.

The New York Rangers, the beaten finalists to Boston in last season's Stanley Cup and the favorites to win it all this season, continue to have their problems although they snapped a two-game losing streak by beating the Vancouver Canucks, 5-3.

In the West Division, the Pittsburgh Penguins, who were not hurt too badly by the WHA, are the early surprise as they took their second in a row by beating the St. Louis Blues, 5-2. In other games Wednesday night, the Chicago Black Hawks stretched their record to 3-0 by beating the Atlanta Flames 4-1, the Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens skated to a 2-2 tie and the Minnesota North Stars whipped the California Golden Seals 5-2.

Marin Tar Runners Win One, Lose One

College of Marin runners swept the first three places in a winning cross country meet against Skyline College of San Bruno yesterday, but the Mariners lost to West Valley of Campbell in the double dual show in Santa Rosa.

Raider Hopes On Young Defense

ALAMEDA, Calif. (UPI)— The Oakland Raiders are hoping that a young defensive front and a veteran defensive backfield will carry them into the Super Bowl.

In the defensive line and at linebacker, the Raiders are using six of seven players who were little known prior to 1970.

At end are Horace Jones, who is in his second season, and Tony Cline, a third-year man. Tackles are Art Thoms and Otis Sistrunk, a find from the Continental League. Thoms was with the club four seasons but this is his first as a starter.

Only one veteran is at linebacker—Gus Otto. Gerald Irons has replaced Dan Connors and Phil Villapiano is in his second year.

"It's a very young group," said one Raider official, "but our future depends upon rebuilding."

At defensive backs, the Raiders boast a veteran quartet of Willie Brown, George Atkinson, Nemiah Wilson and Jack Tatum who top the AFC in pass defense.

Meanwhile, the Houston Oilers management says General Manager John Breen will file a complaint with the National Football League next week against the "flagrant" and "unbecoming" behavior of Oakland Raider managing partner Al Davis.

Oiler owner K. S. "Bud" Adams refused to reveal specifically what the complaint would include, but said Breen would meet with NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle Monday.

"Al Davis continues to defy the by-laws and constitution of the National Football League and the Oilers will not let this go unnoticed by the commissioner," the Oilers announced Wednesday.

In NBA: Lakers Open With Win

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The Los Angeles Lakers picked up this season right where they left off last season Wednesday night.

The Lakers, kicking off their National Basketball Association 1972-73 season, had little trouble blasting something called the Kansas City-Omaha Kings by a 129-94 margin. They were the old Cincinnati Royals, who were the old Rochester Royals.

The game was played in Omaha.

Wilt Chamberlain, who is using the regular season for his season tuneup after his long holdout, was content to pass off and scored just seven points.

In the other two games, Seattle downed Philadelphia 105-100 and Boston downed Detroit 121-108.

Hartsfield Hired

ATLANTA (UPI)—The Atlanta Braves have hired Roy Hartsfield of the Los Angeles Dodgers as their first base coach. The 46-year-old Hartsfield, a native of Atlanta, had been with the Dodgers since 1969 following a successful stint as minor league manager.

NEW HOCKEY LOOP

Winnipeg To Start Without Star Hull

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The Winnipeg Jets will have to make their World Hockey Association debut tonight without the Golden Jet.

Bobby Hull, the prize attraction of the WHA, is waiting out a ruling by a federal judge in Philadelphia as to his eligibility to play in the new league, and he said today he doesn't want to jeopardize his chances by suiting up before a decision is reached.

Winnipeg opens its season tonight in New York against the Raiders. Hull, who also coaches the Jets, said he would seek "a sound ruling" on whether he is permitted to coach while awaiting the decision.

Gerry Cheevers, one of the National Hockey League defectors who is allowed to play in the new league, was the star of the WHA's opening program Wednesday night when he registered the league's first shutout as the Cleveland Crusaders beat the Quebec Nordiques 2-0. Cheevers, who starred in goal for the Stanley Cup champion Boston Bruins last year, turned aside 21 shots before a good crowd of 9,681 fans at Cleveland.

In the other opening night game, Bill Hicke and Ron Anderson scored two goals each to lift the Alberta Oilers to a 74 victory over the Ottawa Nationals. A crowd announced at 5,006 attended the game in Ottawa's Civic Center.

Wilkins Sought By Warriors

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Golden State Warriors are dickering to obtain playmaking guard Lenny Wilkens from the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Wilkens, who will be 35 on Oct. 28, has refused to report to the Cavaliers.

"We have talked to the Cavaliers about Wilkens but we couldn't confer for lon and it seemed like no use," said Warrior general manager Bob Feerick.

Wilkens averaged 9.6 assists per game last season, second highest in the National Basketball Association.

The Warriors are expected to be in top health when they open the 1972-73 season Saturday at the Oakland Coliseum against the Milwaukee Bucks. Tickets for this game are still available at Warrior ticket outlets.

49er-Raider Game— TV Blackout Of '70

Judge Alan K. Grim of Federal District Court in Eastern Pennsylvania ruled on Nov. 12, 1953, that pro football's 75-mile blackout ban on television of home games did not violate antitrust laws. At the time pro football owners negotiated their own individual television contracts.

Almost a decade later club owners signed their first single network TV contract. It was held in violation of antitrust laws. Pete Rozelle, just elected commissioner of the National Football League, went to Washington and was successful in getting a congressional exemption.

ON SEPT. 30, 1961, a bill legalizing single TV network contracts by professional sports leagues was introduced by Rep. Emanuel Celler, passed the House and Senate, and was signed into law by President Kennedy.

Now Congress is taking a hard look at the 75-mile blackout ban because of public clamor that it be lifted. The outcry has been going on for some time. Two years ago it reached a peak in this area just before the Dec. 20, 1970, game between the Raiders and 49ers following merger of the National and American Football Leagues.

THE RAIDERS were the home team since the game was in the Oakland Coliseum. As the home team the Raiders invoked the 75-mile blackout ban despite the fact it was a sellout, as all Raider home games have been.

The 49ers agreed to a local telecast of the game but since the primary decision rested with the Raiders they prevailed. Rozelle declined to interfere, citing Article X of the NFL constitution that states "no telecast of a home game within the home territory of a club shall be permitted, except by agreement between the participating clubs."

THOUSANDS OF 49er season ticket holders were incensed. Some of the more irate 49er fans wrote angrily to Rozelle. And some of them presented a logical escape for Rozelle from his delicate in-the-middle position but he didn't take it.

One of the 49er fans, Catherine Hacock of Carmel, predicted in her protest to Rozelle that "such arbitrary tactics as blacking out our area during this game, you and your owners stand to lose eventually the goodwill of paying customers."

MRS. HANCOCK informed the commissioner that she had been a 49er season ticket holder for more than 20 years and was irate that through "the great merger of NFL and AFL we should lose the right to see 49er away-from-home games on TV. Surely, the Raiders can be persuaded to cooperate, especially when you consider through the good efforts of your office how wondrous has been the cooperation of all parties in arriving at one big friendly league, with two conferences under its banner."

However, Rozelle refused to invoke the right of 49er fans to see an away-from-home game on TV and wrote to Mrs. Hancock that "in this situation the Oakland Raiders have made a decision that they feel is in the best interest of their season ticket holders and that is not to televise the game live."

ter Hal McRae, however, Moose broke a slider into the dirt in front of the plate. It bounced off catcher Manny Sanguillen's arm and Foster easily scored with the winning run.

Cincinnati's starting pitcher, 21-year-old southpaw Don Gullett, made it into the fourth inning, when he gave way to Pedro Borbon with the Pirates leading 2-1, runners on first and second and none out. Dave Cash greeted Borbon with a run-scoring single, but Pittsburgh got only one hit the rest of the way off Borbon, Tom Hall and winner Clay Carroll.

Cash drove in two of the Pirate runs with singles in the second and fourth innings.

The two runs the Reds got off Blass came on a double by Rose in the third which scored Chaney from second, and a home run over the right field fence in the fifth by Geronimo.

TREVINO TALKS GOLF

A Grip On Things

By LEE TREVINO

The communication between a golfer and his clubs begins where he places his hands. And that's on the grips, I hope.

Besides changing me from driving range flunky to touring pro, the '67 U.S. Open at Baltusrol (I tied for sixth) was where Rives McBee used four caddies in one day. The first one got fired for soaking Rives' grips in soap and water.

I don't let anybody else clean my grips. I like 'em a certain way — a little tacky — so I clean 'em myself. The way your hands feel on a club influences the way you hit that club.

The two main kinds of grips are leather and rubber. Leather grips seem to pick up more dirt, but they can be cleaned with a damp cloth. You could clean leather grips with toothpaste and it'd probably work okay.

I don't recommend this for smokers, but gasoline is one of the best things to clean rubber grips. It softens them just enough that you feel like your hands are welded to the stick.

Some players smear some kind of sticky gunk on their grips. They claim it gives them a tacky feeling. Maybe it does, and maybe a dab of molasses would too, but there's no way it can help the sensitivity of your fingers and hands.

Ailing Trevino In The Match Play Golf

However, Trevino, former U.S. Open champion and current holder of the British Open title for the second straight year, was expected to show up for his opening match against fellow American Doug Sanders.

Player, Trevino and Sanders were in a select field of eight top golfers competing for a first prize of $20,225 in the Piccadilly event — three days of 36-hole, man-to-man elimination matches.

It's the only major match play event on the world circuit and the players come only by invitation of the sponsor, a tobacco firm.

San Rafael Wishbone Faces San Marin '11'

halfback Jim Grigg, the MCAL's No. 3 rusher, who injured an ankle and will be replaced by Chris Valentino.

San Marin will be missing right linebacker Dave Azevedo, who underwent exploratory surgery in Novato General Hospital yesterday after complaining of abdominal pains, a hospital spokesman said. Azevedo's replacement hasn't been selected yet, coach Bob Martin said yesterday.

The Bulldogs will have the No. 1 rusher, fullback Steve D'Ambra, who crunched through Redwood for 106 yards; the No. 6 rusher, Craig Saunders; and the No. 9 rusher and resident play-caller, quarterback Lance Loughlin.

San Marin will counter with flashy left-handed quarterback Hoza Wright, who will be glad to get away from the wind at Novato High, which blew away his statistics last week. Wright and fullback Fred Doar are effective ball-carriers, and Greg Pater is the league's second-ranked receiver.

"I thought our defense played well against Terra Linda, and we're using the same alignment for San Rafael," said Martin. The basic approach to stopping a Wishbone is to assign a defender to each back and then to pray.

"Our big problem last week was that we didn't read our keys," said San Rafael coach Bob Muster. (The attack requires that the offensive team accurately determine what the defense will do, and then do something to counteract it.)

St. Patrick's team in Vallejo, despite a weight disadvantage. "Gino Pomilia, who weighs 145 pounds, played his finest game for us," said Banducci.

Lacking interior bulk, Marin Catholic will attempt to run outside Healdsburg on quick tosses and sweeps, Banducci said.

Fullback Jim Fillippi suffered a hip pointer against St. Pat's, but probably will play. Guard Tim Huber and defensive back Rich Lopez are still nagged by shoulder injuries which couldn't heal because Banducci had to alter his original plans and use them in the game.

Bookmakers Disagree On American League Choice

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

LAS VEGAS — Nevada bookmakers disagree as to who is favored to take the American League pennant today. Jimmy (the Greek) Snyder installed the Detroit Tigers as 11-10 favorites over the Oakland A's in today's finale while Harrah's Tahoe racebook stuck with the A's 13-10.

Football

LONG BEACH — Veteran defensive back Kermit Alexander cleared waivers Wednesday and was released by the Los Angeles Rams as a free agent.

The 31-year-old former San Francisco 49er star broke his right arm Aug. 19 and had been on the injured reserve list. Alexander was a first round draft choica of the 49ers in 1963 and was traded to the Rams for placekicker Bruce Gossett and a second round draft choice in 1970.

DENVER — Rich Jackson, a 6-foot-3, 255-pound all-pro defensive end with the Denver Broncs, was traded Wednesday in a surprise move to the Cleveland Browns for "a high undisclosed draft choice."

Tennis

BUCHAREST, Romania — America's Stan Smith and Romania's Ilie Nastase were drawn today as opening match foes tomorrow in the Davis Cup tennis finals.

The second singles match tomorrow in the best-of-five championship series will pit America's Tom Gorman and Romania's Ion Tiriac. The pairings will be reversed for Sunday's final two singles matches.

Basketball

DENVER — Criminal misdemeanor charges of marijuana possession and conspiracy were filed in Denver County Court Wednesday against Milwaukee Bucks basketball player Lucius Allen.

Allen, teammate Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and two other men were arrested in Denver last Friday after a police officer who stopped their car detected an odor of marijuana.

Hockey

CHICAGO — Swedish hockey star Ulf Sterner charged Wednesday that his signature was forged on a player contract with the Chicago Cougars of the New World Hockey Association, the Chicago Tribune said.

Sterner, recently named the most valuable player in the series between the Swedish National Team and Team Canada, was released Tuesday by the Cougars. The Tribune said Sterner charged in an interview that the real disagreement stemmed from his refusal to sign a new contract to replace one with the alleged forgery.

Auto Racing

MONTEREY — Final practice shakedown runs will be concluded today as a field of 44 sports cars prepare for tomorrtrials in the $75,000 Monterey Castrol Grand Prix.

The powerful Porsche racing team assembled by Roger Penske, with drivers Mark Donohue and George Follmer, has been tabbed the pre-race favorite.

SPORT SHORTS

Tam Runners Win 'Double'

Tamalpais High School's varsity cross country team won twice yesterday, beating Novato 17-38, and Terra Linda, 24-32, in a double dual meet in Novato. Terra Linda won against Novato, 19-36.

It rained so hard during the race, Novato coach Bob Smith reported, all the ink smeared on the record sheets and he was still trying to decipher the results today.

Prices Continue Broad Drop

Two-hour volume was about 6 million shares.

The market drop was attributed to concern over the possibility of a credit squeeze next year. Despite favorable third quarter earnings reports and optimism regarding Vietnam peace negotiations, investors remained hesitant and kept to the sidelines.

Pueblo International Corp. led the active list and was off 3-4 on 198,400 shares.

Prices also declined sharply on the American Stock Exchange. N.J.B. Prime Investors led the active list, up 1-8 to 19 3-4 on 27,000 shares.

Continental Investment was one of the morning's biggest losers on the Big Board, dropping 4 5-8. The Securities and Exchange Commission ordered hearings regarding the firm and two of its subsidiaries for alleged violation of securities laws.

Steels, motors and chemicals all moved lower. Eastman Kodak was off more than 2 following an article in the Wall Street Journal that said analysts were bearish on stock with high price-earnings ratios, including is Kodak.

Natomas lost 1 in the oils.

Rails, airlines and aircrafts were mostly lower. United Airlines fell 1-8 while Pan American, American, and TWA each gave up 1-4.

Electronics and computers came under heavy selling pressure throughout the morning. Burroughs was off 4 1-2; IBM 3 1-4 and Fairchild Camera 2 1-8. Motorola and Honeywell each lost 2.

Curtis Noll Future Bright

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have a chance to buy stock in the company I work for, Curtis Noll. Do you think this would be wise? — H.B.

Between 1962 and 1969 Curtis Noll (OTC) grew at a fast pace — 25 per cent compounded annually. Since then profits declined moderately reflecting a slower pace of sales increases, disposal of two marginal operations and a loss incurred when a major customer suffered a prolonged strike.

Because these factors were of a temporary nature, marked improvement is looked for this year. This has already been demonstrated in the first half when net gained 47 per cent on a 17 per cent rise in sales.

Some 63 per cent of sales is derived from the automotive replacement and consumer product markets. The balance is accounted for by industrial products, the area that had adversely affected operating results.

Curtis is currently trading at about 15x estimated 1972 net, well below the level of many automotive aftermarket issues. As a company employee, presumably purchasing shares at some advantage, I would urge you to accept this opportunity to build a nest egg toward retirement.

Q. I invested $10,000 in IDS Mutual Fund on a $50-a-month withdrawal plan. My principal kept going down so I switched to 437 shares of IDS Stock Fund. Now these shares are going down each month. What should I do? — J.S.

A. On 437 shares of the stock fund you would have received $284 last year in total distributions, a 2.5 per cent return on your investment. Since you are withdrawing $600 annually the balance must be made up from principal.

The same management offers Investors Selective which would better meet your needs. Because this fund is lower priced, your shares could be exchanged for 950 of the Selective Fund.

Thus far this year 45 cents a share has been distributed with 60 cents or better probable for the year. On 950 shares you would receive, at that rate, $570, leaving a minimal balance to be met from your capital.

Big Traffic Jam Feared At The Northgate Mall Saturday

The Sears grand opening at Northgate Mall Saturday morning may create such a traffic jam that Northgate employees and customers may have to park at Marin Civic Center and be shuttled in to the shopping area.

Estimates for the expected crowd range anywhere from 5,000 to 15,000. The parking area at Northgate Mall can hold just over 3,000 cars.

Since all parking spaces are expected to be filled by 8 a.m., employees and customers headed for Northgate after 8 a.m. are being asked to park at Marin Civic Center, where shuttle buses will be provided for the trip to Northgate Mall.

Thomas Stephenson, deputy chief of the San Rafael Police Department, said the California Highway Patrol, sheriff's office, and San Rafael police will have special patrols on duty Saturday morning to control traffic and keep people moving. "We're expecting the worst and hoping for the best," said Stephenson.

Official ceremonies for the grand opening will begin at sunrise, 7:17 a.m., with a "campaign breakfast" for Disneyland character Winnie the Pooh, the Children's Party choice for President.

An eight-piece Dixieland band will entertain until 8 a.m., when the Sears doors store will officialy open.

Two State Salary Proposals Untenable

Two proposals for constitutional changes in the method of fixing state employees' salaries will be on the Nov. 7 ballot as Propositions 15 and 16. Both are initiative measures.

Proposition 15 would take away from the Legislature the setting of salaries for state employees, and would deprive the governor of his veto power over salaries.

It would go far beyond that. It would put all state employment on a union collective bargaining basis, with compulsory arbitration.

PROPOSITION 15 specifies that the State Personnel Board, University of California Board of Regents, and State University and Colleges Board of Trustees conduct twice-a-year surveys of prevailing pay in public and private employment and recommended adjustments to state employees' salaries to bring them into line. The recommendations could not be overruled except by two-thirds vote of the Legislature. The governor would have no veto power over them.

Just how it would be possible to budget with pay scales revised twice a year, the proposition does not suggest.

But its most insidious provision would mandate collective bargaining. Present law permits state employees to join unions and to be represented in pay negotiations by those unions. But Proposition 15 would make union negotiations mandatory, as part of the constitution.

"All matters relating to employer-employee relations," it reads, ". . . are to be resolved by written agreement between the state appointing powers and majority employee organizations . . . Disputes between the state and its employees shall be resolved by independent arbitrators if requested by either party."

WE BELIEVE, with the late Franklin D. Roosevelt, that the union shop has no place in public employment, in which the employer is the people and there is no "share of profits" concept involved.

Further, denying the governor veto power over pay scales decreed by non-elected boards runs contrary to the principles of democratic government. And, as a practical matter, twice-a-year pay revisions would make annual budgeting a nightmare.

We strongly recommend a "NO" vote on Proposition 15.

PROPOSITION 16 would apply to the California Highway Patrol only, setting its pay in different fashion from that of other state employees.

It requires that the State Personnel Board canvass the state and adjust Highway Patrol salaries "to at least the maximum rate paid policemen or deputy sheriffs within comparable classes."

These rates would be binding unless modified by two-thirds vote of the Legislature.

THIS WOULD MEAN that where any city or county in California has exceptionally high pay for a particular police position, that pay would be applied to the comparable class of highway patrolmen. It would not merely give the highway patrolmen parity; it would guarantee they would be paid at the top rate.

The California Highway Patrol has been passed up in salaries by many police and sheriff's departments. It has received less consideration than it deserved from both governor and Legislature. We think the highway patrolmen are entitled to better pay. But freezing in the constitution a provision that they must be paid at least equal to the highest-paid law officers anywhere in California is not the way to do it.

We recommend a "NO" vote on Proposition 16.

Highway Patrol Needs Advancement Opportunities

By EARL G. WATERS

It is unfortunate that the Highway Patrolmen's Association is expending its efforts chasing a will o' the wisp initiative.

The patrolmen have advanced Proposition 16, which would establish for them an unrealistic salary formula, separate from all other state workers. It would take away all control now held by the governor and diminish the authority of the personnel board and even the Legislature over their pay.

It is unfortunate because it hurts their image. Their proposal can only breed resentment of the voters who, historically, reject salary proposals.

It is also unfortunate in that it misdirects energies. For the pay is not the basic problem of the highway patrolmen. The starting salaries are far above that which can be earned by young beginners with no experience, with or without college, in most other jobs.

WHAT IS REALLY wrong with Highway Patrol jobs is the lack of opportunities for advancement. Out of 5,600 uniformed positions, only 800 are promotional. The result is that most patrolmen find themselves getting the same pay after 20 years as the beginner.

Anyone in personnel management knows there must always be the carrot. The worst employment are the dead-end jobs where no opportunity for advancement exists.

The fact is that the patrolmen compose a fine body of men. They have excellent basic training and acquire sound experience. They also have splendid in-service training and the same opportunity for additional education on their own as all other state workers. But there is no incentive because their training and experience has not been recognized in examinations for other state jobs.

THE LONG-RANGE goal of the patrolmen would be to open up to them, for promotional opportunities, a wide range of other state jobs. These need not be law enforcement as such, but jobs where their training and experience would be valuable in the performance of other duties.

Former Commissioner Brad Crittenden recognized this need but nothing was done. The new commissioner, Walter Pudinski, an up-from-the-ranks patrolman himself, intends to get something done. He already has taken positive steps to remove the tarnish from the men by eliminating the ticket quota system and directing more meaningful efforts to selective enforcement.

He is now seeking to establish a beginner rank with promotion after a specified period. There is also talk of a new rank between patrolman and sergeant. These are internal widenings of the promotional pattern.

Pudinski is thinking bigger than that. "I would like to see a program where there could be lateral moves with promotional opportunities not only between us and other state agencies but between us and other law enforcement bodies at all levels of government within California. Such a program would be mutually invigorating for the patrol and the others. It would open the door to exchange of the best ideas and new ideas."

Perhaps the discontent evidenced by the effort the patrolmen have put into the salary initiative will spur those in authority to take positive steps to correct an intolerably deficient advancement pattern which now prevails within the patrol.

Coverage Made Report Unnecessary

I rarely write your newspaper unless I have some complaint to air; however, this time I wish to commend you on your excellent coverage of the Corte Madera Citizens Committee meeting at Redwood High School on Sept. 30.

As both a concerned citizen and an observer for the Corte Madera Women's Improvement Club I attended the group meeting involved in town services, after which I wrote a report. I could have saved myself the trouble of such a report by merely having our members refer to your paper.

Auto Agency Thanked For Impressive Flag

Have you seen one of the finest additions to the entrance way to San Rafael? There is a stunning, huge, gorgeous American flag flying from a handsome tall pole in front of the Lincoln-Mercury Building on Francisco Boulevard. It is a graceful, billowing flag visible to all who travel Highway 101.

Thank you, Lincoln-Mercury, for putting such a striking spot of beauty in so conspicuous a location to constantly remind us of our great country.

Television Re-runs Most Pressing Problem?

One of the primary concerns of the Nixon administration has to do with the re-runs on television, whereas, the primary concerns of a growing number of Americans are:

The spiraling costs of living;
High unemployment;
Corruption in government;
A re-run in Washington.

Like another little boy who once cast a diaper into the ring, I think it is time for a change.

Don't Fluoridate, Ban Soft Drinks

Why is it that anti-fluoridationists are always being referred to as a misguided and uninformed minority? In two Marin County elections, June and November of 1960, they were quite definitely the majority, since in those years fluoridation was voted down by the Marin County electorate. In my opinion, the dentists are the misguided and uninformed minority, when they insist that 1 ppm. fluoride in drinking water will counteract the damage wrought by carbonated drinks, candy bars and inadequate diet.

But then, can we expect more when we read in the Journal of Dentistry, April, 1970, page 769, Dr. Gampson suggesting that "if the dentists expect to win they should frankly accept the fact that they are propagandizing, not educating?" . . .

Why aren't our dentists spending their time, money and energy propagandizing for progressive and beneficial legislation — such as a tax on soft drinks?

Any thinking person, be he dentist or parent, should be able easily to choose which one of these plans is most worthy of being encouraged: artificial fluoridation of the public water supply whose benefits and hazards are at least debatable or a serious attempt to do something about the basic cause of tooth decay.

Why Mention Beer Cans Found In Car?

You have a fine paper, but I wish you would take a little more care in the handling of "death". It is a time when people suffer and good journalism does not call for hurting people in the way you have hurt lately.

Last week an offensive obituary. This week in reporting an accident involving the death of a teen-ager I read "two empty beer cans were in the car". What does this add to a better America? Would you prefer that they had thrown the cans in the drainage ditch? Would you have put this in if it had been a member of your own family?

While Others Snipe, President Negotiates

The article and picture which accompanied it as submitted by UPI to the Independent-Journal of Oct. 3, in regard to the signing of the pact by the both great powers to suspend the use of nuclear weapons, should meet with the approval of all America.

The smile on the face of the President would indicate complete evidence of satisfaction of accomplishment. How else could we bring about a closer understanding and association between nations except at a conference table? Men may come and men may go but few indeed were those who have been elected to high office of President who have displayed the undaunted courage to further his ideals — among them to bring us closer to the common goal of security and peace of all nations including our own!

Although billions have "gone down the drain" throughout all time (there has never been a victory really in any war) considering the aftermath of human misery and suffering which follows every conflict, shall we not welcome a "new approach" in our attempt to rid the world of the "worst of evils" — use the money spent on destructive weapons and useless campaign funds to heal the deep scars left on the families of both victor and vanquished?

So instead of vicious unfounded accusations by the opposing party, shall we not temper this bitterness and "mud slinging" while our President is busy at his job of keeping the peace with honor — in conforming with one of the great rules laid down by the much loved J.F.K., "We should never fail to negotiate"?

Single-Track McGovern Campaign Fails To Enthuse The Voters

NEW YORK — In this state, with its prize of 41 electoral votes, Sen. George McGovern has been campaigning intensively, but two handicaps he labors under are painfully evident. The first derives from the costly backing and filling, the on-again, off-again uncertainty that followed his triumphs in the primaries and the Eagleton disaster.

The high cost of that slippage in time is shown by the reaction of a group of distinguished medical men who had wanted to set McGovern on the way to making effective use of the issue of medical care in the campaign. They had been recruited by Max Palevsky, a big money McGovern contributor and theoretically in charge of issues before he opted out as a result of staff rivalries.

The fantastic rise in the cost of health care — a major illness can be ruinous to a middle-income family — was an issue with the widest possible voter appeal. How to present a workable program demonstrating that the upward spiral can be brought under control? Dean Paul A. Marks of the Columbia University Medical School assembled a committee of doctors from around the country. Devoting precious spare time and energy, they outlined a proposal for expanded government medical and hospital care that would put supplementary costs within reach of the average family.

THERE HAS THUS far been no effort to project a constructive plan into the political dialogue. Issues such as health care that touch every citizen are lost sight of as the Democratic campaign concentrates on attacking President Nixon and promising rewards to particular voting segments — the Poles, the Italians, Catholics, Jews.

The second handicap gets down to McGovern's temperament and character. A remark by one of his principal public image advisers is revealing. We tried, he said, at the start to get George to take voice and speech coaching. But he turned us down because he didn't want to have anything artificial or false about his campaign.

His delivery on the stump is monotonous, seldom varied from a tone of earnest idealism interspersed with barbs hurled at the corrupt Nixon administration. On a one-to-one basis he is persuasive and convincing. Before a small group, 100 or 150, he is effective. But judging from all reports as he moves around the country, the crowds are turned off by the monotony of his performance. The evidence of his indignation over the alleged Nixon scandals, his conviction of the need for profound change at home and abroad if America is to be set on a proper course, simply does not come through.

THE DEMOCRATIC candidate must direct his crowd appeal in competition not with the President alone. He is competing, and nowhere is it more apparent than in this show business city, with the performers who on the little screen reach millions of viewers — with Cavett, Cash, the whole array with their tricks and the understanding of their producers and directors of just how short is the span of public attention. That is an incidental effect of the great ogre of television.

In his two campaigns for the presidency, Adlai Stevenson promised to talk sense to the American people. His good sense on a score of issues availed him little running against a national hero already enshrined in the American pantheon. But it was the kind of sense that lives today as part of a political heritage rarely marked by excellence.

It is perhaps too much to ask a presidential candidate hard pressed on the short end of the polls to take a stand for nobility of purpose and good sense. Whatever influence it might have on the voters on Nov. 7 — and if the Stevenson precedent meant anything it could be precious little — he would have a better chance for an honorable place in history. The man from South Dakota, the Populist, the idealist, is having his first go with the big time and he is finding it rough indeed.

But surely it is not too much to ask that on one side at least the issues be discussed with regard for the verities of a deeply troubled nation. Four weeks remain and that is precious little given the mood reported from all sides of disillusion and distrust.

Vietnam War Settlement Now Possible At Any Time

WASHINGTON — The war in Vietnam could be settled right now. Whether it will is another matter depending on intangibles which no one in Washington can yet measure with certainty.

The strongest reason for thinking that the end just might be near is that Henry Kissinger, who manages peace negotiations for the United States, has been telling people around Washington that the atmosphere of his latest talk with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho seemed to be more congenial.

And Mr. Tho does seem to be willing to meet Mr. Kissinger in Paris any time Mr. Kissinger thinks he has something worth saying.

AS FOR THE WAR itself and the prospects of the two sides:

Hanoi could still hope some day to win its major purpose, a victory over all its enemies in Saigon, if it could count on full continuing support from both China and Russia.

But Hanoi can no longer count on such full support and, indeed, is not getting it. On the contrary, both Moscow and Peking are behaving as though they wished very much that the war would go away and let the big countries get on with matters which to all of them now seem more important. The war has become a nuisance to the big powers. Its outcome is no longer vital to anyone.

Washington once feared that a Hanoi victory would mean a leap forward for Chinese imperialism. But that was before Russia backed India against Pakistan and took its stand as a major barrier to any Chinese expansion through Southeast Asia towards Africa. Besides, Washington has now concluded that Peking is so busy managing its own internal problems that it has no serious imperial dreams of foreign conquest.

Washington also once feared rising Russian influence in Southeast Asia. But China is there as a counterweight to Russian influence.

SO RUSSIAN and Chinese rivalry cancels out Indochina as a major prize in the old "cold war". It is likely to be relatively neutral between Russia and China, hence of minor importance to the United States. At the moment the American position there is merely an expense with no promise of any valuable military, political, or economic gain at the end of the road.

This would also be to the advantage of China and Russia. China would rather have Vietnam remain divided with some residual American influence in the southern part than to have Russia someday make a serious political lodgement. And for Russia anything would be better than a unified Vietnam under Chinese influence.

The fact that Russia and China dislike and distrust each other more than the United States has profoundly changed the framework around the war. China is not even pressing the United States to withdraw its military presence in Asiatic waters as a protection, not as a threat.

THE PROOF of the above seems to be on the battlefield, where Hanoi's great spring offensive has petered down into occasional local outbursts. There has been no major or broad front effort for some two months now. The reduced pressure seems to be due partly at least to non-replacement from Russia of the tanks and artillery used so lavishly in the earlier weeks of the offensive.

American military intelligence does not know that the tank losses have not been replaced. But they have not been in battle of late. They are not visible.

IT ALL COMES BACK to a question whether the men in Hanoi are realists enough to recognize that a compromise is the best end result they can get. If they are, a settlement can be had almost any day.

But are they realists, or are they the last true ideological Communists left in the world today?

Hanoi may be the last place in the world where ideologists can still dominate policy. If so, Mr. Kissinger's settlement can be long in coming.

Police And Firemen Seething Over City Officials' Luncheons

News that several San Rafael city officials have been accustomed to expensive luncheons at city expense has prompted a mixed reaction from city hall.

One outraged city councilman declared that an Independent-Journal reporter "should be held in a latrine" for making public the restaurant circuit list.

The city father still maintains there is nothing wrong with lunching on filet mignon and shrimp Rocquefort at taxpayer expense if one is accustomed to eating similar fare at home.

Another councilman, however, confides he is glad news of the lunching is out, saying it will save the city money. "This lunching has been a sensitive issue, at times coming up in closed session ... but we've never done anything about it," he said.

"There's no question that luncheon meetings are often an important function of city government. But how much should they cost?"

Yet another city leader has expressed concern that news of the expensive tastes of a few casts a shadow over other, more frugal city leaders.

ALL COUNCILMEN seem to agree that San Rafael's luncheon expenses appear insignificant when compared to the kingly sums charged by Tam High School District personnel.

But the comparison can't sooth seething city safety employees, who claim that money might now be available for a retroactive pay raise if last year's luncheons and travel had been kept to a minimum.

"The same councilmen who told us the city couldn't afford a pay raise retroactive to July were the ones wining and dining," one policeman declared. "Every little bit of waste hurts ... and we end up getting the shaft."

The San Rafael Policemen's Association, meanwhile, is considering suing the city for the pay it feels its members deserve.

THE SAN RAFAEL City Council will meet in closed session after the public hearing on redevelopment Oct. 26 to consider an appointment for a vacancy on the city's board of review. It's a closed session that's long overdue.

The six-year term of board member John D. LaNoue expired in 1969, but until now the vacancy has been overlooked, according to City Mgr. James H. McCown.

Crackdown On The Graffiti

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mayor John V. Lindsay and the City Council have seen the handwriting on the wall, and they want to wipe it off.

The council, expanding on a proposal by the mayor, passed a law Tuesday cracking down on "handwriting hooligans" who have spawned an "epidemic" of spray-paint graffiti on New York's public buildings, subways and buses.

"The graffiti epidemic which can be seen everywhere is costly and ugly evidence of destructive and thoughtless behavior," Lindsay said. "We need to have every kind of measure to deter this kind of behavior."

Felony Drug Case Dropped

A Marin Municipal Court judge has dismissed a felony drug count against a 23-year-old Honolulu man after ruling the evidence in the case was improperly obtained.

Judge David R. Baty cleared Dennis Michael Quinn Tuesday because of lack of evidence.

Quinn was arrested in the Fountain Motel in Tamalpais Valley after a maid told sheriff's deputies she found LSD under a pillow in his room in late May.

When Marriage Partners Fight, There Goes The Old GNP

WASHINGTON — For the first time, it has been conclusively proved that the United States loses 34 million manhours of work each week due to fights between husbands and wives.

Prof. Heinrich Applebaum of the Institute for Advanced Martial Development has just completed a study on marriage disputes and their effect on the gross national product.

"MY STUDY," Professor Applebaum told me, "indicates that production is affected even more by domestic fights than alcoholism."

"How can that be?"

"For some reason, which we still have not been able to determine, the American wife prefers to start all fights with her husband at bedtime. These fights, which last on the average of two or three hours, prevent the man from getting any sleep. The next day he is completely useless at his job, causing accidents, grave errors in bookkeeping, and making horrible decisions in a groggy state of mind."

"That's serious," I admitted.

"WE SUSPECTED it all along," Applebaum said. "But now we have the data to back it up. This is a case history of a typical American couple in Detroit whom we followed through from dinnertime one evening to lunch the next day:

"Saxby came home at 6 p.m., had a dry martini, watched the evening news and then shared a delicious dinner with his wife and three children. After dinner he took a bath, read the evening paper and watched the Dean Martin Show. The wife did the dishes, called her mother, took her bath and read a chapter of 'The Godfather.'

"Mr. Saxby said, 'Good night, dear. I have an early meeting tomorrow with some subcontractors to discuss a very important matter.'

"Mrs. Saxby said, 'Good night, dear.'

"Five minutes later Mrs. Saxby asked, 'Why don't you ever talk to me?'

" 'You never talk to me any more. You have an awful lot to say to your friends, but you don't have anything to say to me.'

" 'I TALK TO YOU,' Saxby said, getting a good grip on his pillow. 'We talk all the time.'

" 'But you never say anything. You don't talk to your children, either. As far as we're concerned, you're just a boarder here.'

"Saxby rolled over on his stomach. 'You're right, I should talk more to all of you. Good night, near.'

" 'That's typical of you,' Mrs. Saxby said, lighting a cigarette. 'You think you can just end a discussion by saying I'm right. It doesn't wash any more. You won't even talk to me now.'

" 'I'd love to talk to you,' Saxby said, 'but it's midnight and I have this meeting with the subcontractors tomorrow.'

" 'Of course. Your work is so much more important than your home life. Why don't you just move into the office and forget about us?'

"SAXBY STARTED punching the pillow. 'Look, I tell you what. Why don't I come home early from work tomorrow and we'll discuss it then?'

" 'I want to discuss it now. Tomorrow it might not bother me.' "

The case history said the Saxbys stayed awake until 3 o'clock in the morning discussing not only why Saxby didn't talk to his wife but also an old girlfriend that Saxby had before he was married, a questionable joke Saxby had told at a dinner party the previous week, a poker game Saxby had gone to a year ago, and the fact that he had missed his 17-year-old daughter's birthday party when she was 3 years old.

The next morning, according to the case history, Saxby was so sleepy he made a mitake on the subcontracting job, and three months later the Ford Motor Co. had to recall one million cars.

BART System Is Officially Dedicated

OAKLAND (UPI) — One month and one accident after it went into service, the Bay Area Rapid Transit District was dedicated Wednesday by Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe.

Volpe, as top Nixon administration aides have done frequently on trips outside Washington this election year, announced another federal grant of $27 million to the first new regional transit network built in the United States in 65 years.

During a brief ride on a BART train two weeks ago, President Nixon announced a $38 million grant for the system.

"I can't remember when I've enjoyed a ride more," Volpe said after riding one of BART's sleek silver trains from Hayward, where he toured the system's repair shops, to Fremont for dedication rites and then back to Oakland for more ceremonies.

"Not only are the cars comfortable, but you can actually hear yourself and people around you talk," he said. "It is a far cry from the discomfort and noise the public finds too often in today's mass transit systems."

Volpe said the $27 million grant would be used to buy n additional 100 cars. It was the seventh Department of Transportation grant to BART, bringing to $207 million the federal capital rants for the $1.4 billion system.

BART officially went into service Sept. 11 on a 28-mile stretch of track between Oakland and Fremont. The first accident occurred two weeks ago when a train failed to stop at the Fremont station and smashed into a sand barrier at the end of the line, then dropped nose first into a parking lot below. Five persons were injured, none seriously.

The California Public Utilities Commission opened hearings into the accident Tuesday in San Francisco. BART officials blamed the accident on a malfunctioning crystal which misinterpreted a stop order as a command to speed up. The train's attendant testified that there have been several malfunctions in the system's automatic control system.

The San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department is accepting applications for officiating adult men's league basketball games. The league will begin next month but all interested persons must apply by Wednesday. They should get in touch with recreation supervisor Ralph Dannenberg.

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.

Smoke particles, light air pollution.

Other areas:

San Francisco, light air pollution.

San Jose, clean air.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

ALMANAC

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Thursday, Oct. 12, the 286th day of 1972 with 80 to follow. This is Columbus Day.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Libra. American theologian Lyman Beecher was born Oct. 12, 1775.

On this day in history:

In 1492, Christopher Columbus discovered the new world known as America. The first landing is believed to have taken place in the Bahamas, southeast of the coast of what now is Florida.

In 1960, during a speech before the United Nations General Assembly, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev removed one of his shoes and pounded on his desk with it. Assembly President Frederick Boland lost his Irish temper and split his gavel trying to maintain order.

In 1971, President Nixon announced plans to meet with Soviet leaders in Moscow in May. Also that day, former Secretary of State Dean Acheson died at the age of 78.

SHOWING OFF YOUR PICTURES

There are innumerable ways to show off your best photographs, singly or in combination. Simple frames are effective. You can have it done professionally, or mount them yourself in a wide choice of metal and wood frames that are ready to use.

The new lucite blocks make handsome display cases for your pictures, effective on a desk or table. Picture "cubes" are also more and more popular, with pictures on the different faces. Multi-faced screens serve the same way.

You'll also find it fun and rewarding to try mounting your photographs on different kinds of backings, such as weathered wood, metal, cloth. The only thing holding you back is your imagination . . . so let it take flight, not only in your picture-taking but also in imaginative display of your best pictures!

When it comes to photo processing, we bring a lot of expertise and care to the job. We'll gladly answer your questions about custom work, as well as providing fast, quality photo finishing whenever you need it.

Progress report #5

Archaeological site studies are made to preserve artifacts before construction begins.

Balloons are raised to the same heights as future plant buildings and viewed from a distance to keep visual impact at a minimum.

We're working hard to preserve and enhance your environment and also to provide you with adequate, reliable energy. Both are essential to the good life everybody wants to enjoy.

PG and E
We live here too.

ISN'T GOOD SERVICE WONDERFUL?
Our service is "late" but nice. Marin commuters have found it very convenient that our service department is now open till 7 pm. Monday thru Friday. In most cases we can give your VW a maintenance or tune-up by 7 pm if you come in by 5 pm. Call our private service line 388-5230 and give us a vote for "late" service.

Voices In Palestine Remain Unorganized

The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

BEIRUT — It is an indication of the desperate confusion prevailing in inter-Arab politics that Egypt President Sadat's suggestion that the Palestinians should form a government in exile appeared at once timely and necessary as well as mischievous and impractical.

Sincere friends of the Palestinians, Arab and non-Arab alike, have been urging them for years to form their own government. For this would immediately add weight and substance to their presence on the world scene — a weight that the present Palestinian Liberation Organization does not have because it is not much more than a coordinating body.

And precisely because the Palestinian people are a diaspora, and precisely because their cause is now at its lowest ebb, it is all the more urgent and necessary for Palestinians to have a single authoritative voice to speak for them.

Yet after prolonged debate the executive committee of the PLO has once again affirmed that the Palestine personality would continue to be represented by that organization.

The government-in-exile idea was not rejected outright because the Palestinians did not wish to rebuff President Sadat too rudely and also because there was some support for the idea within the committee, as the lengthy debates showed.

One reason why the PLO majority said "no" is that the Palestinians continue to be deeply divided into various resistance groups which would certainly not be able to agree on anything so important as the composition of a government.

The discussion on the Sadat suggestion only served to emphasize these differences — which is why some consider it mischievous. And because of the ticklish problem of where the government would be based, the idea, if it develops, will exacerbate inter-Arab rivalries.

Since the Palestinian rejection of this proposal was definitely predictable, President Sadat's reasons for putting it forward at this time become of interest.

It is not thought to be solicitude for an adequate Palestinian representation that motivated the Egyptian leader, but his own worries about the prospects of the negotiated peace settlement with Israel which he, and King Hussein, are trying so hard to achieve.

Most people, including the United States government, accept that the Palestinians have to be party to any such settlement. The Egyptian president accordingly seems to have been suggesting that the Palestinians produce a representative body that would have formal authority to sign on the dotted line, and thus make any peace settlement between Israel and the Arab governments binding on the Palestinians as well.

That, indeed, was the other and perhaps the main reason why the Palestinians turned down the Sadat proposal. They believe that if they had a government it would be that much easier for the Arab governments to pressure it into going along with peace terms acceptable to those governments but not at all acceptable to the Palestinian resistance movement.

This being the Palestinians' reasoning, it might be imagined that Israel and Jordan would have approved of the government-in-exile idea. Yet both governments attacked it.

Paradoxically, the Palestinians have refused to remove themselves from the Middle Eastern picture by refusing to assume a definite governmental structure. By remaining unorganized, disorganized and divided, the Palestinians are that much less easy either to remove or ignore.

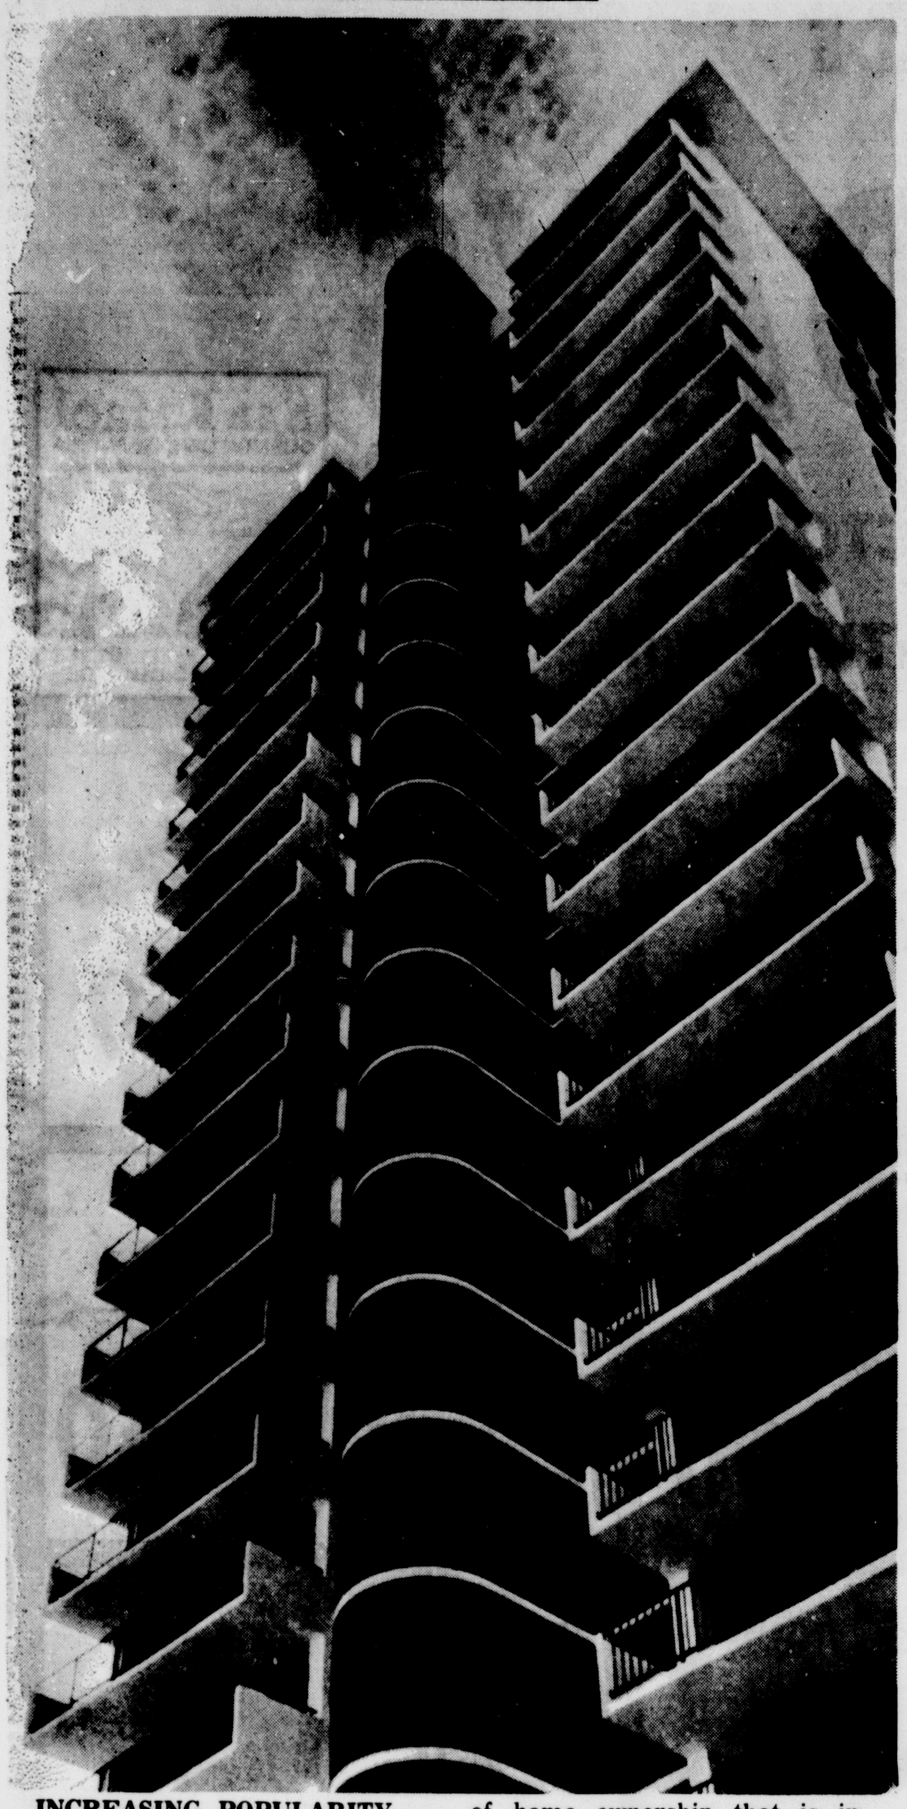
The Turn Toward Condominiums



INCREASING POPULARITY — Oceanfront condominium in Hallandale, Fla., typifies a new style of home ownership that is increasing in popularity across the United States. (Christian Science Monitor photo)

By MARTIN SKALA
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — A surging demand for condominiums is adding extra zip to the home-building outlook this fall.

Ranging from luxury ocean-front high rises in Southern California to colonial style town houses in the western Connecticut hills, "condos" are currently the housing industry's hottest product. "The most successful housing innovation in years," enthuses Irving Rose, president of Advance Mortgage Corp., a Detroit-based organization that keeps close tabs on home building trends.

Much of the unexpected strength in multi-family housing starts this year stems from the growing popularity of the "condo" concept. Statistically, condominium activity is hard to measure precisely.

For reporting purposes, government bodies usually count them as apartments along with rental units. But in its latest survey of housing trends Advance Mortgage predicts that builders will lay foundations for more than 235,000 condominiums of all types this year, including townhouses, garden apartments, and high rises.

This level of activity would be triple last year's figure and would account for about 10 per cent of total U.S. housing starts. Outside of Florida, more condominiums are under construction than have been built in all the years to date.

In cities where condominium ownership is relatively new, such as Philadelphia, and Washington "demand is fantastic," Advance Mortgage reports. "Any well-planned development has strong pre-sale and some are sold out before the first model apartments are even finished," the survey says.

Condominiums are said to be capturing a "striking variety of market segments around the nation." In Chicago, Atlanta and Detroit more than a quarter of all new multifamily apartments now have "for sale" instead of "for rent" signs hanging on them.

Many younger families who might otherwise be looking for $25,000 to $30,000 single-family homes are opting for a town house or garden apartment that cost 10 to 20 per cent less, builders say. In Washington, D.C., low-rise and garden-type "condos" have preempted the $25-35,000 market from the one-family home, Advance Mortgage says.

Despite some scattered problems with overbuilding, luxury condominiums selling for $60,000 to $100,000 are going over big in resort areas such as San Diego and Boca Raton, Fla. Many developments are aimed at affluent retirees and offer easy access to golfing, swimming pools, and waterfront marinas. As an extra inducement for second-homeowners, developers offer extra income and tax deductions.

In an effort to hold home building costs down and reach families that can't afford the detached house costing $25,000 or more, many developers are building garden apartments and town houses on large-scale tracts.

Dallas-based Centex Corp., which claims to be the largest U.S. builder of condominiums, says that only one-third of the close to 2,500 living units it will build this year will be of the single-family detached variety. Centex's condominiums range from one-bedroom garden apartments selling from $16,000 up in St. Petersburg, Fla., to elegant $90,000 three-bedroom units on the Hudson River overlooking Manhattan.

Thomas Cooper, marketing vice president for Centex's home building arm, attributes the swing toward condominiums to "changing life styles, particularly among the young. Many younger families no longer dream of a split-level house surrounded by an acre of land," he says.

"Condominiums satisfy the homeowning instincts of people who don't want the burdens of property maintenance," Cooper says. Getting mortgage financing in most areas is no more difficult now than for single-family homes.

For builders, three- to four-family townhouses and garden apartments help overcome a problem of land scarcity in urban areas. Many of Centex's developments include outdoor recreational facilities — usually in an attractive parklike setting. Owners pay a monthly charge that takes care of maintenance of common properties as well as such typical home-owning chores as lawn care and exterior painting.

From the buyer's viewpoint the income tax shelter available from the deductibility of interest and real estate taxes is a major attraction, according to Cooper.

Tax savings are also one reason why many apartment buildings are being converted to condominiums in some large cities. The tax shelter aspects of apartment ownership diminish over the 10 to 15 year period.

Thus, landlords are encouraged to convert rental units to condominiums, especially since they find that individual apartment sales in the aggregate can bring as much as 25 per cent more income than the sale of the whole building to another landlord.

Troubles With Fire Alarms

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Students at Indiana University campus in Indianapolis have gotten used to the sounds of fire alarms and emergency vehicles this summer.

It seems a problem with the fire detectors in rooms that are not air-conditioned keeps tripping the school's fire alarms.

"The detectors are set as low as they possibly can be now, consequently there is nothing we can do about it," a school official said.

Dentist Advises Early Warning Plan

LONDON (AP) — Dentists should operate an early warning system in the diagnosis of diseases, says Prof. J. Harold Jones, professor of oral medicine at Manchester University.

He told the British Dental Association conference in Swansea that certain changes in the mouth could provide pointers which could lead to the early diagnosis of bodily disease.

Egypt Arrests Women Chasers

BEIRUT (AP) — In Egypt, a low wolf whistle can quickly bring the power of the law on sidewalk playboys and women chasers.

This year, the agency reported 12,000 sidewalk woman chasers were condemned to prison sentences ranging from one week to two years and fined from $46 to $230, depending on the gravity of the offense.

Dior Accused By Youth Group

BORAS, Sweden (AP) — Leading French fashion design house, Christian Dior, is being accused of threatening the future of animals already on the verge of extinction by using their pelts in his clothes.

The conference also decided to open a world-wide campaign against the waste of natural resources.

Marriage Ends Affair By Mail

MICHIPICOTEN, Ont. (AP) — With the Lake Superior surf providing a backdrop, Cape Breton-born Ann Whitehouse and Ojibway Indian Joe Thibeault were married on the beach here after a romance by correspondence.

They met briefly in Toronto, where Ann was living, some years ago. Later they started writing each other, and Ann's letters eased the loneliness in Joe's life as lighthouse keeper on Michipicoten Island. They became engaged by mail two years ago.

The groom, a former fisherman who has been lightkeeping for 10 years, was dressed in Indian regalia as he rode up to the beach on horseback for the outdoors wedding ceremony.

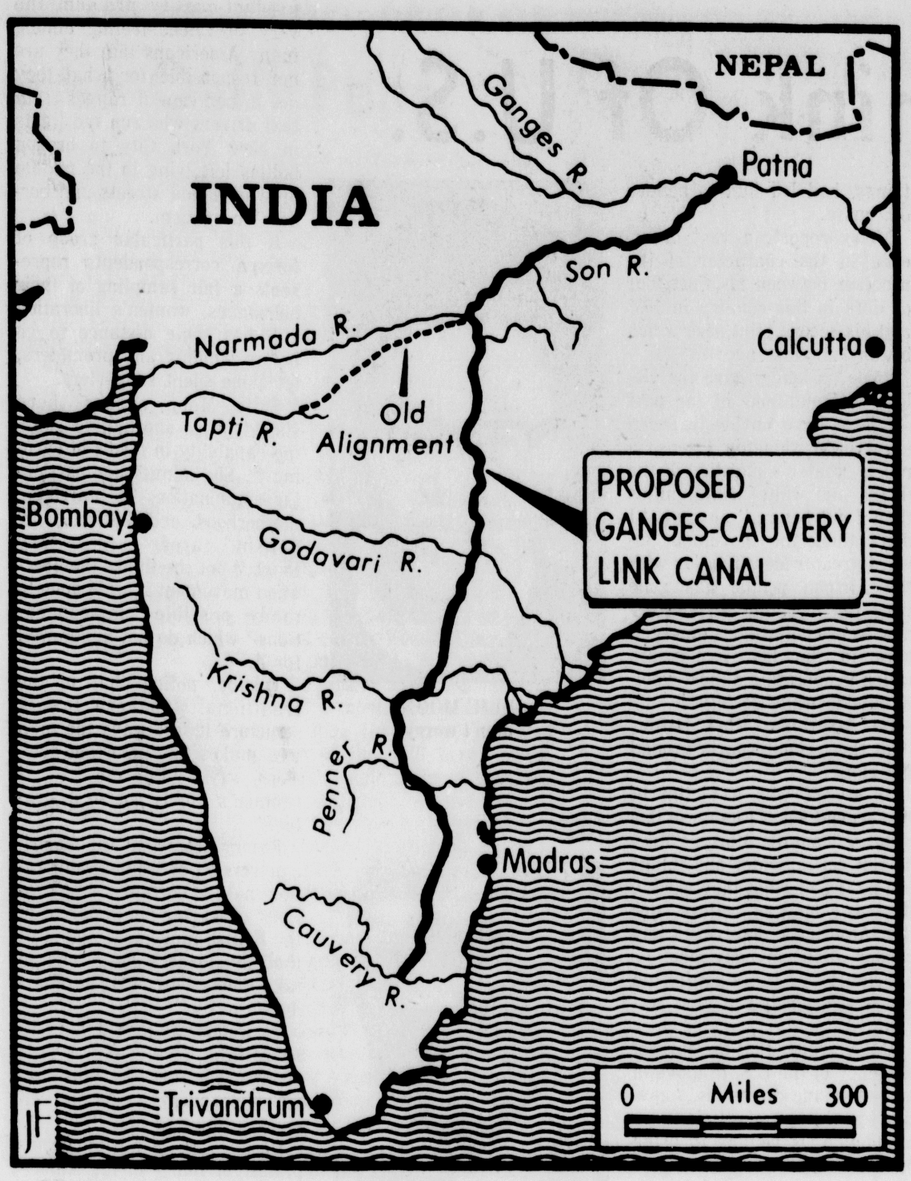
World's Biggest Water Project Slated In India



By DAVID WINDER
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — India, where much of the land lies parched and cracked under the heat of the blazing sun, will grow greener as a result of the world's biggest water project.

The project is so massive that it will dwarf even the Soviet attempt to divert water from the Siberian rivers to the basin of the Aral Sea.

A U.N. survey just released stresses the feasibility of a 3,000-kilometer canal network that links all the major rivers in India and will irrigate vast drought-prone regions in south, central, and western India.

The canals also will revolutionize inland transport with a navigation network equaling the combined lengths of the Rhine, the Danube, and Vistula waterways in Europe.

The value to India's 580 million people can be measured thus:

—With 70 per cent of its population dependent on agriculture, one major objective under the new plan is to more than double irrigated areas, from the present eight million hectares to 19 million hectares in the basins of the Sone, Narmuda, Godavari, Krishna, Penner, and Cauvery river basins. The canal also will provide much-needed reserve water for water-scarce areas.

—The canal network is expected to become a major navigation route for ferrying bulk cargo from the south to the industrial north, as well as to the major seaports of the country. It also will be a major means of transporting coal.

The $4 billion-plus plan envisages lifting 25 billion cubic meters of water annually from the Ganges river up 490 meters into a reservoir.

From here, the water will travel along 3,300 kilometers through aqueducts, gravity canals, tunnels, natural water courses and reservoirs before flowing into the southern and western rivers. Secondary feeder canals will get the water to needed regions.

The project, which is expected to take 25 years to complete, emanated from a study made at the request of the Indian government. It was financed by a $24,000 technical-assistance grant given by the United Nations development program, the U.N. central coordinating body responsible for financing international development programs.

The plan links the Ganges, Brahmaputra, Normada, Tapti, Godavari, Krishna, Penner, and Cauvery rivers — the entire Indian peninsula, in fact.

America Takes On A Slightly Different Hue

(EDITOR'S NOTE: How does America, 1972, look to the eyes of professional newsmen representing foreign countries in Washington? To find out, a Monitor correspondent talked to six of her colleagues from abroad and finds they see the U.S. turning inward more and more.

By LUCIA MOUAT
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Self-portraits may faltter but the result is often more interesting when another artist puts the paint to the canvas. America as seen through the eyes of the elite corps of foreign correspondents stationed in this country takes on a slightly different hue than some Americans might paint in for themselves.

These foreign journalists are constantly coming up against the contrasts; the America that emerges from separate conversations with six of the journalists is one turning slowly but unmistakably inward in its primary concerns — one in which the economy and race and crime in the cities linger on as the major unresolved problems.

"When I came in 1961," recalls Julie Moon, U.S. correspondent for Munwha Broadcasting Corp. of South Korea, "I didn't worry about parking my car anywhere around the country and leaving anything in it, but no more."

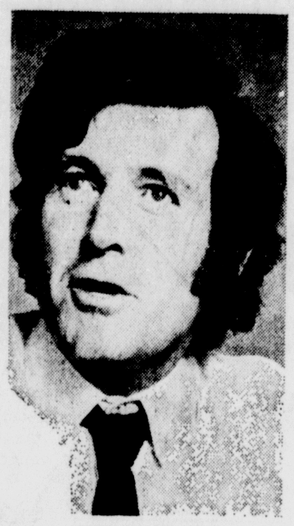
Several find the preoccupation with making money somewhat more pronounced and the pursuit of pleasure more organized in America than "at home." They also note accompanying strains of discontent.

Just as most Americans, all six had had first-hand experience with problems in the quality and serviceability of American goods; they feel that this has played a strong part in American's trade problems.

In general, the correspondents find life in the U.S. very "convenient"; Tadae Takubo, bureau chief of Tokyo's Jiji Press, admits to still being amazed after two years in Washington at how freely Americans use their supply of paper, water, and electricity. The litter problem, however, is less here than in Japan, he says.

One theme recurring in virtually every conversation was the relative youth of the U.S. in the world of nations, the unequaled energy of its people, and their zealous embrace of various causes. Yet accompanying the polarization and the divisiveness is a remarkably high level of tolerance, some correspondents say.

HANS HOEFER
'Many don't realize...'



FRED EMERY
Briton's viewpoint

"It's rare that a debate cannot be talked out quietly and peacefully in this country," says Hans Hoefer, bureau chief of Deutsche Presse Agentur. "I'm very optimistic about the future of this country . . . Many Americans don't realize the strength they have."

One point on which most journalists remark is America's almost insatiable fascination with politics.

"This is an intensely political society," comments Fred Emery, chief correspondent for the London Times in this country and a man who has been reporting on the presidential campaign since early New Hampshire primary days. "Ever since I came (here) in October 1970, everybody's been talking about the 1972 campaign. It's kind of a national pageant. The campaigns are barely over here before they start all over again . . . I don't think you could sustain the Englishman's interest in politics for that long a time."

None of the six volunteered any rash predictions on the outcome of the Nov. 7 election, allowing for the possibility that the same surprising surge that brought Sen. George McGovern to the fore of the Democratic Party this summer could still rise again to bring him a victory in November.

"The indifference to other than bread-and-butter issue is very widespread around the world," says Claude Moisy, bureau chief of Agence France Presse, who speaks froman experience of 10 years of reporting in developing countries of Africa and Asia. "People have their own worries, and political issues not directly related to these tend to be forgotten."

Several correspondents report being impressed with the "natural" character of American patriotism, pointing out that their children are singing the national anthem both at school and at home. Chien Chung Fu, staff correspondent for the Central News Agency of China, finds patriotism less formal and less obvious here than in the Orient where encounters with foreign aggressors have been and remain more a possibility.

Hoefer suggests that with national pride in this country goes a certain individual pride in financial independence. He tells of a neighbor who reported proudly one day that he was able to pay all the family doctor bills on his own. "In Germany," he says, "that wouldn't be a point of pride at all. A German would expect compulsory health insurance — he'd consider it his right, and he'd sue the state if he didn't get it.

CHEIN CHUG FU
'Desire for change'

TADAE TAKUBO
Returned to dealer

The urban problem most singled out by those interviewed was race. Fu labels it one virtually without solution that will continue to "plague" the country for years to come despite the best efforts of white Americans.

"You're so polite, you don't even talk about it these days," he says, "but much of the tolerance is only at the surface level."

Emery, on the other hand, confesses to having been surprised when he arrived in the U.S. to find that "blacks and whites ware getting on so well." Press reports, among other things, had led him to believe otherwise.

Moisy reports a vast difference in the character of the problem between his first tour of duty in this country in 1963 and his second stint here which began 3½ years ago:

"You no longer have the violent confrontations of the past — these have obviously failed —but in Washington I sense a much greater separation of the (black and white) communities than I did before," he says. "I don't think the movement toward greater identification with the African people has gone very far . . . but an entirely new Negro culture has emerged here in the last five years which is operating almost wholly outside white society."

Do Americans work harder than their counterparts around the globe?

"I myself was a victim of that legend when I came to this country," admits Moisy. "Maybe I'm getting older and things are no longer what they used to be but I tend to believe now that Americans don't work any harder than anybody else — particularly in Washington where everybody's a civil servant."

Moisy argues that the current tendency of the U.S. to move in more humane directions, sometimes at the cost of efficiency in production, is helping to bring on the change.

"We in Europe opted for social security rather than industrial supremacy a long time ago," he says. "It's pretty difficult to have it both ways. You work hard or you have a good time."

"I think the word 'fun' has been abused in this society," says Taiwan's Fu. "You always hear Americans saying, 'Isn't that fun?' In our culture the word is nonexistent. We talk about pleasure and amusement but never 'fun.' To me it reflects a certain superficiality and is really just a desire for a change. Everything is so well organized in this country that you want a change from the pressure and the monotony."

Generally, foreign correspondents find themselves as beset by consumer problems these days as any Americans are. Takubo, who recalls buying American products with particular pride in times past, tells of his purchase of a new American car three months ago. The dealer was "very eager" to sell the car and "very kind."

JULIE MOON
'I didn't worry'

CLAUDE MOISY
'New Negro Culture'

When mechanical troubles began to develop, the Jiji press correspondent paid a return visit with the car. The dealer didn't appear to be too occupied, sipping a cup of coffee, but turned "very cool" at Takubo's description and insisted, "It's not my problem; it happened at the factory."

Julie Moon, though she believes the American system of education in which her two children are enrolled is "perfect," considers the heart of the product-quality problem the very prevalent feeling among many Americans that they are not responsible for what they do. In her view it ranges from taxi drivers who run red lights in New York City to broken bottles left lying in the middle of Washington streets and borders on egotism.

If this particular group of foreign correspondents represents a fair sampling of their colleagues, women's liberation still has some distance to go before winning any promoters, let alone silent supporters.

Julie Moon argues there should be no shortcut to genuine capability in terms of earning it. She admits her particular combinations of marriage, motherhood, and fulltime journalism career are "very tough," but she thinks the liberation movement is wide open to many possible "misconceptions" which do not augur well for it.

Takubo, noting that in the traditional Japanese family structure it is always the man who makes the important decisions, says: "For me . . . it (women's lib) is not so desirable."

Emery notes that the American version of women's liberation has a certain "vituperative" character not apparent in the British movement and says that the leaders here tend to take themselves "extraordinarily seriously."

"I wonder if it will be self-sustaining," he says. "This country has sort of a nine-day-wonder capacity — it's marvelously attuned to fads."

Despite the persistent complaints of many in the American press about the inaccessibility of many U.S. Government officials, most of the six observed that this is an exciting and comparatively open place for covering the news. Takubo says he was particularly surprised when he first came here two years ago to note that reporters writing articles critical of the government had bylines on their copy. In Japan, he says, if a reporter's name were attached, he would have difficulty getting any more news in the future.

"My only complaint," says West Germany's Hoefer in conclusion, "is that George Washington built the Capitol in a swamp. Wouldn't La Jolla have been a nice spot?"

Debate In Israel On How To Deal With Arabs' Aspirations

By Francis Ofner
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

TEL AVIV — A vigorous debate is under way here about how to deal in the long term with the political aspirations of Palestinian Arabs.

Three basic trends of Israeli thought are discernible: —One calls for creation of some state-like entity to fulfill Palestinian nationalist longings.

—A second opposes any Palestinian political configuration in the region.

—A third refuses to address itself to the problem at all, assuming that extensive involvement in such approaches will only distract Israel from what should be its foremost consideration, its own security.

The debate has been given a fresh twist by Egyptian President Sadat's proposal for a Palestinian government-in-exile. For, while the proposal is shrugged off here as wholly unrealistic and liable only to deepen the rifts between rival Palestinian groups, it lends a new topicality to the subject.

Proponents of a Palestinian entity have been buoyed by the current efforts of Arye Eliav, the past secretary-general of the governing Labor Party. In a series of appearances before party chapters around the country, Eliav is propounding his view that the occupied territories should be kept free of Jewish settlement.

This restraint, argues Eliav, would embolden those Palestinians who favor self-determination alongside a formal peace with Israel.

A recent book by Eliav, based largely on this thesis, has become a bestseller in Israel. It serves as a platform for his declared campaign to win a cabinet seat in the next government.

A political leader with similar inclinations is Mordechai Bentov, who served under former prime ministers David Ben-Gurion and Levi Eshkoi in the war cabinets of 1948, 1956 and 1967.

The camp that opposes the Palestinian state includes three of Israel's most powerful leaders: Prime Minister Golda Meir, Foreign Minister Abba Eban and Minister without Portfolio Israel Galili.

All three have stated flatly that "there is no place for a third state in the region between the Iraqi border and the Mediterranean."

Instead they hold to the view that Jordan, with a Palestinian majority, is the natural political structure to satisfy Palestinian aspirations.

Additional opposition to a Palestinian state comes from right-wing opponents of Mrs. Meir, particularly in the Gahal party, led by Menachem Begin and Ezer Weizmann. The latter is a former commander of the air force.

They advocate the formal annexation of both the former Jordanian and the former Egyptian-held Gaza Strip. Gahal adds that Israel would grant full citizenship rights to those Arabs who want it.

Those Israelis who refuse to voice a view on the Palestinian entity include Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and Deputy Prime Minister Yigan Allon. They satisfy themselves with pragmatic actions, such as those laid out in the Allon Plan. This provides for fortified Jewish settlements in the sparsely populated sectors of the west bank along the Jordan River. According to the Allon Plan, the populated areas would revert to Arab control, including a land corridor giving access to the east bank.

The Man Who Makes Goose-Quill Pens

By RAYMOND A. LaJOIE
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Whatever differences the justices of the United States Supreme Court may express on vital issues of the day, they all agree on one thing: the presentation of traditional goose-quill pens.

The custom was originated by Chief Justice John Marshall of Virginia, fourth Chief Justice of the U.S. (1801-1835). With every new session of the court, each justice and each lawyer appearing before the court since then finds a carefully hand-cut set of goose-quill pens at his place — a highly treasured rite of respect and honor.

For 18 years now, one man perhaps has contributed the most to ensure that that particular Supreme Court decision remains workable. He is Lewis Glaser of Charlottesville, Va. He says he is the only man in the U.S. (maybe even the world) who makes goose-quill pens.

He makes and markets something like 50,000 of them a year all by himself.

"It's not at all unusual for a senator, for example, to call me and say, 'Lewis, we need some pens for a special occasion,' and I will make 250 pens for him right away."

Mr. Glaser says it all started years back when he was raising geese and people kept asking him for quill pens. But it wasn't the goose feathers but a casual remark concerning "calligraphy" that really piqued his curiosity: Quick research brought out the fact that calligraphy is the art of elegant penmanship.

Intrigued, Mr. Glaser did further study. And for a number of years now, he has been the authority on the goose-quill pen as well as many outstanding works written with it through the ages: countless volumes carefully penned by anonymous medieval monks as well as more recent famous letters and documents: Even the U.S.'s own priceless parchments — The Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, the Bill of Rights.

But how to cut a quill to match the great quality in writing of earlier times? There was only one way to find out.

Mr. Glaser experimented for about a month and tested each new nib. He shaved a little more of the quill here, cut a sharper angle there, testing the pens endlessly. At the end of that time his enthusiasm and persistence triumphed. He had his first excellent goose-quill pen. What followed was inevitable.

He began a new career cutting goose-quill pens and soon established a reputation for consistently fine workmanship. He received an invitation to the White House in 1955 and gave two of his quills to a delighted President Eisenhower. Although a modest man, he has appeared on television and radio shows simply because of his belief in his craft and its meanings.

It took him a month to fashion his first product, but Mr. Glaser can now shape a nib with 15 short strokes of a knife. It takes about 25 seconds, a speed absolutely necessary to meet the great public demand for his work — outside the pens he does for the Supreme Court.

The quills are 12 inches long and the feathers are especially cut to a rectangular shape as they were when John Marshall was on the high court. (In appreciation for his meticulous work, incidentally, the high court has given to Mr. Glaser John Marshall's own inkwell.)

"The tools of my trade? Simple enough. Two finely honed penknives — one a gift from the late President Eisenhower — a pair of shears, and a file. And of course, lots of goose feathers," he says.

He used the wing feathers of Embden geese, shipped to him mostly from France and Germany. He says: "Embden geese provide the most nearly perfect white feathers, and I carefully inspect and use just those of the highest beauty. Only three, or four at best, of the longest feathers on each of the right and left wings meet my exact requirements."

From before dawn to nightfall, seven days a week, he works at his demanding craft in his upsairs shop.

"I get up early in the morning," he says, "and work at this business all day long, and I do it not because I have to, but because I enjoy it so much."

He is perfectly satisfied. "I have no hobbies, although I do have records; I love classical music. And I like to watch travel shows on TV. The only hobby I have is what I do. I don't leave the Charlottesville-Washington area very often."

He says he is not going to teach anyone his trade and explains that learning his craft demands a dedication to the tradition of the quill as well as a mastery of the craft itself.

Goose-quill pens by Lewis Glaser are stocked now in a booth operated in the U.S. Supreme Court Building in Washington by the Foundation of the Federal Bar Association, an organization of some 14,000 Washington lawyers. The pens are available to lawyers and others having business in the Supreme Court Building and to visitors. The building attracts some half-a-million visitors a year.

Over the years, several state supreme courts have used Mr. Glaser's quill pens also, as have historic Mount Vernon, Colonial Williamsburg, presidents, senators, and private individuals in the U.S. and around the world.

On the box in which Mr. Glaser packages his quill pens and the inkwell into which they fit appears this point-making quotation from a letter Thomas Jefferson wrote on Dec. 26, 1808, to his granddaughter, Cornelia Jefferson Randolph: "I rejoice that you have learnt to write for another reason: for as that is done with a goose quill, you now know the value of a goose . . ."

$260 Million Moved In Philly

NEW YORK (AP) — Securities worth about $260 million moved through the streets of Philadelphia in two hours one recent Saturday morning. As far as the company involved knows, it was the largest move of securities at one time, ever.

Fidelity Life Insurance Co. was moving its stocks and bonds to a new office. Securities were loaded into a Brinks armored truck guarded by policemen with rifles and wearing bullet-proof vests.

The reason that the move took as long as it did was that the truck would only take $50 million worth of securities on one trip. Each trip took 10 minutes each way.

Warm Ocean Current Brings An Economic Threat To Peru

By JAMES GOODSELL
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A warm ocean current threatens economic disaster for Peru.

Flowing down the South Pacific coast, the warm waters of "El Nino," as the current is known, have sent millions of anchovies and other marine species scurrying in search of cooler waters. The anchovy has all but disappeared from Peruvian fishing waters, and this in turn has virtually shut down Peru's fishing industry.

For a nation that earns 40 per cent of its foreign exchange from fishing, the situation is one of mounting concern for Peruvians. It also could have major international repercussions, perhaps altering the world fish market which in recent years has come to accept Peru as the largest producer of fish products in the world.

In connction with the crisis, the Peruvian Government has decreed an indefinite suspension of all fish-meal and fish-oil exports which began Oct. 1 — a step aimed at avoiding penalties for its failure to deliver on contracts for 400,000 metric tons of fish meal by the end of the year.

Coincidentally, the warm currents of "El Nino," which have replaced the cooler, nutrient-laden waters of the Humboldt current, also are responsible for the worst flooding in Peruvian history. Food crops have been seriously damaged and Peru has been forced to import foodstuffs on a large scale.

Normally the Humboldt current builds a wall of cold air along the Pacific coast of Peru that prevents warm-ocean rain clouds from discharging on the arid coast. Farms in the area normally are watered by a moist fog, and by streams trickling down from the Andes.

This year, however, there was no cold-air barrier and the Pacific rain clouds, which were fuller than usual, poured huge quantities of water on the ordinarily arid coast. The result was flooding, particularly south of Lima, that virtually destroyed whole farms and small villages, leaving hundreds of thousands of people homeless. With the destruction of crops, imports of foodstuffs, particularly vegetables, became necessary, and prices soared.

HIS LIKENESS EVERYWHERE

Vladimir Ilyich Lenin, leader of the Communist revolution in Russia in 1917, died in 1924, but his face still is familiar to the Soviet man on the street. One reason for this is the number of huge Lenin likenesses that often are draped on the sides of public buildings throughout the country. This one adorned entrance of National Economic Exhibit in Moscow earlier this year.

THIS IS BUT ONE — This is one of the jetliners that is hauling an increasing number of passengers for Swissair, on of the few airlines showing a profit these days.

One Airline The Passengers Like

By BARRY EDGAR
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

GENEVA, Switzerland — "If Swissair would only take over and run a half dozen of Europe's other airlines, we would finally have good service." This was a comment overheard in the passenger lounge of Geneva airport. Such is the popularity of Swissair among its regular passengers. But the quote might easily be changed to: "If Swissair would only take over and run a half dozen of Europe's other airlines, they might finally make a profit."

Being a company owned by stockholders, Swissair must make a profit to attract vital investment capital. Most other European airlines are state owned and controlled. Many chalk up substantial annual losses, too. In 1971 Swissair not only managed to increase its business over 1970 but also surpassed targets for 1971.

"As a privately owned company we have to raise capital on the open market. This simply means we have to offer investors an attractive record of profits and dividends," explans Dr. Heinz Haas, deputy president of Swissair.

Immediately following the upward revaluation of the Swiss franc in May, 1971, Swissair was greeted with a useful 18-million Swiss franc reduction in costs. But with the sweet came a bitter 42-million franc revenue reduction, which spelled a net loss of 24 million francs (almost $6 million).

To overcome this gap, very tight cost controls were instituted. Staff was reduced from 13,700 to 13,000 by attrition. Yet at the same time capacity was increased. Swissair productivity —the ton-kilometers of cargo per employee — increased by a healthy 16 per cent. As a result the unit cost was reduced by 1 to 2 per cent.

But this kind of fiscal victory was not achieved without some risks. Would the additional capacity available be used?

Europe accounts for just under half of Swissair's traffic. By changing schedules and providing more capacity, Swissair increased is Euromarket share on routes to France, Spain, Italy, Britain, Germany, and Eastern Europe. These are the most heavily traveled routes of both businessmen and vacationers.

Intermediate routes to the Middle East and East Africa were assigned larger aircraft and increased frequencies. New tourist programs resulted in revenue increases on routes to Beirut, Cairo, Istanbul, Te- heran, and Tel Aviv.

But the highly competitive route to North America still remained a problem. On this route there was an industry-wide growth rate of only 4 per cent. Swissair notched up 20 per cent. A fantastic success, perhaps, but still not large enough to enable it to break even on this run.

To achieve this increase Swissair devised and marketed special-interest tours — "Ride a cogwheel train up a Swiss alp" and "Tour the presidential railroad carriage." Nor did Swissair overlook ethnic groups and sports groups. With two gateway cities, Geneva and Zurich, Swissair is in an excellen position to market ski trips in Switzerland, France, and Austria. Ski buffs are especially prized by Swissair because theytravel when most airline business is slack.

Racking up these sales was no mean feat, since it was achieved at a time when advertising budgets had been sharply cut. Yet promotional acitivity still increased. Swissair management instituted a system of bonuses for those units that reached their sales targets. Senior staff were given bonuses linked to profits rather than revenue. This has had a sinificant effect on increasing revenue . . . and decreasing costs.

Swissair invested in new aircraft very carefully, too. It was among the last of the major airlines to order the giant Boeing 747s.

It also believes in cooperation with other airlines as a cost-reduction measure. For example, Swissair maintains a well-oiled technical collaboration with both Scandinavian Airline System and KLM-Royal Dutch Airlines that enables these small airlines to enjoy many of the technical benefits of giant airlines.

And Swissair believes in diversification, which began with catering for other airlines. This once-modest diversion has expanded into restaurants in many other countires, a hotel chain in Switzerland, and partnership in another hotel chain, thus assuring the airline of medium-priced hotel facilities throughout Europe. These diversified activities now provide Swissair with 20 per cent of its revenue and account for more than one-third of the airline's total profit.

They Offered A Helping Hand

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Wanting to show "anyone in need of help that there is someone who cares," a group of suburban Avon residents has formed Avon Referral Service.

Its members offer to babysit, lend an ear, find an appropriate organization to which to refer someone, cook meals — do what they can any day, any hour.

One recent case involved an unwelcome raccoon in a woman's garage. Since it wouldn't leave, the group called the Lorrain County Metropolitan Park System to solve the problem.

Yukon's Only Owner Of A Rolls A Prospector Who Made It Big

ROSS RIVER, Yukon Territory (AP) — Al Kulan doesn't think it the least bit odd that he owns the only Rolls-Royce in the Yukon and the only house in this village with a crystal chandelier.

Kulan is the prospector who made the big strike.

He won't say how many millions he's worth, but he was one of the men who discovered the 63-million-ton lead-and-zinc ore body now being mined near here at Faro by Anvil Mining Corp. Ltd.

For many men, that would have meant instant membership in the jet set or retirement to a South Sea island.

But not for Kulan, who prefers his luxurious, split-level home amid the Indian log cabins of Ross River — population 220 — which is more than 250 miles by gravel road from Whitehorse.

As for that Rolls-Royce, Kulan smiled and said:

"Everybody should have a Rolls at least once in their life. But you're not a bit happier in a Rolls than a Volkswagen.

"It's useful for driving the Indian stakers around — I can pack them all in — but no one even turns around and looks at it now."

Kulan, 50, was born in Toronto and started prospecting in northern British Columbia and the Yukon in 1946.

The Kulan family spent a short time in Vancouver after Anvil mine connected, but Kulan said "Vancouver just isn't my type of place — it's beautiful but there are too many people."

So a year ago, they moved back to Ross River, and Kulan designed and built his five-bedroom house.

The house, with its three cars parked outside, is plush. The red shag carpet fills every corner and echoes the red and gold brocade of the furniture. In the dining room there's a glimpse of a silver candelabra and a crystal chandelier. Chinese antiques are on every shelf and table.

"Money isn't the answer to life," Kulan said. "You think money is going to solve all your problems but when you get it you find it brings a new batch of problems."

Most of the time Kulan still is out prospecting — occasionally taking his sons with him.

"If you've been active all your life it would be most unwise to suddenly change your way of living," he said. "There's no challenge to just sitting around in the South Seas."

Old Tower Catapult Found In England

DOVER, England (AP) — A 1,700-year-old tower that carried a catapult capable of hurling blocks nearly a mile has been uncovered.

The tower, probably once 25 feet high, dominated the wall of a Roman shore fort.

'Rich' Peace Corpsmen Seen Through African's Eyes

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When you're a Peace Corps volunteer overseas, you find the people around you don't see you quite as you see yourself. There's the added problem of learning how to see them. The writer of this article, a young American back from two years with the Peace Corps in Sierra Leone, spells out some of the pitfalls.)

By DAVID SHUGARTS
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

The popular image of a Peace Corps volunteer in Sierra Leone is of a fellow who works side-by-side with the farmer, goes home with him to a supper of rice and okra, sits around the fire telling stories afterward, and drifts off satisfied to sleep in his village hut.

The real volunteer probably will never have a day quite like that. There is a good reason: The real volunteer in Sierra Leone is a rich man, an educated man and an American. When he sets out to follow the preconceived version of his service, he is handicapped from the start in that he is highly unbelieveable in the role. Within a few months people will let him know that "slumming" is something from which only he will get pleasure, and that he will accomplish far more by assuming the role that exists for a rich man.

The annual per capita income in Sierra Leone is $125. The annual spendable income of a volunteer — Peace Corps, British, or Canadian — is about $2,000.

There are a few black men who are rich, mostly government leaders, but there are no white men who can be considered poor in Sierra Leone. From this simple and unalterable observation, an African can build a whole set of expectations about the white men he meets. They will be able to afford expensive entertainments, pleasures and needs that he cannot. They will be able to replace almost anything that is broken or stolen. They will continually pay without comment prices that he would find outrageous. They are by income alone so set apart that he considers them beyond his ken.

The Peace Corps volunteer is not allowed to forget he is a rich man. Often his skill in language will gain him better prices than other white men can find, but there is no real excuse for his doing such cost cutting.

The African market woman looks closely at her white customer to see if there is perhaps a joke hidden in his attempt at bargaining. It is simply assumed he can pay the "white man's price," and that if he refuses to do it either he is playing a rather perverse game, or else he is a despicable miser. There is something irrational about living below one's means anywhere in the world, it seems.

The rich volunteer is always looked at askance when he refuses to hand out money on demand. Again, this is an expectation that he cannot satisfy. One of the norms for the rich man in Africa is his periodic gifts of money for reasons of friendship or influence. Given the means, he will not ignore an opportunity to do this.

Like Mafia dons described in "The Godfather," he will be able to call in favors when he needs them, so long as his social bank account remains full. This is not to be taken as a way of gauging influence by the amount of money given out. The manner of the giving, the claim that it is not the amount but the friendship involved, increases the status of the giver.

Sometimes village opinion can go strongly against someone who takes a money debt seriously and tries to collect it in cash. The ways of repaying are so many and subtle that often the amount is entirely forgotten.

Yet the white man has great difficulty in understanding this kind of transaction. An unsolicited gift seems to him quite strange, and he keeps an uncanny account of the debts he has outstanding. When a volunteer lends $10 to an African friend, he expects $10 back, and can become quite angry when the African claims he forgets how much it was or doesn't remember borrowing it at all.

Once stung, the volunteer refuses to lend again or puts conditions on the debt that are illogical in the African context, like repayment in specified installments. In doing so, the volunteer loses standing and goodwill in the community. He will not be ostracized, but he may never have an African-to-African relationship, as friendly as he may afterward try to be.

The expectation that the white men will be able to afford unattainable articles of affluence is nearly always fulfilled. Volunteers arrive in the village with tape recorders, photographs, $300 cameras, and an allowance that will stand the purchase of expensive imported foods.

IT'S OFTEN EASIER — For Peace Corpsmen, such as this white American shown with two Africans on a river work project, building outhouses and dams often is easier than bridging the culture gap.

The Peace Corpsman, with his $2,000 income per year, is seen as a rich man by some Africans, whose income may be about $125.

Almost every volunteer in Sierra Leone can recall having something stolen. Some have had their houses swept clean of all their belongings — not just once, but several times. The odd thing is that they do not leave the village, although they begin to be more careful about locking up the house. The obvious lesson to the African is that the volunteer can afford to lose these articles, since he invariably replaces them.

Therefore, servants of volunteers are not particularly remorseful when they are sacked for stealing. Villagers do not so readily turn out to llectively punish the culprit when the victim is a rich man. African police take an amused view of reports by white men of robberies. Sometimes they will respond with a show of industry, perhaps even recover the booty, but then will demand a cash incentive for their services.

The evidence so far presented may seem to be negative, sentencing the volunteer to a dismal and unproductive two years in Africa. Yet, there are ways for perceptive young Americans to do some good, once they learn that the society will not change for them so much as they will change for the society.

When a volunteer arrives, everything is alien — much more alien than he had expected. He finds himself suspicious of everything strange, even to the point of questioning his survival.

There are, of course, the volunteers who cannot stick it out, give up, and return to the U.S. But if you are one of those who manages to make it, you find yourself actually saying one day that you are going home and find that you mean the African house or hut where you now live.

Simultaneously comes the feeling, at last, that it is you who are alien and not the people around you. They understand themselves perfectly, while you can only guess. Even though you become ever better at guessing, you begin to see that you would have to lose something before you could properly fit into the society. This something is your Western culture, and the largest part of it is Americanness.

In Africa the framework of social life starts with the family, then moves through the village and on to the tribe.

Current Western writing often emphasizes tribalism in Africa but tribal associations are nothing compared with family ties. The matriarchal African family shelters the young, binds them into lifelong fraternity, and demands the fruit of their adult labors.

When you talk over matters in a village, you are talking to whole families and coalitions of families. I recall one Mende headman's address to a village gathering. Instead of beginning, "My fellow Mendes," "Fellow citizens," or even "Ladies and Gentlemen," he started with, "Families, it is good that we are met here."

The American sets himself against these traditions virtually by nature. For in African eyes the most conspicuous trait of the American — once he is known by his actions rather than by the money he spends — is the distance he keeps from his family and his "tribe."

Americans do not tithe to support their familes back home. They do not speak of their parents very much at all. They defend their right to marry and conduct their affairs even when this involves parental disapproval. They more and more look to social security and rest homes to take from them the "burden" of caring for aged realtives. They are now considering day-care centers essential, so that mothers can be freed from the "drudgery" of raising children. Africans are aware of all this and consider it an indication of American heartlessness and immorality.

There are parallel problems when it comes to schooling. For instance, it is fairly universal in formal African schooling to cane unruly or defiant children on the palms of the hands. Young American Peace Corps teachers take various disparaging views of the practice. Some try to convince African teachers that it is not a practical way to achieve discipline. Others find a place to hide while the beating is going on. Some few adopt the practice. But immediately when the issue comes up, the American stands clearly apart from the community of teachers and pupils.

The Peace Corspmen coming out of the late 1960s started the trend of long hair, bearded faces, and extremely casual attire. It fitted back home, but made work in Africa more difficult.

Whatever else he does, a man is expected to dress according to his means in Africa.

But in African eyes the Peace Corps volunteer reverses tradition and morality. The male volunteer will wear African shirts and short trousers to teach, while his African counterpart will endeavor to wear semiformal, even if threadbare, clothing. The American argues that the way he dresses is solely for comfort, a personal matter, and that his reputation should not be tied to his clothing. The African argues that teachers should dress well to gain the respect of the position and set an example that the pupils can imitate.

From Italy with Love . . . Our "Bellissimo" BEDSPREAD COLLECTION

Lots of bedspreads look Italian, but Sears knows you have to go to Italy to get the real thing! There, we found craftsmen who still pride themselves in the art of weaving, creating rayon-and-cotton, rayon-wool-and-cotton, and all-cotton bedspreads reminiscent of Florentine tapestries. "Lombardy" and "Lugano" are matelasses in medallion motifs. Colored in Mediterranean splendor and trimmed with unusual, thick fringes.
